TANKER BEATS PICKET BOATS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 13,000-ton oil tanker tied up today at the strikebound British American Oil Company's bulk loading terminal in suburban Burnaby.

Two boats carrying pickets from the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union were forced to give way as the tanker moved in.

The tanker, the Montreal-based B-A Canada, carried more than 5,000,000 gallons of refined product. A company spokesman said it came from "the Caribbean area," but would not elaborate.

It was escorted into Vancouver harbor Monday by two tugs, chartered by B-A and manned by company-hired crews. RCMP kept watch on two bridges spanning the harbor, and two police boats patrolled the harbor as the tanker moved through to an anchorage near the marketing terminal.

It moved to the dock at high tide this morning. "Our two picket boats stayed in position until the last minute," a union spokesman said. "They were forced to move by the tanker."

The tanker's cargo of such refined products as gasoline and fuel oil was to be pumped into storage tanks at the terminal, normally fed by pipeline from the company's strike-bound refinery at Port Moody, a few miles away.

GORDON PLEDGES

Troops to Go Only Under UN

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said today the government would be "receptive" to a request to send military personnel to Viet Nam as part of a United Nations peacekeeping force or truce inspection team.

Pearson To Tackle Prairies

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pearson moves into one of the more critical areas of his 1965 election campaign today with his second air hop into the Conservative-dominated Prairies.

Pearson makes four speeches in a whirlwind two-day tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan as he makes his first trip into both provinces since calling the Nov. 8 election.

It is a trip during which he is expected to defend the proposed national medicare scheme in Alberta, visit ridings the Liberals hope to take away from the Conservatives on voting day and outline his government's farm policy to a rural audience in Saskatchewan.

The Liberals hold one seat (Calgary South) by Agriculture Minister Harry Hays) of the 24 in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

HOLDS RED DEER

John Diefenbaker's conservatives hold 47 in the wheat province and another 14 in Alberta. The Social Credit party has the other two Alberta seats with leader Robert Thompson.

Diefenbaker Hits Two-Nation Idea

FORT WILLIAM (UPI) — Cheered on by one of the most enthusiastic crowds of his campaign, Conservative chief John Diefenbaker Monday night painted himself and his party as the new saviours of the Canadian nation.

He told a standing-room-only crowd of 2,500 that national unity is the major issue of the Nov. 8 election campaign.

"Pearsonian Liberalism," he said, has turned its back not only on the traditions of the nation, but also on the traditions of its own party.

"Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has said, 'Canada is two nations. Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has allowed provinces to make treaties. Tell me when a province has had the right to refuse to participate in a national program,'" Diefenbaker demanded.

"The Liberals are going to raise each province to the status of an associate state. And when that day comes, this nation cannot hold together."

Diefenbaker said Prime Minister Pearson now says he's for a strong central government. "When they're challenged, they come out of their corner ready to fight. But when someone asks: "Are you ready," they reply, "not quite."

"You won't build Canada on that basis — by taking strong stands and running away from them."

Diefenbaker said his lonely opposition saved Canada from the "dangerous" Fulton-Favreau formula for amending the constitution.

"I said if that formula was accepted, this country would never again be able to make any helped make Britain great. Not to mention a portion of Butterkist, the cause of the whole legal hassle.

His lordship sampled the lot. Her Majesty's commissioners for customs and excise submitted that Butterkist, sold mainly in movie theatres, qualified as candy and thus was liable for sales tax.

Clark's Cereal Products, makers of Butterkist, claimed that the product was just as much a cereal as the goods in the breakfast packets.

Their lawyer, Michael Hoare, argued: "The character of the product isn't changed just because you sell it in small bags."

"And it's wholly irrelevant whether you squash the grain or roll it or explode it."

"As far as I'm concerned," his lordship said, "Butterkist is nothing more than popcorn in an improved form."

WIRE BRIEFS

Police Dog Bites Wrong Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Constable Marvin Magnusson was bitten by police dog Rex today as the dog attempted to help police subdue a suspected prowler.

As Const. Magnusson struggled with the suspect inside a city apartment block, Rex eluded his handler, Const. W. D. Needham. But instead of grabbing the prowler he sank his teeth into the right leg of Const. Magnusson.

The constable was taken to hospital for treatment. The suspect was arrested.

Man Slain In D.R. Battle

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — A man was killed early today in another flurry of shooting between Dominican troops and rebel partisans in the heart of Santo Domingo. The firing quickly subsided, but bands of angry civilian youths, most of them unarmed, ranged the downtown area.

Face-to-Face Beer Strike Talks

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two sides in British Columbia's beer strike met across the bargaining table today for the first time since the strike began Aug. 23.

Until today, meetings were held in separate rooms, with government conciliation officers acting as intermediaries.

India Border Tensions Grow

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said today "the situation may have worsened" in recent days along the ceasefire line between Indian and Pakistani forces. He said tension was reported to remain high.

SNAP, CRACKLE, POP

Judge Chews Over Case

LONDON (AP) — Snap, crackle and pop went the jaws of Judge Frederick Lawson as he munched his way through the evidence.

Before his lordship in the High Court of England were some of the best brains of the British bar — and a packet of crispy, crunchy Sugar Ricles.

Likewise a packet of Frosties, the breakfast cereal that

The British public certainly doesn't buy it in cinema to take home for breakfast.

Having thus branded Butterkist as candy and liable to tax, he ordered Clark's Cereal Products to pay the costs of the hearing. And an usher knocked the Sugar Ricles all over the floor.

"I think it is all quite remarkable."

Truce Team Missing On Plane

VIETIANE, Laos (Reuters) — An aircraft belonging to the International Control Commission with a dozen persons aboard was reported missing today between here and the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

Commission sources said the plane carried three Canadians, five Indians, one Pole and two or three French crew members.

The sources said the plane, a Stratoliner, took off from Vietiane Monday on a two-hour flight to Hanoi.

Commission helicopters based in Vietiane searched for the plane between here and the North Vietnamese border but were hampered by thick jungle and lack of time to alert pro-Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft gunners.

The Communists need 48 hours to inform their gunners of the passage of control commission helicopters.

The commission said it had been in touch with Communist representatives here who passed on a request for aid in the search to Communist headquarters at Sam Neua.

Sam Neua was the only alternative airport between here and Hanoi.

The plane sent one routine message before disappearing.

CRISIS GROWS

Rhodesia Detains Ex-PM

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The detention of a former prime minister known to favor majority rule and an 11th-hour plea by Britain against a seizure of independence by Rhodesia today heightened the growing crisis in this self-governing African colony.

Only a few hours after Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected a British proposal for a Commonwealth premiers mission to visit Salisbury to discuss the independence issue, Prime Minister Wilson sent a cable pleading with the Rhodesian leader not to declare unilateral independence and to continue negotiations.

Today, Smith announced that he would meet formally with his cabinet Wednesday and observers expected a decision on independence would be made then.

Shortly after Wilson's cable was received in Salisbury, the Rhodesian government imposed a 12-month restriction order on former prime minister Garfield Todd as he was about to leave for Britain to take part in a teach-in on Rhodesia at Edinburgh University.

The order restricted Todd to his farm at Shabani, 250 miles south of Salisbury. A government statement said the order was made "as a result of information received through security channels" under the Law and Order Act.

SHABANI (CP) — More restriction orders against European leaders in Rhodesia who oppose government independence plans are probable, former Rhodesian premier Garfield Todd said today. He said he would appeal his detention.

Speaking only 14 hours after he had been served with a restriction order confining him to his 60-square-mile cattle ranch for the next year, Todd said: "This restriction came as quite a surprise to me. Of course, as they have banned African nationalist leaders who oppose them it was logical that I should also be considered, but I never thought they would actually do it."

"I think it is all quite remarkable."

Having thus branded Butterkist as candy and liable to tax, he ordered Clark's Cereal Products to pay the costs of the hearing. And an usher knocked the Sugar Ricles all over the floor.

Clouds May Hide Comet

City astronomers today were bucking "less than 50-50" odds of getting a chance to observe the Ikeya-Seki comet Wednesday morning because of poor weather conditions.

The comet, discovered Sept. 18 by Japanese scientists, is expected to be at its brightest Wednesday and Thursday mornings as it streaks toward the sun at 250 miles per second.

The comet and its 10 million-mile long tail will be visible, weather permitting, between 6:30 a.m. local time and dawn, scientists at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory say.

But weatherman Bill Mackie predicts the southeast horizon will be obscured in rain and cloud unless a storm system due here tonight breaks early.

City astronomers have been unsuccessful in attempts to view the comet for the past seven mornings.

Streaking in from the edges of the solar system, it will make a hairpin loop around the sun during a five-hour period beginning at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

But local observers say it will be too far below the horizon here.

Four Named As Responsible

QUEBEC (CP) — A coroner's jury, after an all-night hearing, today found four men criminally responsible in the arson-rocket killing of four persons.

Found responsible were Andre Lamothe, a lumber dealer; Ovide Boulet; Jean Jacques Gagnon, a Montreal accountant; and Fernand Quirion, another lumber dealer. Lamothe, Boulet and Quirion are Quebec City residents.

Four separate inquiries, one for each of the dead men, came as a climax to announcements by Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner that up to 12 persons may have been killed in an effort by the underworld to block his department's investigations.

Seven persons are known dead, Mr. Wagner has said, and he has described the figure of 12 as a good approximate estimate for the total toll of underworld killings.

Those in whose deaths the inquiries were held here were Almeric Bilodeau, 52, of Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que., Paul Chandonnet, 38, of Sherbrooke, and Paul Brie and Redempteur Faucher, 47, both of Quebec City.

The three others known dead are Maurice Garneau, who disappeared in 1957; Paul Nadeau and Maurice Gingras.

In Quebec, no charges are placed in violent deaths until after a coroner's inquest. Later, a preliminary hearing is held and then voluntary statements are taken, a stage in Quebec legal procedure where the defence can present evidence aimed at getting the charges dismissed before trial.

Bodies Covered With Quick Lime

Lamothe, 43, was found criminally responsible in the deaths of all four victims, whose bodies, covered with quick lime, were found in various areas south of Quebec City last month.

Boulet, 52, was held responsible in the deaths of Bilodeau, Faucher and Brie, while Gagnon was held responsible in the death of Chandonnet and Bilodeau. Quirion was held responsible in the death of Bilodeau.

The first of the inquests lasted more than five hours, with Mr. Wagner himself present during its final stages. The jury was out 30 minutes before rendering its verdict.

Gagnon, under protection of the court, agreed to the admission of testimony he gave earlier this month before a provincial fire commissioner's inquiry in Montreal.

He said he had killed Bilodeau on a deserted road, after having travelled with him for some minutes.

Boulet told the coroner's jury, "I was in Lamothe's car and we followed Bilodeau's car."

"At a certain point, I heard two little noises and when I caught up with Bilodeau's car I saw he was lying in the car, his head on the front seat and covered up with something."

Boulet said that Gagnon then told him: "You have just witnessed a murder."

"Why did you kill Bilodeau?" a Crown prosecutor asked Gagnon, Lamothe and Boulet.

The reply was that Bilodeau had been arrested by the police and had talked about the fire that destroyed his home at St. Joseph, Sept. 30, 1961.

Bilodeau, a painting contractor, had appeared in Quebec City before the fire commission Sept. 10, 1965. He was killed Sept. 18, authorities said.

'To Talk Over Some Business'

Lamothe testified at the coroner's court that he went to meet Bilodeau at St. Henri de Levis "to talk over some business."

Before going, Lamothe said he had taken the precaution, with Boulet's help, of equipping himself with a shovel, a bucket of water and 20 pounds of caustic matter "which I had bought in a Quebec City shopping centre."

"Why the caustic stuff," asked Crown Prosecutor Roch Lefrancois.

"To put on the body," said Lamothe.

Mr. Lefrancois asked who buried Bilodeau and whether Lamothe had given instructions about the use of the shovel and other implements.

"It was Boulet," replied Lamothe. "And I needed him to give instructions, because he knew how it had to be done."

Lived With Victim's Wife

Lamothe told me that he had a score to settle with Chandonnet," Gagnon said. "He told me that Chandonnet knew too much about him and that, in addition, he had lived with Mrs. Lamothe while Lamothe was in St. Vincent de Paul Prison at Montreal."

Lamothe, asked why Chandonnet was killed, said Chandonnet owed Gagnon money and it also was questioned whether Chandonnet was "in" with the police.

N-ARMS FOR INDIA VETOED BY SHASTRI

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Shastri said today India will not make nuclear weapons even though China has entered the atomic club.

Shastri made the announcement in a press conference.

Asked why he made his announcement at this time, Shastri replied:

"This is our policy. There has been no rethinking. I was asked about it and replied."

Shastri, declined to say whether India's no-bomb policy would be permanent.

"Put this question later on."

Blaze Kills Que. Sailor

HALIFAX (UPI) — Fire on board a Canadian Navy helicopter-destroyer, the Nipigon, Monday night killed one sailor and seriously burned three others.

Dead is 18-year-old Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier of Val-Dol, Quebec.

Reported in serious condition in hospital in Plymouth, England, are 21-year-old seaman Roderick E. Read of Galt, Ontario, 23-year-old Thomas S. Pitt, Halifax, and 20-year-old able seaman Curtis J. Joyce of Melrose, N.B.

Hungarian Envoy Seeks U.S. Asylum

LONDON (AP) — The foreign office announced today that a Hungarian diplomat, missing from his home since Saturday, has requested political asylum in the United States and has left Britain.

The foreign office announcement said the Hungarian embassy was informed this morning.

The Hungarian embassy reported Sunday night that its second secretary, Laszlo Szabo, 42, had disappeared from his London apartment.

Szabo, his wife and young daughter arrived in London about a month ago. He is an economics expert.

Szabo's wife and daughter were reported still in London.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said the "United States government has agreed to do what it can to help Szabo and is considering his case."

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and British Columbia governments will share equally the cost of an assistance and rehabilitation program for the province's fruit growers who suffered frost losses last winter, it was announced today.

The B.C. agriculture department will administer the program. No figure of overall cost was announced.

The assistance will be paid to fruit and grape growers in the Okanagan, Kootenay and Similkameen valleys, and the plan has been discussed with executives of the fruit and grape growers' associations.

Farmers will be reimbursed for a part of their loss on 1965 crop returns and will receive payments for the replacement of trees and vines.

ESTABLISH FORMULA

In brief, the formulas to be used in setting the amounts are:

Growers will be paid the difference between their 1965 crop returns and 75 per cent of their average returns during the preceding 10 years, with adjustments made for orchards and vineyards less than 10 years old. Maximum amounts of assistance will be decided after a preliminary review of applications.

To qualify, an owner must have three acres of land in fruit or five acres in grapes and normally receive half or more of his income from the orchard or vineyard.

Payments of $2.50 a tree will be made for each fruit tree replaced in excess of 25 trees and up to a maximum of 2,000 trees per owner.

Payments of 40 cents a vine will be made for each grape vine in excess of 125 and up to a maximum of 10,000 vines per owner.

The announcement said advisory committees of growers will be formed to advise the governments on details as the program is implemented.

Inquiry Bid Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon rejected today opposition demands for a public inquiry into allegations by Dr. Guy Marcoux that Liberal MPs made a "shady deal" after the 1963 election.

Mr. Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, told a press conference there should be no inquiry unless Dr. Marcoux, independent candidate in Quebec-Montmorency, produced "something" to support his charges.

police enforced strict security measures, including a search of all who entered the room.

The Quebec justice department has been pressing investigations of arson in the province, which have virtually always been connected with fraudulent bankruptcy rackets.

The investigations were stepped up last year when Mr. Wagner assumed office. Investigators have said that the arson rings or rings and their bankruptcy outlets have connections in other parts of Canada, in the United States and even as far away as Latin America.

Of the death of Redempteur Faucher, Lamothe testified: "Boulet and Faucher went to join me on Highway 5 in Boulet's car."

"I waited for them in my own car and they joined me in that. But beforehand, Boulet went to get a hammer from the trunk of his car.

"Once in the woods at St. Gilles south of Quebec City, where two bodies were found, Boulet hit Faucher a number of blows on the back of the head and then he opened the door and dragged Faucher outside and went right on beating him."

COULD NOT BURY HIM

They weren't able to bury the body because the ground was so marshy. Lamothe said Faucher had been killed at Quirion's request. He said Quirion had said Faucher had robbed him, that the police wanted him for something else, and that "this was a dangerous witness because one of his relatives worked at Quebec prison and would advise him (Faucher) to tell all to the police."

Lamothe said Faucher was one of his good friends. "We set many a fire together," he added grinning broadly.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies cleared briefly over the province Monday night and temperatures dropped below the freezing mark at many interior points. Another active weather disturbance was on its way toward B.C. this morning. Rain and gale force winds have already reached the north coast and will reach southern areas later today. Cloud from this system will penetrate into the interior and some shower activity is expected there Wednesday.

Hays Illness Major Setback For Liberals

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Expectations of the Liberals to capture a number of seats in western Canada have suffered a serious setback because of the illness of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, the Liberal party's national campaign manager Walter Gordon said today.

The agriculture minister is now in hospital in Edmonton suffering from pneumonia. It is not known at this stage whether his recovery will be sufficiently rapid to allow him to do much more intensive campaigning before voting day Nov. 8.

"This was a 'serious blow' for the Liberal party's campaign plans in the west said Finance Minister Gordon at the weekly Liberal party's press briefing in its national headquarters.

STILL HOPEFUL

Earlier in the campaign when Mr. Hays was going "all-out" stumping the hustings Mr. Gordon had been very optimistic that the party would make several gains—particularly in the Prairie provinces. But with Mr. Hays temporarily out of the picture Mr. Gordon would only say that he was still "cautiously hopeful."

Other Liberal sources said that they hoped the Liberals would pick up two more seats in Manitoba, perhaps two in Saskatchewan and one or two in Alberta.

Mr. Gordon said he was confident the Liberals' popular vote would increase. However, he was hesitant about predicting a sufficient increase in votes for the Liberal candidates to overcome the large Conservative majorities that the Tories obtained in the Prairie seats in 1963.

The Liberal party's campaign manager said it was becoming increasingly evident that the smaller parties—especially the New Democratic Party—will get nowhere in this election.

He said the NDP campaign has not yet got off the ground despite the $1,000,000 campaign war chest the party has accumulated. Mr. Gordon said this was a surprise because many politicians had believed the NDP would make some gains in the election.

Mr. Gordon said the final issue of the campaign had now emerged. It was, he said, clearly up to the electorate to decide whether they wanted the economic prosperity of the Liberal regime to continue or whether they wanted to return to the economic chaos of the Diefenbaker years.

Turncoat Returns

HONG KONG (AP) — Morris R. Willis, 32, of Fort Ann, N.Y., crossed from China to Hong Kong Monday with his Chinese wife and daughter. He was one of 21 American defectors in the Korean War who chose to stay with the Communists 11½ years ago. Willis, appearing nervous and ill at ease, refused to talk to reporters.

major changes in its constitution, and Parliament would be reduced to a rubber stamp.

Diefenbaker said: "The 70-year-old former prime minister said the Liberals are attempting to ride into power on the success of policies adopted from his own administration. He mentioned the devaluation of the dollar and wheat sales to China."

PEG DOLLAR

They said these policies were wrong. Now, they're illegitimate offspring to which they're claiming paternity.

"Were they telling you the truth when they said pegging the dollar meant Canada was bankrupt? Were they telling you the truth when they criticized selling wheat to feed starving humanity in China? Were they telling you the truth when they said 'national development meant nothing'?"

The Liberal government "is using $2.1 million in federal funds to advertise the Canada Pension Plan, which comes into effect in January," he said.

"They're using your money to get you to support them in the election," Diefenbaker charged. "This is wrong."

The crowd accorded him a standing ovation at the beginning and end of his speech. The twin ridings of Fort William and Port Arthur have not returned a Tory MP for 35 years.

holding one in Red Deer. Liberal officials feel they must break this prairie Conservative stronghold if they are to get a substantial national majority.

And they are hopeful in at least two constituencies in Alberta to be visited by the prime minister on his trip.

One considered most promising is the Athabasca seat now held by Tory F. J. Bigg who won by 6,558 votes and doubled the vote of his Liberal opponent in 1963.

It was Bigg's largest margin since first winning the riding in 1958.

The Liberals feel they have a strong candidate in David B. Hunter who resigned as leader of the provincial party to contest the federal election.

The Liberals also think they have a chance in the Edmonton-Strathcona riding now held for the Conservatives by Terry Nugent.

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo

(UPI) — Royalist troops today quelled a revolt in the neighboring kingdom of Burundi in which the premier was gravely wounded and the king was forced to flee the country.

Diplomatic reports said Burundi Premier Leopold Biha was hit by bullets in the chest and head. They said he lay in a "deep coma" and it was "very doubtful" whether he would live.

Preliminary reports placed the toll at six dead and several wounded.

Gromyko Sets Mystery Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left for Cuba today, but he wouldn't say why.

As Gromyko boarded a Soviet airliner at Kennedy Airport, reporters asked him the purpose of his trip and whether he would see Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Gromyko said he had nothing to say and pointed to his watch to indicate he was pressed for time.

They'd Rather Switch

A new twist to electioneering is being staged by Social Credit in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Patrick C. O'Leary, campaign manager for Mrs. Vera Pipes, has lined up simultaneous meetings tonight.

Here's how it works: Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will start speaking at 8 p.m. in the View Royal Community Hall, 279 Old Island Highway.

At the same time, Mrs. Pipes will speak at the Laxton Hall, 3213 Marwood in Colwood.

Both speakers should end at roughly the same time, and then will switch to the other hall.

Regular newspaper readers might not believe it, but some persons still aren't aware of the candidates in the election.

For the benefit of those unaware of this, here is the lineup:

VICTORIA

David Groos, Liberal.

Rev. Clifford Waite, Progressive Conservative.

J. Lloyd Breerton, New Democratic Party.

"And said, 'Here is Rivard and I'."

CONVENTION, SPORT HALL SUPPORTED

The concept of a sports-convention centre for Memorial Arena and Victoria Curling Club complex Monday was endorsed in principle by city council recreation committee.

Suggested 10 days ago by Mayor R. B. Wilson as a complement to a proposed major sports stadium at University of Victoria, the new proposal would allow for such indoor sports as basketball and provide ample floor facilities for conventions having 2,000 or more delegates.

There also could be room on the site for parking more than 400 cars and space for machinery or auto exhibits, all under one roof.

The committee asked city manager Dennis Young to draw up a schedule of priorities for civic projects to give an idea of when such an undertaking could be started.

SIMILAR HALLS

At the same time, staff will be asked to report on similar convention-type halls in other cities.

Mr. Young said the concept would be "ideal for (use of) the McPherson bequest."

But he felt it would be best to wait until the bequest comes due in December, 1967. It would not be worth the cost of additional borrowing against the estates.

About $2 million net will come to the city in two years, after payment is made for Centennial Square projects.

Engineer James Garnett said "all of that" would be needed to do a proper job joining the arena and curling rink.

"It is not a thing we should rush into," added Mayor Wilson.

Local Schools To Be Studied By U.K. Visitor

An educator from the United Kingdom will be in Victoria Oct. 29 to meet officials of the Greater Victoria School District.

Dr. H. S. MacKintosh, CBE, director of education for Glasgow, will study organization and operation of the local school system while here.

Since Sept. 27 he has been travelling across Canada, discussing various phases of education with school officials in the larger cities.

PHOTOGRAPHERS STAGE CAMERA PLACE-DOWN

LONDON (Reuters) — Photographers staged a down-camera strike when the Queen arrived here from Scotland today because they were kept 70 yards away.

About two dozen photographers waited to take press pictures when the Queen and Prince Philip returned from their Scottish holiday at Balmoral Castle.

The couple travelled overnight by train from Perthshire, where they had spent the weekend as guests of the Queen's cousin, Lord Elphinstone.

Police kept the photographers well away from the point where the Queen left the train. In protest the photographers laid their cameras on the ground.

Hard-Hitting Eskimo Joins N.W.T. Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Abraham Okpik, the first Eskimo to be named to the Northwest Territories Council, warned his new colleagues Monday that he intends to pull no punches in his new job.

"I want no favors from you because of my origin," Mr. Okpik told council as it opened a special session to draft a brief to the advisory council on the development of government in the territories.

"I will express my convictions and be ready to criticize what I think should be criticized," he said.

Fluent in English, Mr. Okpik has worked as a translator for the northern affairs department. He now is a liaison officer for the department in Yellowknife helping Eskimo miners and their families adjust to living in an urban environment.

Mr. Okpik was born in a tent in Aklavik, one of the few northern settlements where Indians and Eskimos mingle.

Citizenship Renounced By Indian

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A Mohawk Indian, fighting the U.S. government's attempt to draft him for military service, has renounced his American citizenship.

U.S. attorney George B. Burke reported Monday in federal court here that Brant J. Maracle had taken that position under terms of a 171-year-old treaty.

Maracle said through his lawyer, Omar Ghobasy, that the Jay treaty of 1794 entitled him to dual Canadian-American citizenship.

Ghobasy said that by renouncing American citizenship, Maracle becomes a Canadian and is not required to obey a U.S. military draft notice.

Maracle, 25, was born in Rochester, N.Y., but has lived most of his life in Shawville, Que.

Burke said the U.S. state department had not notified him of Maracle's renunciation, but, upon his request, Judge James T. Foley adjourned the case until Nov. 15.

Sept. 20, Ghobasy had moved for dismissal of a two-count indictment charging Maracle with failure to submit to an armed forces physical examination and failure to report and submit to induction.

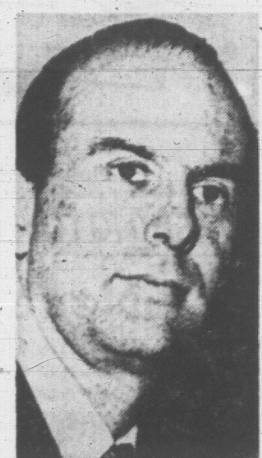

Maracle claims the treaty entitles him to decide freely between the U.S. and Canada.

MILLER

... determined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite strong congressional criticism of U.S. anti-draft demonstrations, opponents of President Johnson's policies on Viet Nam went ahead today with plans for a Nov. 27 march on Washington for peace in Viet Nam.

March organizer Donald Keys of New York says he expects 20,000 to take part in the anti-war demonstration.

But draft board officials across the United States say they have detected no signs of an organized effort to avoid the draft.

An Associated Press survey shows the draft proceeding normally following a weekend of anti-Viet Nam demonstrations and disclosure of a movement to help youths escape military service. Without exception, the draft boards say that there was no increase in the rate of rejections for unusual reasons.

One weekend demonstrator, David J. Miller, 22, of Syracuse, N.Y., was arrested Monday by the FBI in Manchester, N.H.

ENTERED NO PLEA

Miller was charged with destroying his draft card, a felony punishable by up to $10,000 in fines and five years in jail. He entered no plea and was held in lieu of $500 bail.

Congress made the destruction of a draft card a felony earlier this year following similar reported incidents.

Miller and five other members of an organization called The Catholic Worker planned to set up a "peace crusade" at St. Anselm's College in Manchester.

In the U.S. Senate Monday, several members denounced the young men who destroyed draft cards and joined in instructing their youthful colleagues on how to avoid military service by taking drugs or feigning illness as a protest against U.S. policies in Viet Nam.

The consensus of the Senate speakers was that these individuals not only were disgracing the country but were giving Hanoi and Peking a false impression that there is significant opposition to President Johnson's course.

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.-Ga.), chairman of the armed services committee, said the country was paying "a terrible price" for the freedom to demonstrate. He added that "we must find some manner to deal with it."

But he offered no new proposal.

Senator Frank J. Lausche (Dem.-Ohio) called for action on his bill to make a federal crime to interfere with "the performance of duty by any organization, unit or member, of, or shipment or transportation of any supplies or material to or for the use of, any of the military or naval forces of the United States."

Senator Thomas H. Kuchel (Rep.-Calif.) noted that demonstrators had thrown themselves on railway tracks in attempts to prevent passage of troop and supply trains in California. He announced support of Lausche's bill.

Fire Sale Tactics

MR. DIEFENBAKER'S PROMISE to increase the national old age pension to $100 a month from the present $75 is as bald an attempt to buy votes as the campaign has produced. It is to Mr. Pearson's credit that he has not attempted directly to match this piece of political philanthropy, although he now proposes a plan in concert with the provinces which would provide even more than the Conservatives' $25 increase in certain cases, but on a means-test basis.

The Liberal counter offer is not yet clear. What is clear is that Mr. Diefenbaker's open-barrel policy would add $800 millions a year to Canada's governmental disbursements. This is too much, says Mr. Pearson; the country's economy could not stand it at this time.

Everyone is in favor of helping senior citizens and freeing their declining years from the fear of material need. This is especially so since care of elderly folk became a government responsibility instead of a family responsibility as it was a generation or two ago. But our desire to help the older citizens must be tempered by the country's ability to maintain such assistance, and it is not only economic folly but political manipulation of the most cynical kind to promise money for votes, while knowing that it may prove quite impossible to make good such an extravagant give-away pledge.

Money for such purposes can only come from the production of the country, since any pension scheme based on borrowing would obviously be short-lived. The proceeds of production are conveyed to the government's coffers through taxation levies—so that the public pays for pensions just as surely as though it paid a specified premium rate. Where taxation results in higher prices without higher production then the effects of inflation must soon become evident, and such a trend is one of the gravest dangers which can threaten the pensioner, for it will whittle away the value of his savings and his pension dollar.

Along with his grandiose promise of a universal 33 per cent increase in pensions Mr. Diefenbaker ought to explain in detail where the money is coming from and who will provide it. Increases on the basis of individual need, as suggested by Mr. Pearson, may find more favor, if actual need is demonstrated and the national total of disbursement proves to be within reasonable reach.

But any attempts to put Canadians' votes on the auction block, to go to the highest political bidder, should be firmly resisted by the electorate. The government of Canada should be rated more highly.

A Sin to Finance a Park?

CANADA'S ABLE MINISTER OF northern affairs and natural resources places a sort of upside-down value on British Columbia Social Credit's "Get Laing" campaign.

He points out that the attack against him at least proves that the premier, some of his cabinet and at least one of his veteran back-benchers are not his friends. This does not sadden him. Their friendship, Mr. Laing believes, would be too great a liability.

A question must arise in the minds of some thoughtful British Columbians, however, over the result of such a campaign on Social Credit.

Mr. Kenneth Kiernan's contribution to the assault provides an illustration. The provincial minister of recreation and conservation attacks Mr. Laing's offer of major federal expenditure on a Pacific Coast national park because of the requirements which acceptance of such an offer would impose on British Columbia. To develop Garibaldi, the area favored by Mr. Laing, would involve heavy provincial expenditure—freeing the property from encumbrances now attached to it and constructing a paved access road to the park.

But in Victoria—earlier this month, Mr. Laing stated clearly that although he favored Garibaldi, he did not rule out the prospect of acquiring some other area which could be converted into a federal park on the Pacific. He also stated that the federal government was prepared to make available money in excess of the originally suggested $10 million to do the job properly. And he added that Mr. Kiernan had not entered into negotiations on the question.

Why not?

Is it desirable to "get Laing" because he proposes federal expenditure on a Pacific Coast park? Are we against a park developed in British Columbia at the expense of all Canadian taxpayers—and incidentally rigorously protected as a national park against commercial exploitation?

Let's Keep the Ball Rolling

IT IS ENCOURAGING TO learn that city officials are aiming at November 1 as the launch date for the Bastion Square development, although the time-consuming requirements involved in calling for tenders and receiving bids makes this deadline a rather optimistic one.

It is important that the delayed Bastion Square project be got under way as soon as possible, not only for the great improvement which this plan will make in the downtown area, but also in order to maintain the momentum which has characterized Victoria's progress during the past year or more. The new civic square, the paint-up program and the general community enthusiasm for city improvement have done wonders for Victoria. To permit this long-needed spirit to be dissipated now by lengthy waits, shelved planning or official inattention would be to lose much of what we have gained.

With Bastion Square is linked another important project for downtown betterment. The plan for a Broad Street pedestrian mall is an essential part of the overall program, for it will help to link Bastion Square with Centennial Square and provide a proper approach to the new city hall complex.

What are the city's plans with regard to this project? Why have we heard nothing about it lately? Having let go the man whose planning genius made possible much of our admired civic improvements, what is city hall doing to replace this spark plug?

Co-operation in Space

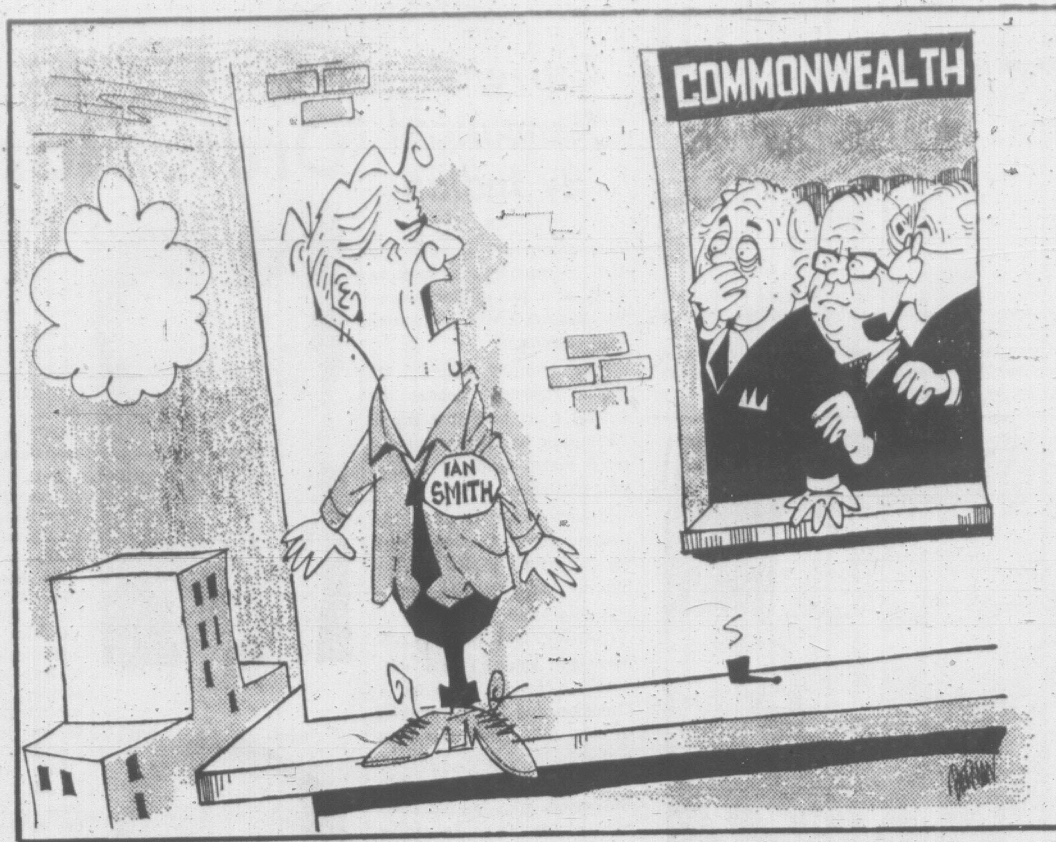

SO LONG AS THE WAR IN VIET Nam continues, areas of co-operation between the United States and the Soviet Union are bound to be small. Russia cannot go far in strengthening ties with the United States so long as American troops are employed to stamp out what the Communist world sees as a socialist revolution in an Asiatic country.

Nevertheless, Russian willingness to promote accord with the West has been demonstrated in an agreement on scientific co-operation in the field of space biology. It is only a small beginning but it is a hopeful one.

Involved is the exchange of information and publication of a book on medical and biological information obtained from manned space travel and other space experiments.

Agreement on the project was negotiated at the recent UN committee meeting on the peaceful development of outer space. Although no details have been released officially, there is speculation that there will be a future co-operative effort by Russian and American scientists involving space biological studies.

This exchange follows up the earlier agreement between the late President Kennedy and former Premier Khrushchev for co-ordinated ventures in space communications and weather experiments. This agreement was only partially implemented and then fizzled out as the Viet Nam situation became more explosive. Now, with the latest agreement, there seems to be hope that a larger measure of co-operation will be seen.

"No... I'm going to jump first... and then perhaps I'll talk with you..."

Next Points for Pressure

A PREVIOUS report, based on a month's on-the-spot observation in Viet Nam, attempted to define the great change that has come over the war there. Briefly, hope of eventual victory has replaced imminent danger of disaster. The matter is far too important, however, to be dismissed with this. Questions must be answered: What is victory in this war? How can it be attained? Are we doing everything useful to attain it?

The winning strategy that has been adopted is based primarily on keeping maximum pressure on the spearheads of the Communist aggression against South Viet Nam—the Viet Cong main force units and the North Vietnamese regulars who have now invaded South Viet Nam to come to the aid of the Viet Cong.

Until a few months ago these units were engaged in combat operations no more than one week in each month at the most. The other three weeks they passed in fortified jungle, mountain or swamp bases, comfortably immune from attack, freely resting, training, incorporating new recruits and planning the next surprise attack. All that is beginning to be over now.

Immunity Lost

Their formerly immune bases are being regularly and heavily bombed. Powerful American strike forces are continuously operating inside the VC base-areas, most of which had not previously been penetrated for up to 20 years.

There is no comfortable schedule, now, of one week of combat operations and three weeks of rest and recruitment. Instead, the VC main force units are continuously on the march, always bivouacking in the open, often short of supplies and frequently under severe fire. Since Chu Lai they have met this grim challenge by evasive action. They have not really stood and fought.

It would be easier for the Vietnamese-American command, of course, if the main force units did stand and fight. As they do not, this has become a war of attrition in which victory must be won slowly, in penny packets. At this stage, indeed, it is foolish to expect dramatically visible results, for the main result is invisible.

The main result is simply this unprecedented, steady and still-increasing pressure to which the VC are now being subjected. A guerrilla movement, in certain respects, resembles a sweater. It will stand pressure up to a certain point and still seem to remain intact. But increase the pressure beyond that point and a sudden, swift ravelling occurs—after which the problem is largely solved.

This swift ravelling, which was the real end of the story in Malaya, the Philippines and in Greece (in Greece, please note, before the Yugoslavs closed the border), can now be hoped for in South Viet Nam at some unpredictable moment in the future. But the trouble is that an area larger than the territorial limits of South Viet Nam must clearly be considered.

Violations

In flagrant violation of the 1962 Geneva agreement the North Vietnamese Communists have not only kept troops in Laos. They have also retained effective control of Sam Neua Province and a long belt of territory running down through Eastern Laos along the Vietnamese border. This is the area of the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

This is crucially important. Mao Tse-tung's doctrine, that guerrillas depend for survival and success on immune base-areas, does not include a clause that the guerrilla base-areas must all be located inside the country under attack. Hence, a sleeve of the sweater—the hard core of the VC hard core—can too easily be brought back into base-areas in Laos, where the knitting together can then begin in preparation for another attack.

Pressure Light on North

This in turn, is the reason for the third question asked above, whether we are doing everything necessary to attain victory. For when and if it is necessary to make the decision whether to try to save a remnant of the VC and to prepare for a renewed attack later on, the people who will make the decision will almost certainly be Ho Chi Minh and his colleagues in Hanoi. And while the pressure on the VC in South Viet Nam is beginning to be grimly severe, the pressure on North Viet Nam is not severe at all.

In economic organization, North Viet Nam is extremely peculiar. The Red River Delta includes just about everything of any significance. The much larger area of the country outside the Red River Delta has the same economic importance in North Viet Nam that West Virginia has in the United States. And except for missions against SAM sites, American bombing in the North has not touched the Red River Delta.

That may not be a bad thing; thus far. The time to exert the much harsher pressure in the North will be during the months just before the ravelling begins (God willing) in the South. But severe pressure on the North will surely be needed in the end to implant in Hanoi the permanent conviction that aggression really does not pay. Otherwise, the whole effort in the South can seem to succeed, yet go for nothing in the long run.

FROM CALGARY

Mr. Diefenbaker Ignored the Socreds

THE density of the cloud of apathy that enshrouds the Federal election in Alberta may be judged by this fact: For the last two weeks it has taken a second place to the municipal elections. And almost nobody took much interest in the municipal elections.

The hottest mayoral election in Calgary in five years failed to lure 40 per cent of the electorate to the polls. Only the Conservatives were interested in bucking the civic election, and their sub-rosa involvement became a minor election issue. Inquiries of the other parties about campaign plans drew the response that they were all waiting for the civic elections to end before starting to organize.

In the West, none of the parties except the New Democratic is normally active in civic politics. The dividing lines between Grits and Tories blur out at this level. But this year in Calgary the Conservatives aimed a one-two punch at Agriculture Minister Harry Hays in Alberta, and their victory in the Calgary mayoralty contest will add confidence to their drive.

The problem here will be to get the people to the polls, not to make up their minds. In his visit to Calgary, Mr. Diefenbaker jam-packed 2,500 into a vocational school auditorium. How many of them were true blue Tories and how many came for the show was difficult to judge. Certainly the party worked very hard to ensure a packed hall but the Diefenbaker magic did not seem to be working.

Mr. Hays' opponent in his last election was a local realtor and alderman. Though regarded as a third stringer, Jack Leslie had the benefit of the strong Conservative organization in a traditional Conservative stronghold and was only narrowly defeated by the immensely popular Harry Hays. This year Mr. Leslie ran for Mayor, and there is little doubt that he had the Conservative organization in Calgary solidly behind him.

Mr. Leslie won the mayoralty last week in a breeze, thanks, he said to the army of 1,000 volunteers who rang doorbells for him. His big victory is bound to give aid and comfort to the Conservatives in Calgary. South who are now going back to push the buzzers again for the Conservative candidate.

Harry Hays' opponent is again a lacklustre candidate. The Liberals seem almost to be taking the Hays re-election for granted. But the Conservatives are making the seat their main target in Alberta, and their victory in the Calgary mayoralty contest will add confidence to their drive.

The problem here will be to get the people to the polls, not to make up their minds. In his visit to Calgary, Mr. Diefenbaker jam-packed 2,500 into a vocational school auditorium. How many of them were true blue Tories and how many came for the show was difficult to judge. Appreciated

The recent full-page article, with illustrations, relating to the history and growth of the Victoria Symphony Society, written by Audrey St.D. Johnson, columnist of the Sounding Board in the Times, deserves public recognition from a much longer supporter of the Symphony Society than the writer. In the absence of such may I express my appreciation.—Thos. Tredway, 1579 Hampshire.

Lenient Law

Since no leniency is to be granted doctors re the city parking bylaw in the downtown area when often their time is limited and valuable, why then is not the same principle applied to those who continue dumping their air-borne garbage on residents and businesses, causing much nuisance, discomfort and loss of business?—H. Gregson, 474 Burnside Road E.

Discriminatory on Creed

I object to the cliché "no discrimination against race, color or creed." Certainly there should be no discrimination against race or color, as no one is responsible for his race or color, but this does not apply to "creed," as everyone is responsible for his creed or belief upon reaching the years of accountability.

"Creed" or belief is responsible for most (if not all) of the good and ill in the world. False creed or ideology is responsible for inequity, wars, oppressions, exterminations and the various inhumanities.

Therefore, it is essential that one's "creed" be correct, and also imperative that contrary creeds be condemned and opposed. All creed or ideology to be correct must correspond with the bulk of the plain teaching of the divinely inspired Holy Bible. Deviation from its clear teaching is the cause of all error and evil.—Mrs. L. Pratt, Galt, Ont.

Preserve Them

Congratulations to Miss Hart of the University Women's Club for her recent comments on the preservation of truly historic buildings around Victoria. Such buildings as Craigdarroch Castle, Spencer Castle, thatched English Cottages, etc., are no substitute for preservation of the real history inherent in the places where we live and work.

Broad Street, for example, presents a refreshing series of period buildings, painted and cleaned up (except for sad neglect of the old Colman Building).

But, again for example, the MacDonald House (the large white one seen down Michigan Street from the park entrance) is an unusually large brick structure over 100 years old, still in use and maintained. Its owner ran the first bank in B.C. But now an oh-so-necessary apartment block is to be put on that spot.

Even the intermunicipal committee's top members have said the Emily Carr house is worth preserving, but apparently they are completely unwilling to take any action to help in preserving it.

Perhaps we will be able to celebrate the 1866-1867 Centennials by completing the total removal of all remaining historical structures!

Let us hope the Historic Buildings Foundation will publicize such matters as these, helping to build public pressure for sensible development and use of local historic buildings.—P. H. Thomas, 1422 Wendle Road.

By JAMES H. GRAY

The Conservative leader's speech was scattered in focus, but did evoke the sort of response campaign managers look for. In Calgary, his reference to the "one Canada envisioned by Sir John A. Macdonald" drew a spontaneous outburst of applause.

His return to the attack on the Rivard issue evoked laughter and mild applause in the right places, but it lifted nobody from their seats. On only one occasion was there any noticeable booing. That was when Mr. Diefenbaker said that a vote for the Liberals was a vote for organized crime.

Two other points made by Mr. Diefenbaker got the kind of response that was wanted: His promise of $100 a month to the old age pensioners, and to repeal the sales tax on building materials.

These, with his one Canada theme, are likely to be issues that will make yards for the Tories in Alberta and the party organization can be expected to use them as major talking points in the next two weeks.

Socreds Ignored

The curious part of Mr. Diefenbaker's performance was the way in which he ignored his main opposition in Alberta. It comes from the Socreds, not from the Liberals. The Socreds must hold all the 14 seats they now have in Alberta, and several of these may be teetering on the brink of returning to the Social Credit column.

In their efforts so far, the Social Crediters are bracketing the Conservatives with the Liberals as tub thumpers for "creeping socialism" and "dictatorial socialistic compulsory medicare." Mr. Diefenbaker sought to answer the Socreds on medicare by plumping for a free and voluntary system administered by the provinces. But the reference to the Social Crediters was so oblique as to be obscure.

Thus there was nothing in his speech for the small "c" conservatives who are the backbone of the Social Credit party. Indeed, there was very little in his speech to which the New Democrats could have taken exception.

The uproar over Social Credit in Quebec gave him a chance to animadvert on the folly of wasting votes on splinter parties, to declaim that a vote for Social Credit was tantamount to a vote for the Liberals. He let the chance slide by completely, in a province where the Socreds may well knock out two or three of his sitting members.

But those are tactical matters best left to the backroom boys. They were taking great satisfaction in getting an overflow crowd out to the High School auditorium. But it was a crowd whose mood, largely, matched that of the electorate—casual, perfunctory, apathetic and polite. It was a meeting at which the converted never got into the mood to do any foot stomping or voice raising.

Looking Back

From The Times of Oct. 19, 1905:

Three dbyfish fishing stations have been established at Barkley Sound on the West Coast of this Island. A. R. Johnson, promoter of the new industry, arrived in Victoria last night by the steamer Queen City with 150 tons of the fish. The catch will be shipped to Japan, where, as is well known, there is an almost limitless market. It is thought these fishing stations may soon compare in importance with the new whaling station at Bamfield.

Caouette Conscripted Bogey Cruel Play on Ancient Fears

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—A note of grim comedy, if comedy can be grim, has been struck by the allegation of Creditiste leader René Caouette that a re-elected Liberal government would conscript Canadians for combat service in Viet Nam.

Mr. Caouette, trying to whip up flagging support for his party in Quebec, irresponsibly and cruelly plays upon Quebec's ancient fears of the English-Canadian majority sending her sons abroad to die for England. Conscripted has been one of the great divisive factors in our history, and for Mr. Caouette to resurrect it as an issue in this election is both ludicrous and tragic.

But in political campaigns there are always people who will believe anything, and so both Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin were quick to deny the Caouette allegation, flatly and wholly. Significantly, in the last few days Mr. Caouette seems to have been having second thoughts about conscription as an election issue.

The Viet Nam war is not simply a conflict from which Canada is abstaining because Canada is a member of the International Control Commission set up in 1954 to supervise the armistice in Indo-China. This was, however, the position taken by the Canadian government when the U.S. requested token combat contingents from its allies—a request to which Australia and New Zealand responded positively.

If Prime Minister Pearson felt he could be perfectly frank he would, I am sure, explain that he opposes U.S. escalation of the war in Viet Nam. His paramount concern is the increased danger of a major war resulting from direct confrontation between the U.S. and Red China. He also does not agree with the U.S. position that it is vital to Western interests that the expansion of Asian Communism be stopped at the 17th parallel in Viet Nam.

Desirable, yes. But not at the cost of the great death and destruction of even a limited war with conventional weapons; far less at the cost of nuclear war.

If Mr. Pearson would voice these views, which I have reason to believe fairly reflect his private opinions, he would immediately lay the Caouette canard. But the realities of international politics require America's allies, London just as much as Ottawa, to preserve the facade of the unity of the Western alliance in its opposition to Communist military expansionism. The fact that this unity is badly strained by President de Gaulle's unilateral policies only increases the obligation on the rest of the allies.

One can assume fairly safely that Mr. Pearson made his private views clear to President Johnson at their Camp David conference last spring. Mr. Johnson was in a towering presidential snit when the conference broke up, and I believe the Pearson-Johnson relationship has never wholly recovered.

Persons who have known Mr. Johnson since his senatorial days tell me he is an individual who reacts strongly against those who disagree with or oppose him. Those who agree with him are on his side, while those who disagree are against him.

One has only to consider the dependence of Canada on the U.S.—which we in Canada like to consider interdependence—to realize where Mr. Pearson's public disavowal of the rightness of American policy in Viet Nam could lead us. It would be rather much to risk the anger of the most powerful man and government in the world just to prove Mr. Caouette a liar.

'THREE MUSKETEERS' FROM QUEBEC TOUGH IDEALISTS

The Economist, London

MONTREAL—The adherence of "Les Trois Mousquetaires de Québec" to Mr. Lester Pearson's team of federal Liberals may do more to bring Quebec into a really active role in the Canadian federal government than anything that has happened in the last 30 years.

The three are Jean Marchand, Gérard Pelletier and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, old friends and colleagues, all well left of centre, all seminal figures in the social, political and religious renaissance that has changed Quebec since 1960.

In the last federal election Mr. Trudeau stood as a candidate for the New Democratic Party, while Mr. Pelletier, then editor of the dominant French-language daily of Montreal, La Presse, supported the moderately leftist NDP editorially, to the great distress of the paper's proprietors. Mr. Marchand, who until this year was head of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (the predominantly Ottawa news well below the reports from Quebec City.

The French-speaking MP's at Ottawa have behaved accordingly. With remarkably few exceptions they were a poor lot, and no one back home in Quebec expected them to be anything else.

In one way the province's renaissance since Mr. Lesage became its premier in 1960 tended to weaken the Quebec presence at Ottawa even further. In the old days the ablest French Canadian civil servants were drawn to Ottawa because there was no place for them in Mr. Duplessis's Quebec. But since 1960 the ablest of them have been drawn to Quebec City by both ambition and idealism. This was the place where very exciting things were happening, where French Canada's brightest brains were trying to forge their dream into legislative and administrative reality.

Finest Response

The danger of Quebec falling away from the rest of Canada arose as much from these centrifugal forces within the province as from the centrifugal forces outside. This is what the three musketeers are rallying forth to rectify. They are making the finest response to the danger of separatism that Canada has yet seen, since they are trying to bring Quebec into the mainstream of national affairs.

They know something about crusades, these three. Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Pelletier were joint founders of an intellectual journal called Cite Libre which was laying the philosophical foundation for the Quebec renaissance years before Duplessis died, and years before the Catholic hierarchy had broken through, as it has now, into the twentieth century.

Mr. Marchand, in the same period, was busy transforming the old Catholic syndicates into aggressive, modern trade unions. They formally abolished their Catholic chaplains into the background, be-

GERARD PELLETIER

Catholic group, did not campaign openly in 1963, but probably leant the same way.

Their decision to seek election as Liberals now is a serious blow to the NDP. But their decision is both more and less than a switch of party allegiance. It is less in that they are by no means joining the party with the wide-eyed enthusiasm of converts. Mr. Marchand, indeed, has exacted a price which is nothing less than the complete overthrow of the "old guard" that has so long controlled the federal Liberal organization in Quebec.

Party Funds

The process has been described as the application of collective bargaining (in which Mr. Marchand is a battle-scarred veteran) to politics. He insisted: successfully, that the party must repudiate several sitting members who had been involved in questionable dealings; and he finally broke the practice of leaving the party funds in the hands of one man. They are now entrusted to a four-man committee, headed by Jean Ostiguy, a young and very successful investment dealer.

So much is known: other bargains may have been made about the formation of a new Liberal government—if, indeed, there is to be a new Liberal government. But the three musketeers came heartily hated by employers who had expected Mr. Duplessis to go on guaranteeing a docile labor force, and are today giving strong competition to the other unions that also operate in Quebec.

If Mr. Pearson can form a majority government after Nov. 8, this trio of dedicated, tough-minded idealists may do more than awaken Quebec to its role in Confederation. They may even infect some of the rest of Canada with the confident spirit of adventure that has already transformed Quebec.

are primarily concerned with something greater than party allegiance or party reform, something to which (after much heart-searching) they have given first priority above both parties and philosophies. It is Quebec's place in confederation.

Never in living memory has the average citizen of Quebec paid much attention to his representative in Ottawa. His main concern has always been with his member in the provincial legislature and with the provincial government which built roads, granted liquor licences and (especially during the Duplessis regime) dispensed favors.

While the Ottawa government could command headlines in the English language press everywhere in Canada, the French papers would play

'Great Leap' Hangover Is Cured; Now a 'Flying Leap' Is Proposed

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—Recent tough talk in Peking about fighting the U.S. Imperialists to the death if they invade China, and the public damning of faint-hearted who want to negotiate peace in Viet Nam, have been interpreted as back-to-the-wall rallying cries to a discouraged and divided people.

In support of this some Pekingologists point out that they would welcome a U.S. invasion because, among other things, it would "unify" the Chinese. Moreover, the Communist party journal, The Red Flag, has admitted that "class struggle still survives in China, and 'pro-Soviet revisionists' who 'want to return to capitalism' have been under fire."

Is China divided? The leaders of China may privately disagree as old comrades many of them have doubtless done so for a quarter of a century—but their ostensible party solidarity has been a model to the Communist world. Experts closely following backings and sackings in the party and government hierarchy have nevertheless noted possible causes of friction.

The old guard who made the Long March with Mao Tse-tung in the thirties are holding on jealously to their jobs, and in consequence the frustrated men one section down the ladder are simply getting older without rising higher. In 1955 the average age of ministers was 56, today it is 62. Of more than 50 governors and party first-secretaries at provincial level, only five have been promoted in the past 10 years (while 10 have been fired).

Four Provinces

Again, cliques account for the fact that nearly half of these second-echelon men represent only one-fifth of the total population. They are still largely drawn from the four traditional provinces: of the Communist guerrilla resistance—Hunan (Mao's own home), Kiangsi, Szechuan and Shensi. Prominent among them are comrades who served with Secretary-General Teng Hsiao-ping in former days in the southwest, and there are other factions formed around other possible contenders for future power.

But the real differences occur between the sectarians and the pragmatists—those who believe in headlong Communist revolution, with all its risks of a heavy fall, and those who think that socialism should be geared to orderly economic progress.

The "Reds" have a healthy distrust for the go-slow "experts." There have been signs that on their side many of these senior specialists in technical and education jobs who joined the party in the 30s to fight the Japanese, rather than because they were drawn to Communism, now form a recognizable group and consistently keep in touch with one another.

With the "Great Leap Forward" in 1958, the sectarians tried to turn China, almost overnight, into a modern, highly-industrialized, socialist state, in which tens of thousands of small local "factories" produced what passed for steel, and the 500 million peasants of China were completely collectivized in huge people's communes.

Abruptly stretched on this Marxist rack, China's tortured and dislocated economy collapsed, and only then was the advice of the pragmatists taken. The "steel plants" fell into disuse, the peasants were allowed to work in small co-operative teams and to develop private plots, cultivate their own sidelines and sell their produce in nearby "free markets." First priority went to agriculture, and like a great, gaunt convalescent, China slowly climbed back on to her feet again.

Russia Paid Off

Today she has paid her vast debt to Russia and is free to export her products elsewhere. Food output, has increased satisfactorily, so that this year China may produce up to 190 million tons of grain. Rice, cooking oil and other essential rationed commodities can be obtained cheaply on the free market. China's export surplus has gone up by at least one-third over 1964, and the output of key items like tractors, lorries, plastics, fertilizers, steel and cotton has risen by anything up to 23 per cent. This is a story of solid success.

Whenever China recovers from some appalling hangover induced by an over-indulgence in straight socialism, however, the sectarians press

Famous Last Words

Thomas F. H. Woodcock 1886-1950
Woodcock was for 60 years a distinguished British theatre critic. His nephew, the writer Chomondeley Nelson, bet him that he would live past 90. As Woodcock died at 94, he greeted his nephew with a cheery: "Well I got past 90—but it wasn't worth it!"

for another bout. Led by Vice-Premier T'au Chu, Chinese leaders are now calling for a new "Flying Leap Forward" to support the third Five-Year Plan.

Horribly familiar at first sight, the new "leap" calls for the "temporary concessions" to the peasants of private plots and sidelines to be eliminated slowly, and for the masses to be coerced once more into big-scale collective farming.

Only Profits

The peasants are interested only in their own profitable little enterprises, it is remarked, and the cadres working for the collective marketing and purchasing organizations of the state have also been guilty of "capitalism." They have eagerly bought from the peasants their private output of major items like cotton and tobacco that would bring the buying agencies easy profits, but have often rejected lesser, home-made items like reed mats, charcoal and bamboo hats, which were nevertheless in short supply.

To break this system of incipient capitalism on all sides, which in many areas has meant that "sideline" business has accounted for 50 per cent of a commune's total earnings, the government wants first to control private marketing strictly, and to rely mainly on the "poor and medium peasants" who are likely to be more loyal to socialist principle (if less efficient than the "successful-capitalists"). In preparation for this Peking has been directing one of the most concentrated campaigns to "educate the masses in socialism" that China has yet experienced. But this time the economic aspect is sensibly left on agriculture.

Rush of the Top

There is, then, a crush around the door to promotion at the top. The pragmatists have now experienced 15 years of sometimes exasperating conflict with the dogmatists who demand socialization at all costs. Mao has castigated the young cadres for "softness," but youth has nonetheless won a measure of temporary freedom from mental and material austerity. The peasants have gained a small world of private enterprise within which they can buy and sell for the profit of their own kith and kin.

All these, in one way or another, are being asked to endure a new turn of the socialist screw, to prepare to make sacrifices to fight a long, gruelling war against the Imperialist enemy without, and at the same time to melt down their hard-won earnings of petty freedom for the common coffers of the socialist collective. This means that 1966 will be a crucial litmus year for the People's Republic, from which the Chinese will either emerge more distinctly red than ever before—or more distinctly blue.

Hazy Thoughts of Old Heroes And Then the Luxury of Sleep

By ART STOTT

TO me one of the off-season joys of Shawnigan has been the solid sleep that comes with the longer nights and the relative lack of nocturnal human activity around our bay. No late visitors pass in their boats, growling the gutturals of slow-speed outboards, nor rev up their ears preparatory to driving home.

A man, no longer offered the inducements of a balmy evening, comes indoors as early dusk brings its chill. He can sit by the hearth and read while cedar and fir crackle in his newly-lit open fire and doze when the alder he has laid on the glowing base burns softly and forms its red coals.

He can rouse himself from the creature comfort of fireside indolence and wander into his bedroom, sharpened by its cold, make quick work of his changing and nestle down in his sleeping bag. Slumber comes as it warms around him, and the drip of rain from the eaves plays its small monotone.

I varied the routine last weekend, reverting to what was once a boyhood luxury. I switched on a small radio, as I lay snug under the covers, and listened to a hockey broadcast. Radio was fairly new in my childhood—and I was a great deal newer than I am now. Tuning in any program brought a sense of delight, be it a "name" band playing "Valencia," or the Spanish fluency of an announcer in Mexico. Distance seemed almost as important as program content.

When we finally became blasé enough to demand something we wanted to hear—not just any station—we had achieved sophistication. Nothing held greater importance to us than hockey. If we couldn't watch the game, hearing the play-by-play was the next best thing.

Nor were we youngsters alone in our devotion to the game and the Stanley Cup-bound Victoria Cougars, recently renamed from the Aristocrats. Adults cocked their ears to the horns of old speakers to catch the description of Frank Fredrickson making a solo rush from behind his own net, or Happy Holmes blocking a shot on our goal.

Hockey was an addiction and, for those who couldn't attend the games, the broadcast was the drug—so much so that the Rev. Clem Davies, with a flair for the spectacular, crammed the Royal Theatre one Sunday for a sermon titled "Happy Holmes (Homes) Saves."

Television and absence from the rink have left me unfamiliar with most of our hockey players in recent years. When Andy Heberton came on the ice for Victoria Maple Leafs, though, I picked him as an old friend.

We have met a couple of times and probably have a nodding acquaintance, no more. Yet to me he represents in hockey what they mean when they call an athlete an "old pro" in the flattering sense of the term. I watched Andy when he broke into the Victoria scene with Bobby Frampton and Reggie Abbott on what we once called the kid line. I've watched him since in major league play.

It seems to me that he has always given a little more than 60 seconds' worth of effort each minute he's been on the ice—an honest workman with high ability, a team man and the kind of player who takes his bumps without assuming that the game is a simple excuse for mayhem and bloodshed.

In the stream of semi-consciousness that meanders through the mind of a man on the verge of comfortable sleep, there came to me at Shawnigan the nebulous thought that people like Andy Heberton might well be examples for youngsters of today, as the Fredricksons, Haldersons, Oatmans, Johnsons, Harts, Loughlins, Walkers and Frasers were for the boys of my generation.

We gave them the worship of young idolaters. They gave us back an image of athletic prowess, sportsmanship and vitality—without, happily, the human frailties we might have noticed had we been more mature.

It seemed to me, as I reached for the dial to switch off the little radio, that the example was a great deal better than some of the sources of youthful emulation today—the off-key song stylists who shun the barber and wiggle, but with nothing like the authority of "Moose" Johnson swinging a hip into an attacking opponent.

Sweden Eases Drinking Laws Amid Forecasts of Corruption

By ROLAND HUNTFORD

STOCKHOLM—Sweden has surprised itself by settling down within a matter of days to a new legality of life; drinking ordinary beer. An epidemic of drunkenness, feared by so many Swedes, has not come about.

In Sweden alcohol has always been associated with guilt and sin, and hedged with restriction and tabu. Dealing in alcoholic beverages is a state monopoly. Until this month only light beers were excepted. You could obtain these anywhere, but tasting only vaguely of watery malt they were scarcely worth the name.

Strong beer could be bought at the state monopoly shops, but these were few as part of a deliberate policy to discourage drinking. The monopoly is influenced by a strong temperance movement. Strong beer is high in price and not so well liked as the beers which Swedes could find abroad. It is 4 per cent or more, compared with the content of the light beers which was never more than 1.8 per cent.

Right for Meals

So a movement arose, in favor of a medium type of beer with an alcoholic content of around 2.7 per cent, which would taste better than the light beers and be right for everyday meals.

There was eloquent and tenacious opposition. Social workers and temperance enthusiasts foretold corruption and misery if the Swedish nation were exposed to the temptation of ordinary beer sold, as its proponents suggested, in grocery shops. Parliament debated the subject year after year. Newspapers chimed out polemics by the acre. And all, as one Danish journalist remarked, over 0.9 per cent of alcohol.

The Danes take product of grape and hop as a gift from the gods and a natural part of life. They lack any compulsive urge to drink, whereas the Swede, hemmed in by restrictions, regards alcohol furtively and with lust. The state monopoly shops have the doleful air of public dispensaries and customers, when they emerge, hide their purchases either in briefcases or inside their jackets. It is bad form to openly carry a bottle in the street.

If a Swede is thought to drink to excess, he can be placed by police or social welfare authorities on a "black list" circulated all over the country, and forbidden to buy any liquor. This system involves showing identification to buy a bottle of wine.

The passions released by the medium beer debate were partly explained by the fact that this system was threatened, and the thousands on the "black list" would be able to evade it at the nearest grocery. But the forces on the other side gathered strength, helped by the breweries, who understood the market in prospect. Earlier this year, Parliament finally passed a bill permitting the production of ordinary beer, and its sale outside the state monopoly.

The press gave it treatment above that of a sensational murder.

Freedom Day

Swedish breweries set frenziedly to work to be ready for the appointed day of freedom. Their Danish competitors prepared to increase their exports. Then, the other day, to the accompaniment of full TV coverage, 12 million quart bottles of beer were put on the market.

In Malmö (the third city of Sweden with a population of 270,000) half a million bottles were sold within 24 hours. A large supermarket opened a special beer tent, and disposed of 50,000 bottles in a day—including 25,000 Danish bottles rushed over the Sound of Malmö by a Copenhagen brewery which chartered a 40 m.p.h. hydrofoil.

But no great orgy has followed. In fact, large firms held heart-searching conferences, with management and workers represented, on whether the new beer was to be served in canteens, and most have decided against it. "We all agree," said one personnel manager, "that perfect sobriety is essential at the workbench."

Exclude U.S. From Europe French Plan

PARIS—An article reported to have been written by the French general staff and passed by President Charles de Gaulle, has urged the breakup of integrated NATO forces, exclusion of the U.S. from European defence and no West German voice in the use of atomic arms.

The article, in the quarterly organ of the Centre for Foreign Policy, was signed XXX—the traditional signature of "kite-flying" articles inspired by the French general staff. The magazine is often the unofficial mouthpiece of the French foreign ministry.

The article said the Atlantic alliance should become a simple system of treaties, and all integration of staff, troops and infrastructure should be removed from NATO.

After taking integration out of NATO the author proposed to put it back into a special European defence force. This would involve a guarantee of West German security by the French atomic force, but would keep Germany's finger off the atomic trigger.

The article was the first detailed outline of what was believed to be French official thinking about the reform of NATO which de Gaulle has been urging for seven years.

Merger Backed For View Royal

Long-Term Planning Said Key To Development for District

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Amalgamation is "a proper step to take" for the future welfare of Esquimalt and View Royal.

B. C. Bracewell, retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, makes this recommendation in a 45-page report which took two months to complete. The consultant was appointed by Esquimalt and View Royal.

In his report to council Monday night, Mr. Bracewell said the study dealt only with financial considerations, "the opinion against such a proposal would be inevitable from the standpoint of both Esquimalt and View Royal."

However, there are larger issues at stake, he said.

Esquimalt, a district municipality, is too small and would benefit from being enlarged.

View Royal, an unorganized district, needs more planning and control.

Although View Royal could operate as a municipality in its own right, heavy capital expenditures in the long run, make the move uneconomic, the report states.

ACTION URGED

"Personal inspections of the View Royal area are convincing evidence that municipal organization ought not to be longer delayed," Mr. Bracewell said.

If the recommendations of the report are implemented, Esquimalt will contribute 75 per cent of the taxing power against 25 per cent from View Royal.

The report recommends a single tax rate for the whole area. View Royal's general mill rate is now just half that of Esquimalt's 24.6 mills.

To overcome, at least in part, the disparity between the two sections which will exist for a time, the report recommends the View Royal taxpayer pay, instead of the present 12.6 mills and apart from school taxes, 13.6 mills in the first year with an increase of two mills each year to 24.6 mills.

In the initial year, for lands and improvements with taxable values of $9,060, the View Royal taxpayer would pay $168.12 in taxes against the present $114.16.

On police and fire protection, the report recommends retaining the present arrangements for both areas. The waste removal section of the report shows that View Royal could receive for slightly less than 10 per cent increase in cost, an increase in service frequency of 100 per cent.

Based upon the adjusted 1965 budget of Esquimalt and estimated figures for View Royal, the report shows a $1,090,031 budget for the combined area.

Council lauded Mr. Bracewell's work but delayed dealing with it despite a move by Councillors George Argyle and Gerald Horne to initiate an early study.

SOME DECISION

Said Coun. Horne, "I don't see how we can just receive and file this report—we've paid a considerable amount of money for it (Esquimalt $1,047.65 and View Royal $289.49)."

"We should sit down and reach some decision."

Coun. James Bryant disagreed. "When we have seen the contents of the report we might not even wish to meet with View Royal," he said.

Coun. Argyle, who was a member on the original amalgamation commission appointed by the provincial government, was pleased with Mr. Bracewell's report.

"A report from such an authority should remove any obstacle from an early amalgamation plebiscite in both areas," he said.

Racial Exclusions Under Study at UN

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—The General Assembly's social committee took the first step Monday in formulating a UN policy statement on the elimination of world-wide racial discrimination.

By 89 votes to none, with eight abstentions, the committee agreed on a definition of the term "racial discrimination" that would serve as a basis for the creation of a draft convention on the subject.

Agreement came on a definition following an appeal by Baroness Gaiskell, widow of Hugh Gaiskell, former British Labor party leader, that, in view of the "huge number" of amendments submitted, the best course of action would be to adopt a text already prepared by the UN human rights commission.

The definition of racial discrimination said it would mean "any distinction, exclusion, restriction or preference based on race, color, descent, or national or ethnic origin."

This discrimination would have the purpose of "nullifying or impairing the recognition, enjoyment or exercise on an equal footing, of human rights and fundamental freedoms in the political, economic, social, cultural or any other field of public life."

This would not apply to distinctions, exclusions, restrictions or preferences made by a state between citizens and non-citizens.

Berlin Area Buzzes With Military Games

BERLIN (AP)—Sources in West Berlin report that Warsaw pact nations will practice the deployment of tactical atomic weapons in manoeuvres to be held in Communist East Germany near the West German frontier.

Travellers on the autobahn between West Berlin and Frankfurt in West Germany said they observed large troop units assembling on both sides of the super highway in Thuringia, East Germany's most southwestern state.

The travellers told West Berlin customs officers they saw tanks, trucks and mechanized infantry on the move. Armed guards were reported at autobahn intersections.

Meantime, the U.S. Army's 6,000-man Berlin brigade began a four-day exercise at dawn in the Gunewald (Green Forest) area of the Communist-surrounded city.

There was no apparent connection between the brigade and the Communist troops taking the field at the same time.

The sources said the Communist manoeuvres will be held around Erfurt and Rudolstadt. They reported that the main contingents would be Polish tank units, infantry and artillery from Czechoslovakia and East Germany, two Russian paratroop divisions, and paratroop companies from the other pact nations, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria.

NASTY WORD SHUTS DOWN COAL MINE

TYLDESLEY, England (Reuters)—A swear word has stopped production of one of northern England's biggest coal mines.

Nearly 2,000 men walked out Monday after a coal miner was fired for using the word to a foreman.

Four months ago another swear word strike cost £2,000,000 ($6,000,000) worth of coal output in 85 South Wales pits. About 50,000 miners were laid off.

Negro Convicts Hold Hostages, Demand Rights

By PHIL BROOK

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Four Negro convicts, two of them crazed by narcotics and all brandishing knives, held four hostages for several hours Monday while they complained to a reporter about discrimination.

The convicts seized a supply of drugs in the hospital at Southern Michigan Prison here and barricaded themselves into a corridor in the surgical suite on the hospital's fifth and top floor. "Talking is what finally got them out of there—no question about that," said prison Inspector Joseph Dembosky, 58, who was held hostage for nearly six hours.

The four were assured their complaints would be investigated and no harm would come to them.

After releasing the hostages unharmed, the prisoners were placed in isolation cells while prison officials considered whether to file charges.

During the siege, the four demanded to see a reporter to make their complaints public.

COMPLAIN ABOUT WORK

Officials brought in Don Durst of the Jackson Citizen-Patriot. Durst reported the four accused officers of mistreating them and said all Negroes could expect in the prison stamp plant was assignment to the "bull crew" (manual labor).

At one point, guards prepared to rush the barricaded area but were stopped by Dembosky who came out in the custody of one convict holding a knife at his throat.

The prisoners, including two serving life terms for murder, released Dr. W. R. Latchaw, 62, after about four hours and released Dembosky and guards Ron Thompson 22, and George Hutchins, 47, two hours later.

Thompson said the convicts alternately threatened and reassured their hostages, and at one point, "two of them got real wild."

"They were all doped up and I was sure they were going to kill us. But the other two guys didn't take much dope at all and they were pretty sane."

Officials identified the convicts as Milton Thomas, 20, Otis Adams, 27, Alvin Shaw, 24, and Edward Whitehead, 27. Shaw and Whitehead are serving life terms for murder.

BACK SCHOOL BOYCOTT

Priests, Nuns Defy Civil Rights Ban

MILWAUKEE (AP)—An ecclesiastical controversy bubbled within a civil rights crisis Monday as Roman Catholic priests and nuns publicly supported a boycott to protest against alleged racial imbalance in Milwaukee's public schools.

Auxiliary Bishop Roman Atkieski, acting head of the Milwaukee archdiocese, had prohibited Catholic parishes from lending facilities to the boycott, which resulted in a sharp reduction in public school attendance in its first day.

The number of absentees tallied 12,665, school officials said, about 7,300 more than the number usually missing from school.

Milwaukee, a city of 765,000, has about 120,000 pupils enrolled in its public schools.

No arrests were reported on the first day but District Attorney Hugh R. O'Connell, who had declared the boycott illegal, said he plans to prosecute boycott leaders and possibly parents.

Bishop Atkieski indicated in a television interview Sunday night that priests participating in the boycott faced "ecclesiastical consequences." But he said Monday the question of possible disciplinary action and the propriety of priests and nuns participating in the boycott are matters exclusively within the province of Archbishop William Cousins, who is attending the Vatican council in Rome.

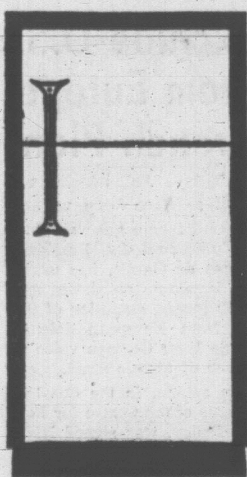

RUSS NERVOUS ABOUT BONN NUCLEAR ROLE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Soviet delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko said Monday a U.S. proposed treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons contained loopholes that would permit West Germany to emerge as a nuclear power.

William C. Foster, chief U.S. arms negotiator, denied the charge and challenged the Soviet Union to resume negotiations in Geneva "as soon as possible" on a treaty "we can all support."

The clash occurred in the United Nations Assembly's main 117-country political committee as it opened disarmament debate.

WILD BATTLES

Gunboat Hunted On Cariboo Lake

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—RCMP said Monday they will continue searching for another two or three days for clues that would lead them to phantom gunmen who shoot at forestry service boats.

They said investigations following a pitched battle on Quenel Lake last week have drawn a blank. The lake is 40 miles from this community 200 miles northeast of Vancouver.

A B.C. Government Forestry Service boat was shot at 30 times last Thursday night. Forester George Dorrans, 45, said he got off 16 shots in return.

Bullets taken from the hull of the boat were sent to RCMP headquarters in Vancouver for ballistics tests.

RCMP here said they have checked every known boat and boathouse on the 85-mile-long lake.

But the lake's 600-mile shoreline dips in and out and police said the boat may be hidden in a small cove.

"We've got our own plane searching the lake, as well as two men in a boat," an RCMP spokesman said.

"They'll continue in the area for at least another two or three days. But so far there has been nothing."

He said there were two communities on the lakeshore, Horsety and Likely, but no body had reported any strange boats in the area.

Forester Dorrans suffered minor face cuts in the Thursday night gun battle.

CROSS-FIRE

He said a man began firing at him from the shoreline and then more shots came from a boat near the shore. Caught in a cross-fire, he took his 40-foot boat out into the lake.

"I figured the only place I'd be safe was out there."

But out on the lake he was attacked again at point blank range. Apparently one of his attackers was operating a boat while a second fired an automatic weapon.

"I guess they must have fired 30 shots at me," Mr. Dorrans said. "I got down in the boat, then got out my rifle and began firing back. I got off 16 shots."

It was the third attack on government boats on the lake in three years.

The first incident, on Oct. 10, 1963, also involved Mr. Dorrans. He said at that time two bullets smashed through his boat's windshield and his face was cut. He was chasing a mystery boat without lights at the time.

Another forester, Ken Crosbie, said he was shot at on Sept. 28, 1964.

JOHNSON SLOW TO MEND

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson probably will require longer to recover his strength and return to peak activity than anyone thought, his press secretary said Monday.

Bill D. Moyers said he does not think that the president's doctors would dispute this. He told a press conference that perhaps it may be longer than six weeks before Johnson regains his full strength.

The president's gall-bladder and kidney-stone operation was a week ago Friday.

Hospital Plan Not Cure-All

Regional District Financing Method Will Not Do Job, Says Oak Bay Reeve

By RON SUDLOW

Elementary arithmetic Monday night was used to show the provincial government's regional district scheme won't be a cure-all for hospital needs.

The mathematician was Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox who came out against the proposal's present financing methods.

He also accused the provincial government of not using all of the two-fifths of the 5 per cent sales tax revenues for hospital development.

Based on current estimates of hospital needs, how owners in the proposed regional district, stretching from Victoria to Sooke to Sidney, would have to provide $6 million in the next five years, he said.

The provincial proposal states a tax "not exceeding two mills" would be levied.

This provides about $500,000 annually at present and would realize about $3 million in five years, the reeve concluded.

"But we need almost $6 million. This proposal would not provide what the hospital planning commission says it needs," he said.

Therefore the regional district would have to borrow another $3 million "and the two mills will not do the job as a starter and our ratepayers should know this."

"It is foolish to think this is a cure-all for our hospital program," said the reeve.

He later pointed out the provincial government "stated it would use two-fifths of the five per cent sales tax since the federal government offered to pay 50 per cent of operating costs in 1958."

"My information is those two sources of revenue have not nearly been spent," he said.

'Taxpayers Are Paying More'

"The taxpayers are paying more than the provincial government is spending on hospitals," he concluded, under the regional district plan, homeowners would be paying for nearly 50 per cent of hospital costs.

"And we should not accept this 50 per cent."

The reeve asked for statements by Health Minister Eric Martin and Premier W. A. C. Bennett to explain how revenues are now used for hospital purposes.

He felt other municipal functions such as roads, parks and sewers could fall by the wayside "if we accept commitments of this magnitude."

Coun. Frances Elford termed the revenues to be produced by the municipalities "unfair."

She added they were not distributed fairly. Wage-earners who were not homeowners would not be paying their fair share of hospital costs, she said.

But councillors Harold Carter and Douglas Watts favored the idea.

SOME MAJOR BOOSTS

Price Index Down Slightly in Sept.

OTTAWA (CP) Cleanliness now, and financial protection against automobile accident and sickness charges in the future, are the biggest contributors to recent increases in living costs.

Compared with a year ago, the latest available official statistics show:

1. It costs $214.90 to obtain the automobile insurance which a year ago cost $169.90.
2. It costs $219.20 now to pay for the prepaid medical care plan that a year ago cost $193.20.
3. And toilet soap which cost 33 cents last year now costs more than 15 cents.

These are increases of more than 25 per cent, 13 per cent and 15 per cent respectively.

The figures don't indicate the costs of specific insurance policies or brands of soap.

The survey is taken late in every month to compile the bureau's consumer price index for the following month, based on 1949 prices excluding 100. The index was 139.4 in August, just a tenth of a point off from its all-time peak. It dropped another three-tenths of a point to 139.1 last month.

OTHER INCREASES

Two other major price increases in the past year have been in children's shoes and the cost of household help. From an index of 151.9 a year ago, children's shoe prices have moved to 169.1. And the household help index has risen to 202.3 from 184.4.

The cost of shelter and of household operations together make up 32 per cent of the total index, and food costs account for 27 per cent.

The August food index meant that it cost $13.78 for a sack of groceries which could be purchased a year ago for $13.51. This is an increase of two per cent.

Union Acceptance Corp. Suspends Dividend Payment

TORONTO (CP)—Union Acceptance Corp. Ltd. has announced that $400,000 in dividend payments on second preferred and common shares due Jan. 1, 1966, will be suspended in order to provide the company with badly-needed working capital.

In a letter to shareholders, President Fleming Edgar said the company has been unable to secure the new capital it needs because of an unsettled money market brought about by the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd.

Atlantic was placed in receivership last June 17 after defaulting on payment of $5,010,000 in maturing short-term notes.

CNR Admits Some Blame In Grain Clog

VANCOUVER (CP) — The CNR admitted Monday it could be at least partly responsible for a grain tie-up here that has caused concern to shippers.

The CPR declined to take any responsibility.

Meanwhile, some elevators were only half full and eight ships waited at anchor in the harbor for grain. Only six of Vancouver's 10 grain berths were loading grain Friday.

The secretary of the Vancouver Grain Exchange, W. A. C. Sankey, said the economy of Canada could be seriously in danger unless the grain clog were freed.

"Overseas buyers are dissatisfied and will seek supplies from other countries," Sankey said.

He blamed the railways for not moving grain to the elevators fast enough to meet the demand.

But a CPR spokesman said the CPR was moving more grain now than in the record crop year of 1963-64. He said 1,200 cars were sitting on sidings in the Vancouver area.

"The grain is here, but we can't move it to the elevators until they ask for it," the spokesman said.

"That's simply ridiculous," said a Saskatchewan wheat pool spokesman. "Each car is billed to a specific elevator right from the beginning. There's no need for grain to be sitting out in the yards."

COULDN'T MOVE

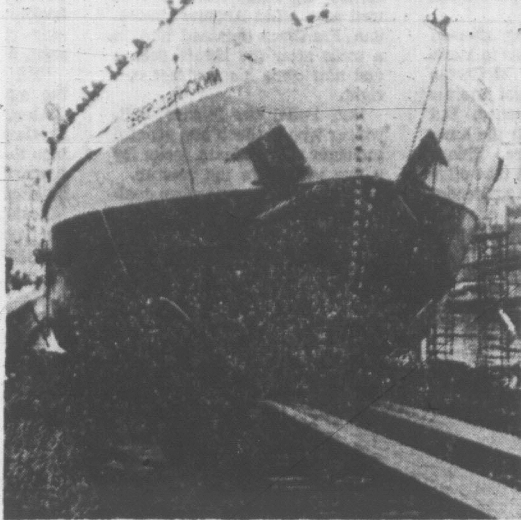

The CPR agreed the cars were billed to specific elevators but said they couldn't be moved unless there was space for them. There was no storage space at the elevators.

A CNR spokesman, however, admitted there had been some delay on the CN's part in getting grain cars to the elevators from city yards.

He said it was largely a case of congestion on the city waterfront, but added there appeared to be a slowdown at times by train crews. The company had not been notified of any specific grievances on the part of the crews.

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Although deliveries to Lakehead grain elevators have shown some improvement during the last two weeks still more wheat is needed to cope with ship traffic, waterfront grain officials say.

Eight vessels were loading Monday and 18 others were either at anchor or approaching.

FIRST OF THREE suction dredges being built by British firm of Simons-Lobnitz Ltd. at shipyards in Glasgow for Soviet Union slips down ways. Scottish company won £3 million order in face of strong international competition. Designed for operation in any kind of climate, the ship's hull has been strengthened for use in ice. Remote controls permit all dredging operations to be carried out without any crew member going on deck.

FUNDS LACKING

Building Problem For School Board

A building problem again faces Greater Victoria School Board—two schools to be built and not enough money.

Cause of the dilemma is that the department of education has refused to go 50-50 on the full cost of the schools.

The board was notified Monday that the department would share equally the $171,000 cost it has approved on each of Hillcrest and Northridge elementary schools.

Low tender on Hillcrest was $189,664 and low tender on Northridge was $184,895, leaving the board with $22,599 which must be paid in non-sharable funds.

REFERENDUM NEEDED

Only way the board can raise the remaining sum is through a referendum to be held later this fall.

The department has not yet revealed what figure it will approve for the referendum.

If school building standards drop any lower, maintenance costs will start to rise, school trustee Peter Bunn said.

He said the department of education is concerned only with the initial capital cost of the schools, but the board must take care of maintenance costs.

It would be "folish in the long run" to cut back on qual-

Subscription Rate Increased By Sun

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun, Vancouver's afternoon newspaper, Monday announced its monthly subscription rate will be increased 50 cents to $2.50, effective next month.

The newspaper said rising costs of operation forced the first increase in its rate since 1958.

The single-copy price of 10 cents daily and 14 cents for the weekend paper is unchanged.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Japan Keeps Tight Rein on Firms

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

In Japan they don't wait for a firm to go into bankruptcy before checking executive personnel to see how they are surviving the storm.

The Japan Times reports the arrest of six former top executives of the San yo Special Steel Company of Himeji—one of them the president—on suspicion of undermining the financial structure of their firm.

The Times, after the six men were picked up on "possible breaches of trust... regarded as a contributory factor behind the company's near bankruptcy last March," commented tersely: "Sanyo's business failure has hurt Japan's economic reputation."

All of which indicates three things:

● The Japanese keep a tighter rein on their business community than Canada.

● They worry about their economic reputation overseas and feel that business failures at home hurt that reputation.

● Newspapers have freedom to comment on court cases which in Canada would be subjudice. On the first two items Japan appears to be ahead of us. On the third we prefer the Canadian system. Trial by newspaper died many years ago in this country and should stay dead.

A brief item from Canadian Breweries Ltd., informs us that Carling's Black Label will be produced in South Africa, Rhodesia, Zambia and Malawi in 1966.

The note also points out that Black Label is now available in more than 60 countries.

People on the back row will please refrain from making rude comments about Carling's B.C. production during recent weeks.

Ford of Canada and American Motors (Canada) Ltd. have announced the thinking behind the price cuts on their 1966 models but for different reasons.

Ford says it has reduced prices from $31.50 on its four-door Comet Capri to $108.40 on its Falcon Futura two-door to "reflect the beginning of our efforts to meet one of the long-term objectives of the Canada-U.S. automotive trade agreement which is to reduce the difference between Canadian and U.S. automobile prices."

American Motors with reductions of $39.50 on their American 440 four-door wagon and $209 on the Marlin two-door hardtop, say:

"American Motors' aggressive price action is a major part of the company's total program to enter the large car market while at the same time retaining its leadership in compact and economy cars. It is part of our plans to attain 10 per cent of the industry by 1970."

The spokesman, David Brownridge, president of the company. It should be stressed that both companies have price reductions on all models on a sliding scale. The two prices for each company mentioned here are at the bottom and top of the scale.

Panhandle Action By Laing

Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Monday he has taken the initiative in starting talks with the United States aimed at providing access through the Alaska panhandle for Canada.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver, he said "we've already made our first moves toward it."

However, he would not disclose the bargaining price Canada might be willing to offer for the access.

"We do have excellent relations with Alaska and Gov. Egan which we have been careful to obtain," he said.

Mr. Laing indicated that the Alaskans, grateful for Canadian efforts to keep the Haynes highway open and clearing of obstacles in a river used by Alaskan spawning salmon, are receptive to the Canadian position.

He also noted that a recent statement by a group of Republican Congressmen referred favorably on the proposal of giving access through the panhandle to Canada and "although they were Republicans, that is an indication of support in Washington."

Mr. Laing said that the panhandle closes off half of B.C. and if direct access to tidewater was obtained it would be a major importance to the development of natural resources "which lie mostly north of Prince George and in the Yukon."

$75,000 Restaurant For Downtown Site

A new $75,000 specialty restaurant at 711 Broughton continues a trend toward downtown redevelopment stressed by Victoria city council.

To be known as the Beachcomber and being ready for opening soon, the restaurant will be part of a chain of Polynesian-style specialty houses in Western Canada. Others are located in Vancouver and Edmonton.

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the city council urban renewal and downtown improvement committees, commented, "I am most pleased to see this sort of thing go ahead."

He noted other new buildings in the area, at Fort and Douglas offer fine office accommodation, fitting in well with day-to-day services to people such as restaurants provide.

For four years council has been engaged in a policy of stimulating the downtown business core as an active place for people to not only engage in business, but to shop, live, dine and seek entertainment.

The Beachcomber occupies a ground-level concrete building formerly used by General Electric as a parts warehouse and wholesale display area with offices.

The restaurant will have seating for 180 persons in a South Seas atmosphere including an 18-foot palm tree "growing" through a hole in the roof covered by a skylight.

Two circulating waterfall sets will decorate the walls for added and audible interest.

Designer-contractor for the job is Lester Gellen, Vancouver.

Japan Interested In Fertilizer Plant

CALGARY (CP) — Alderman Jack Davis says that Japanese interests are studying the possibility of combining with Canadian developers to establish a $28,000,000 fertilizer plant in Calgary.

Ald. Davis said talks were begun about 18 months ago when the city's industrial expansion committee was in the far east. He said a final decision could be made within a few weeks.

Former Olympic Hero Content to Be Minor Leaguer

By SCOTT BAILLIE
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—
Leah and quiet Jack McCartan, who made a smashing debut in the nets for the New York Rangers right after starting with the U.S. Olympic hockey team, appears satisfied now to be a minor leaguer.

"I don't think I am National League calibre," McCartan flatly declared after starting a new season with the San Francisco Seals of Western Hockey League. "I had about five good games out of 11 at New York and then things caught up with me. But, of course, 11 games aren't much of a test."

McCartan, tended goal for coach Jack Riley, United States ice men when they stunned the Russians 3-2 in the 1960 Olympic hockey finals at Squaw Valley.

From there, McCartan vaulted all the way into the NHL and broke in with the Rangers on March 5 that year by making 33 saves as the Blueshirts defeated Detroit, 3-1.

He allowed seven more goals in the late season and finished with a 1.75 average. But then came the 1960-61 test and it was off to Kitchener, Ont., after he had been beaten for 36 goals in seven games and a percentage of 4.91.

"My confidence was affected after some bad sessions in Montreal and Toronto," McCartan said. "When I first got into the NHL, I felt I had a chance. But it's quite a jump from the amateurs to away up there. Things went good at first but that often happens when a new goaltender arrives."

After Kitchener, McCartan played for the Chicago Black Hawks' St. Louis farm club as well as the Los Angeles Blades. San Francisco obtained him in a trade after the 1964-65 season and now owns his contract outright.

Bud Poile, the former NHL winger who is coach and general manager of the Seals, looks for a fine year from the veteran.

"Jack is 30, an age when goaltenders really mature," Poile says.

A well-constructed 195-pounder, McCartan now treats hockey as a business and the star-spangled heroics of 1960 seem far off.

"I'll play hockey as long as the money is right," said McCartan, who had one salary hassle with the Hawks. "Let's face it—I have three children to support, and my wife and I are building a home."

Boston and Minneapolis were the tryout sites for the Olympic skaters before they broke the Soviets' lock on the hockey gold medal.

"We had a lot of good players on that team but no great ones," McCartan recalled. "Tommy Williams, now with the Boston Bruins, was on the squad. And I think everybody else still is associated with hockey one way or another."

So is Jack McCartan—who has settled for the minors so long as he can make a decent living in them.

'Hockey Great' But Carl Still Says 'Goodbye'

By The Canadian Press
Punch Imlach, the man who can tell you when he's going to win a Stanley Cup, seems to be equally clairvoyant when it comes to losing a defenceman.

Imlach four years ago defied the National Hockey League experts by predicting a cup victory for Toronto Maple Leafs and then made it come true.

The Toronto coach didn't do any predicting last summer. He merely acquired Marcel Pronovost from Detroit Red Wings to bolster a defence already considered the strongest in the NHL.

The trade began to make sense Monday with the announcement of Carl Brewer's decision to retire.

Brewer, 27, hinted at retirement last summer but showed up at the Leafs' Peterborough training camp last month.

"Hockey's a great game," Brewer said Monday. "But I've decided to retire for personal reasons."

Brewer denied that his differences with the Leafs stemmed from his contract, but he wouldn't give his reasons for quitting.

Bobby Baun, Brewer's defence partner and roommate for the last seven years, listed several possible reasons for the decision.

He said hockey took a lot out of Brewer, that he was often up all night after a game and that flying to games bothered him. He worried a lot and at one point was losing his hair in patches and had a rash because of a nervous condition.

Just before Brewer left the team, the Leafs made six flights in five days. Normally they fly only to Boston and New York for games in the schedule.

Brewer said he did not know what he would do now.

PENALTY LEADER
Brewer, a five-foot-10, 180-pounder, moved up to the Leafs in 1958-59 from Toronto Marlboro Juniors and has been with them since.

He led the league in penalties with 150 minutes in 1959-60 and with 177 minutes last season. He played 453 games, scored only 18 goals but had 131 assists. He made the NHL first all-star team in 1962-63 and was on the second all-star team in 1961-62. He was also scheduled to play in Wednesday's all-star contest in Montreal.

Baum, Tim Horton, Bob Pulford and Dave Keon remained unsigned after talking with Imlach Monday.

GOALIES HOLD OUT
Detroit Red Wings have yet to sign goaltenders Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen; and forwards Pat Martin, Ron Murphy and Bruce MacGregor. The team reached agreement Monday with defencemen Bob McDermid and Bryan Watson, and right-winger Paul Henderson.

New York, meanwhile, shipped left-winger Ted Taylor to Baltimore Clippers, their farm club in the American Hockey League.

In exhibition play, Boston Bruins, last in the NHL last season, tied 1-1 against Oklahoma City Blazers, their farm club in the Central Pro League.

It marked the sixth time this fall the teams have played and Boston has done no better than an even split, winning two, losing two and tying two. A Boston crowd of 3,053, about half the number that saw the Bruins lose 3-1 to the Blazers the night before, watched Terry Cripps score for the NHL club and Keith Wright counter for Oklahoma City 35 seconds later.

Marty Reports To Leafs

There was a new face on the ice when Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League hustled through a rugged scrimmage at Memorial Arena this morning.

It belonged to Marty Demarais, 21-year-old winger from Calgary.

Demarais, son of former Calgary Stampeder senior star Tony Demarais, arrived in Victoria Monday night.

Also working out was defenceman Aut Erickson, the former National Leaguer still classed as a holdout.

Leaf manager Buck Houle said the team and Erickson "are pretty close" to settling contract difficulties, raising coach Frank Marzio's hopes that the big defenceman will be ready to play in a crucial series with Portland Buckaroos next weekend.

Leafs are idle until Saturday, when they host the Bucks in Memorial Arena. The same two clubs, co-leaders in the league after the first week's action, then will move to Portland for a return match Sunday night.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The ladies continued to dominate the 1965 Pennsylvania Horse Show Monday night as Kathy Kusner gave the United States its second straight blue ribbon in international jumping competition.

The 25-year-old Virginian guided Untouchable, a chestnut gelding, through two perfect rounds to win in a jump-off.

Her second-round time was a spectacular 36.7 seconds.

England's Douglas Bunn, riding as an individual, was the only other rider to turn a flawless round in the jump-off, but he and Beethoven were far behind Miss Kusner in time with 49.8 seconds.

Gail Ross of Edmonton, riding The Hood, turned in a clean round but her time was too slow to qualify for the jump-off.

Kapp & Co. in Tough Ottawa Den Tonight

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions will be trying to improve their playoff positions when they meet in a Canadian Football League interlocking game here tonight.

But both clubs already are looking ahead to another key game.

For Riders, who have clinched second place in the East and still have a slim chance for first, the big one doesn't come for another three weeks when they probably will meet Montreal Alouettes in the Eastern sudden-death semi-final.

Lions, tied with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the third and last Western playoff berth, meet the Roughriders next week in Vancouver. Even if they whip Ottawa tonight, a loss in Vancouver would give Saskatchewan the nod.

But the game, to be televised on the CTV network at 5 p.m. PDT, is a must for the Riders.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair still is shooting for first place.

"I've always maintained we have had the potential to win this year," he said Monday. "We'll need the breaks, but we still have a chance."

TRAIL BY FOUR
Riders trail Hamilton Tiger-Cats by four points, but have one game in hand. A win over the Lions would close the gap to two points and leave each club with two games to play.

The Ticats whipped the Lions 25-7 in Hamilton Sunday.

But the Riders have lost two of their three games with the Ticats so a tie would still give Hamilton first place.

The Riders will need a combination of two Hamilton losses and a win and a tie for themselves and two Ottawa wins.

The Riders' prospects for a couple of victories look good, if they can get by the Lions. They play the Alouettes and Ticats also have a fairly easy finish with games against the same two clubs.

Riders have lost four of their last five games, including their last three in a row.

'DESERVED TO WIN'
"On team effort we deserved to win most of them," Clair added. "But we just ran into a rash in individual mistakes. A key fumble here, a defensive lapse that let the opposition get a long-bomb scoring play—they just killed us."

Lions have had trouble scoring lately, but coach Dave Skrien says none of the faults lies with B.C. quarterback Joe Kapp.

"Kapp has played his heart out," says Skrien, who places much of the blame on his offensive line.

Both clubs have run into injuries this year, but Riders will have corner linebacker Mike Blum back in action. Blum dressed in the Riders' last league game would so honor me," game, but didn't get much work.

Clair also has decided to dress halfback Bo Scott and go with his regular backfield of Scott, fullback Jim Dillard, halfback Ron Stewart, flanker Whit Tucker and quarterback Russ Jackson.

Scott has been hampered by a sore leg and has made costly fumbles in recent games.

The Lions lost offensive tackle Bob Gettling in Sunday's game at Hamilton, but Willie Taylor flew in from Vancouver Monday and will dress in his place tonight.

$6,000 CHEQUE RETURNED

'League Doesn't Owe Me a Dime'—Selke

MONTREAL (CP)—Another era in Montreal Canadiens hockey history ended Monday night at a testimonial dinner in honor of Frank J. Selke, who retired as the club's managing director in May, 1961.

The dinner, sponsored by the National Hockey League, brought together more than 250 retired and active players, officials, coaches, managers and members of the press to pay tribute to the man who had devoted 35 of his 72 years to the league.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, played host to the gathering.

Selke, one of hockey's greatest builders and a powerful figure in the inner circles of the league over his 35-year span as an executive with Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal club, received a $6,000 cheque on behalf of the league governors.

"I was surprised that the league would so honor me,"

Selke said. "Now I feel the NHL doesn't owe me a dime, and I'm giving the money back to you."

Selke, an honorary life governor of the league and a member of the hockey Hall of Fame that he helped build, asked that $3,000 of the money be given to St. Justin's Children's Hospital in Montreal and the other half to a Jewish hospital or charity.

Campbell described Selke as one of "the most successful hockey executives of all time," and said more than 100 messengers of goodwill had reached his office from well-wishers unable to attend the affair.

He presented Selke with a lifetime pass to all arenas in

They drew the shutters on Sandown-by-the-Sea Monday but the memory will linger on for C. R. "Bob" Elliott, the B.C. Jockey Club and Gene Salas.

For them this was a golden meeting. Their cup runneth over.

Without a stake horse in his barn, Elliott finished as leading trainer. For this status, he can throw an extra carrot to Tommy Can.

Four times Elliott sent Tommy Can out and four times Tommy Can could. And did. By far his most impressive victory came Friday. Out of a modest sire (Canorus) by a mediocre dam (Lady Tommy) Tommy Can was asked to go a distance for the first time in his career. He had to contend

Two Million to 'Keep B.C. Green'

With Phillips' urging, Tommy Can put his head down and that was it. Nothing unusual, really. Last year he won three out of races at Sandown as a baby. With Friday's win under his belt, he's seven out of eight here.

This was Tommy's fourth success since Elliott claimed him Aug. 31 from Bon "Tojo" Deyotte for $1250.

The B.C. Jockey Club inhaled $127,011, a weekday record, through the mutual windows. Over the 18 days, punters adhered to the admonition "Keep B.C. Green" by pumping a record $2,060,513 into the totalizer.

Salas, an intense, muscular midger, seized the jockey championship with 20 victories. He didn't make it once Monday but he had enough good days early in the meeting to win eased up.

If you like good luck stories try this one: Don Jaggard, once a groom, then a valet, now a diligent young trainer, had teased five victories out of his substantial but not overpowering stable.

Offered $400 for Commander Joe prior to the second race, Jaggard accepted, conditionally. If the horse was claimed, the deal had to be off.

The "Commander" bogged in the slop but he caught Harvey Greenwood's eye. In went the claim—for $800—and out went Jaggard's deal. Some punters would like to be afflicted with luck like that.

Jockey Club Puts 99 to Pasture

MUTUEL MURMURS . . . Phillips was the only rider to score more than once. . . Besides Tommy Can, he gave sterling rides to Listro Librar and Joe Pap. . . Cross Message, Miss Sierra and Toss Miss finished one-two-three in the non-betting race. . . The B.C. Jockey Club has "retired" 99 horses for reasons of age, lack of performance and infirmity. . . Only four will be 12, the mandatory age for the old age pension, by Jan. 1, 1966. . . Retired were:

TEE TOPICS

BY BERNIE FEDORUK

It didn't take Earl Francis very long to find out that hard work has its own rewards.

The reward for the 22-year-old assistant professional is a golf-filled winter in Florida. And maybe more sweat.

He made up his mind this summer, quite definitely, that golf is going to be his life. Mature in his thinking, the Victoria-reared swinger reasons that hard work "is the only way to fly" to the best jobs.

Home for a brief visit, Earl is Carl Vanstone's assistant at the Idylwyde course in Sudbury. That's where he worked, from dawn to dusk, for three solid months this summer without a day off.

It's not that Vanstone is a hard task-master. But, says Francis, "I had the time, and it was all to my advantage anyway."

Vanstone wasn't the only one impressed with Francis. One influential member liked the way Earl did things around the pro shop, and negotiated a winter job for Francis in Naples, Fla.

Summer in Sudbury didn't afford Earl many opportunities to play golf, but he did manage plenty of practice. Francis is impressed with the results.

"I guess I averaged about two hours a day on the practice tee."

"I wasn't aware I was making any great progress until I had a game with Joe Pryke at Gorge Vale the other day. When you get back to your home course, that's when you find out how far you can hit."

Despite an apparent improvement, Earl has no tournament ambitions, as yet. One-time member of the B.C. junior team, Francis is another in a long line that Pryke hustled out of Gorge Vale and into pro careers.

They may or may not become world-beaters, but, like Pryke says, it's always nice to see them come and go.

SHORT CHIPS: Gary Player soon may change his role from international golf star to that of an international film star... a South African film company is negotiating with Gary to play one of the main leads in its next production, a story about guerrillas operating behind British lines during the Boer War. Player's role will be that of a young Boer member of the band... Colwood's Laurie Kerr came very close to holding out on the par-three fourth in Sunday's monthly medal round at Uplands... Laurie's bid for an ace ran around the cup and lipped out, finishing nine inches away.

Colwood's tough, 405-yard third is going to be a little tougher... The now-covered ditch running near the third green will be opened, as it was about a dozen years ago... Captain Ab Robertson's crew defeated president John Carlow's side by three points in the annual team matches at Gorge Vale Saturday... Holders Dick Munn and Fred Worthington will defend the open buttons next Sunday at Colwood against Ricky Kent and Urban Allen... Dave Zabel and Marty Smith, the new owners of the junior buttons, will make their first defence against Rick Bath and Jim Clapp.

Canuck Gets Yale Posts

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP-AP)—Ken MacKenzie, 31, Canadian-born former left-hander who pitched with a half-dozen National League clubs, was named Monday new freshman baseball and hockey coach at Yale University.

MacKenzie, a former pitching star at Yale before his graduation in 1956, succeeds frosh baseball coach Ken Raynor, who resigned, and Dick Gagliardi, who moved up to varsity hockey coach.

MacKenzie was born in Gore Bay, Ont. In the major leagues he pitched for Milwaukee, New York Mets, San Francisco, St. Louis and Houston.

BARITONE HOME

Vaudeville Dying,
Says Jock DunbarDUNBAR
... grand time

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Television has almost killed the vaudeville theatre in Britain. They prefer the American style of cabaret show—drinking and gambling along with singing and dancing.

Authority for this is popular Victoria baritone John Dunbar, who returned here Monday afternoon after three years of concert, TV, radio and recording work in England and Scotland.

"Audiences over there are no longer content to sit in a plush seat watching the stage, as we used to. They want to sit at tables, loaded with food and drink, while they enjoy the show."

John (or Jock) isn't upset about this.

"They gave me a grand time in England and Scotland," he said. "I had every encouragement to stay over there—yet I decided the best place for a man with a family was good old Victoria."

MAKES RECORD
Jock delayed his departure in order to make a record in London in which he combines Scottish with Western songs.

"All you need over there is a hit record," he said, "and lots of people told me I was capable of making one."

The hoped-for hit record, made by Pye Records of London, will be distributed across Canada and the United States at the end of this month.

"I've put everything into it," said Jock. "I can do no more."

He returned to Canada aboard the luxury liner Queen Mary and was featured with the British entertainer Jessie Matthews in a night cabaret.

"The passengers were most wonderfully appreciative," Jock said, "and I was offered a return passage on the same basis. But I was set on returning to Victoria."

Discussing the American influence on Britain, he said the upper-crust Britishers seek entertainment in high-priced cabarets while working men enjoy the same kind of entertainment in clubs sponsored by brewers.

"The brewers are only too happy to put on cabarets for the workers so long as the workers are buying their beer."

"And that's the answer—the British people want refreshment with their entertainment."

Jock is looking forward to giving a recital in the McPherson Playhouse Nov. 21, sponsored by Victoria Musical Arts Society.

"Victoria treated me well," he says, "and I would never have left but for an offer to sing on Scottish TV and radio."

"It was great experience—but I'm glad to be back."

Playhouse Date For Navy Band
The annual HMCS Naden band concert in aid of the Armed Services Centre, will be held this year in the McPherson Playhouse.

An innovation will be the staging of the concert on two successive nights—Nov. 4 and 5—instead of the single performance heretofore given at the Royal Theatre.

Lieut. Tudor Jones will conduct and members of the band will appear as soloists.

Guest artist will be mezzo-soprano Norma McCurdy, who was featured during the summer in the Butchart Gardens show.

MUSICIAN DECLARES

'Good Piano Needed
For McPherson Use'

The time has come for generous Victorians to donate a good piano to their civic playhouse.

The one used recently in McPherson Playhouse is "worse than bad," according to pianist Dr. P. M. H. Edwards, of the University of Victoria.

He wrote to city manager Dennis Young offering to assist recreation and community services committee in the selection of a new piano. Those used for recitals since the theatre opened in February have been rented.

"There are dozens of wealthy people in Victoria and if some of them were approached by the right people, I am positive that one or more of them would contribute," Dr. Edwards said.

"It need not be an anonymous gift, so long as it is a gift. The city needs a good instrument if it is to attract good artists."

"We have spent much money on sports, let us now spend a relatively small amount on the arts."

Dr. Edwards said if a used grand piano were offered, "this could be even better than a new one, because new ones need to be played-in for a year before they feel comfortable under the fingers."

The committee, which met Monday, has considered the prospect of paying anywhere from $2,000 to $12,000 for a concert-size grand piano.

At the moment a survey of possible backstage space is being carried out.

AWAIT REPORT
Members agreed to defer discussion until the report is made. "Do you not consider that the purchase of a really good concert grand should come very high in the priority list?" Dr. Edwards wrote.

AL CAPONE

FAMILY

LOSES SUIT

WASHINGTON (AP)—The widow and son of Al Capone have lost a U.S. Supreme Court action in which they claimed the television series "The Untouchables" invaded their privacy and caused them "extreme shame and humiliation."

They sought $6,000,000 from the series' producers. The high court did not give its reasons on the Capones' appeal from rulings by the U.S. District and Circuit courts in Chicago.

In finding against the Capones, the circuit court said fictionalization and even distortion of a dead man's career do not invade the privacy of his relatives or friends.

The case is of interest because it is one of several now bubbling to the top of the court system on the still-developing principle of privacy.

Germany Grounds Jets
BONN (Reuters)—West Germany's 650 American-designed F-104G Starfighter jets have been grounded while a special commission investigates possible faults in their hydraulic steering systems.

A defence ministry spokesman said Monday night this "precautionary safety measure" has nothing to do with press claims that at least 22 of the jets have crashed this year. The F-104 fleet was grounded earlier this year when an undercarriage fault was found. The defence ministry has denied press claims.

World's Fair in New York
Ends Up With Big Deficit

NEW YORK (UPI)—The 1964-65 New York world's fair closed Monday with an admission to financial failure.

Formal closing ceremonies for the billion dollar extravaganza were minimal—flag lowering at sunset, a fireworks display and the booming of an old Swedish cannon.

Robert Moses, New York's controversial master builder who had guided the fair's destinies from its inception in the late 1950s, delivered a brief farewell address.

"I have seen Flushing Meadows rise from ash dump to glory," he said, his voice issuing from loudspeakers in the fair's flower-topped street lamps. Admitting a "touch of sadness" at the closing, he looked ahead to a permanent park-planned for the site.

But at the same time Moses announced, as president of the World's Fair Corp., that the fair had only $10 million instead of the $30 million originally promised to devote to demolition and creation of the park.

LOSE MONEY
Holders of 8 per cent promissory notes totaling almost $30 million were told they would lose nearly half their investment.

The announcements were not unexpected after months of controversy over the fair's finances.

The problem was lagging attendance throughout the two-year run of the glittering international exposition.

The final day's paid attendance of 446,953 set a new one-day record and the weekend total of 889,977 also was a new high, but they came too late.

The fair wound up with a two-year total of $1,607,037, more than 10 million above the 1958 Brussels Fair. Moses had expected to end on 70 million.

Two accidents injured 20 persons. At least seven persons suffered minor injuries when a car of the miniature Long Island Railroad train derailed and dumped scores of children and their parents on the ground. A three-wheel motor scooter, knocked another man down and he was rushed unconscious to nearby Elmhurst Hospital.

THE SECRET OF MY SUCCESS
Satirical Comedy
Royal Theatre

Believe in People. Have Faith in Mankind. Never Search for Evil.

A naive English policeman (James Booth) puts this beautiful precept into practice and makes many friends thereby; but, as the story shows, it is disastrous to the cause of criminal investigation.

Aglow with brotherly love, Constable Booth inadvertently destroys the evidence against a young widow (Stella Stevens), who has murdered her husband and hidden the body in a closet.

He is fired by Inspector Lionel Jeffries but, before the dismissal can be filed in triplicate, his mother (Amy Dolby) digs up a skeleton in the cupboard of a high official and Constable Booth is transferred to another district—with the rank of inspector!

Inspector Booth loses no time in bugging another case. This time a body is found on the estate of a German baron and baroness living in rural England. They are suspected of breeding huge man-eating spiders—and the spiders themselves suggest they are.

The beautiful baroness (Honor Blackman) plays so successfully on the chivalrous feelings of Inspector Booth that once again the cause of justice is thwarted.

By now Scotland Yard is pretty chuffed off with the inspector. It can't prove anything against him but gladly accepts a suggestion that he be transferred to a small South American republic as liaison officer to the president.

Aided by his wily, do-good mother, ex-inspector Booth blunders his way from one promotion to another until (by a freakish chain of circumstances) he becomes president of a revolutionary government.

The story by Andrew L. Stone, who also directed the film, is deeply etched in satire and contains some highly amusing if fantastic sequences.

The three glamor girls—Shirley Jones, Stella Stevens and Honor Blackman—provide most of the pictorial appeal, but Lionel Jeffries almost steals the show by playing four different people.

He is in turn the police inspector, the German baron, the president of a South American republic and an aging English earl with a past.

Though recognizable in all four roles, he manages to give an individual twist to each.

DIVORCES
Divorces were granted in Victoria Divorce Court Monday to: Bernice M. Simpson, 715 Catherine Street, Victoria, from Ralph W. Simpson, Humpback Road, Glen Lake. They were married in Victoria in 1957.

'B.C. Can't Keep Accepting Abuse'

MRS. PIPES
... "B.C. ignored"

Star Newsman Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Norman Phillips, 49, Ottawa bureau chief for the Toronto Star, died of a heart attack in hospital Sunday night.

Mr. Phillips, appointed to the Ottawa post in 1963, had been under heavy pressure in the current federal election campaign and had returned to Ottawa only a few days ago after accompanying party leaders on the hustings.

In April, 1960, he was jailed for three days in South Africa and then expelled from the country for filing what the South African government called "violently prejudiced" and untrue dispatches on racial strife there.

Later that year Mr. Phillips wrote a book, The Tragedy of Apartheid, about racial segregation. It was banned by the South African government.

Real estate saleswoman Mrs. Vera Pipes Monday urged voters to send her to Ottawa to do "something good for British Columbia."

Mrs. Pipes seeks the Esquimalt-Saanich seat held in the last parliament by Conservative George Chatterton.

She spoke to an audience of 16 men and women at Lake Hill Hall before leaving for a campaign meeting at Metehosin.

"Make sure you are going to get for your vote something that is going to do your province some good. We can't keep accepting this abuse," Mrs. Pipes said.

B.C. IGNORED

She said federal governments have ignored B.C.

Referring to the old line parties, the candidate said, "It is time we stopped having Tweedle-dum and Tweedle-dee, one on and one off, with us in the middle."

"We are not second-class citizens in British Columbia; we are part of Canada."

Mrs. Pipes wants:

- A realistic tariff approach, without dumping of foreign imports and without decline of private enterprise which is "important to us as Canadians."

- A ministry of youth that will adopt B.C. practices for the care of neglected children.

- Something to be done about the national debt, amounting to $7,000 per person, or $19 billion.

- Abolition of discriminatory railway rates and continuation of federal communication lines between the Mainland and Vancouver Island, perhaps by bridging.

- More concern for veterans, the aged, farmers and children.

Saanich M.L.A. John Tisdalle, speaking on Mrs. Pipes' behalf, said whichever of the old line parties is returned, "we will have continuation of the debacle."

Deduction Talks Set for Pension

Oak Bay council Monday night decided to meet municipal employees to discuss payroll deductions for the Canada Pensions Plan.

The deduction start Jan. 1, 1966.

Until a Union of B.C. Municipalities brief is put to the legislature next year, employees will be deducted for superannuation and the pension plan.

Original plans were to add the national pension plan deductions to present superannuation payments.

SECOND THOUGHTS

But councillors have had second thoughts as senior governments have not followed suit.

In other business, council:

Agreed to test waters of Spoon Bay in the Uplands area for sewage effluent when tides permit next spring.

Referred to zoning and planning committee a protest by W. H. M. Haldane, 895 Fort St., against a proposal to erect a six-storey apartment on Prospect Pl.

Endorsed Joint Effort For Fostering (JEEFF) program week Oct. 24-30 which has been proclaimed by the provincial government.

Authorized the police commission to spend $305 from recent sale of old police revolvers to purchase new ones, and

Students On Tear In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A melee in midtown Toronto early Sunday ended a wild weekend for hundreds of university and high school students who clashed with police. Eleven were arrested.

It started when spectators tangled with police at Varsity Stadium following University of Toronto-Queen's University football game. Two students were carried off the field in handcuffs.

Saturday night students flowed into the midtown Yorkville coffeehouse district and by midnight a crowd of 500, jeering and chanting, challenged police. Seven were taken away in police vans.

On nearby Avenue Road, an unidentified man grabbed a policeman's revolver from his holster and held at bay part of a crowd trying to stop the officer from arresting a youth for fighting. Two youths were arrested.

Socred Speakers Back U.S. Policy in Viet

Robert Jensen and his youthful peace group ran into an unexpected analysis of the Viet Nam situation Monday night.

After picketing the opening of Frank Hunter's election campaign meeting at Oak Bay Junior High the peace workers sat quietly through two addresses until the question period.

One of them asked Mr. Williston if he was in favor of supporting U.S. actions in Viet Nam.

He received the unexpected lesson in history and international policy in answer.

TWO SIDES

"I think you will agree that there are two sides to any question," Mr. Williston replied. "I am sure that if the Communists showed a willingness to withdraw, the United States would, too."

"It is one thing to suggest that the United States walk out, another to provide an alternative to that action. And I suggest you have no alternative."

"What you should do is stand back and think a bit. If the United States withdrew from Viet Nam the next step would be Australia."

"I think we all want peace, but surely not the terrible consequences a walk-out of Viet Nam would bring."

NUCLEAR ARMS

Mr. Hunter was asked for his stand on nuclear warheads in Canada.

"They should be kept here for use in our own defence," Mr. Hunter replied. "In this day and age, unfortunately, we need such weapons for our own protection just as we need policemen to protect us in our communities."

Saanich Delays Vote Decisions

Sewers, Fireworks, Parks Subjects of Metro Debate

Saanich taxpayers will vote on hospital taxation in December, but whether or not they will vote on other functions of a regional board will be left to future council meetings.

Councillors discussed the proposed semi-metro plan Monday night, but tabled it after half an hour of inconclusive debate on three functions of the board.

They are the sewer survey, now under way in co-operation with all municipalities and the provincial government; fireworks controls; and regional parks.

Coun. Harold Todd and Gregory Cook favored all four functions being voted on by property owners.

But Reeve Hugh Curtis pointed out the sewer survey has already been agreed to by Saanich, that standard firework controls are largely in effect and that the municipality, Victoria and Oak Bay have formed a regional parks authority.

"I know what you mean, but the people ought to have the choice," said Coun. Todd. "I don't think they'll turn them down."

LOCAL SHARE

Reeve Curtis said the key to the whole subject is whether or not Saanich agrees to pay the local share of hospital costs through a mill levy rather than by voluntary donations.

Council has previously agreed to put this function to a vote. Hospital officials have said a fairly-based mill levy is the only way to ensure adequate hospitals because voluntary donations fall short of the mark.

Coun. Leslie Passmore said he favored sewers and parks being handled regionally, but not hospitals through municipal taxation.

Hospitals were not the obligation of homeowners but of every citizen. Social services and education should be paid by the senior governments.

The future of the Rithet swamp, a natural wonderland, and surrounding property at Royal Oak will be discussed by council and developers at a private meeting next Monday.

A 750-acre housing estate is planned for the area surrounding, but not including, the swamp.

A point of confusion was cleared up, with Halloween looming.

Under the municipal bylaw, fireworks are allowed but a permit must be granted for firecrackers.

Fireworks are non-explosive while firecrackers are explosive.

The first step towards beautification of the Saanich side of the Gorge was taken by council.

Following its earlier approval of the idea, the engineering company of Willis and Cunliffe will be asked to prepare a report for submission to the Capital Improvement District Commission.

The report will be about shoreline improvement between the old Gorge Boathouse and Craigflower Bridge.

Another step in establishing a branch library for Saanich at the Town and Country Shopping Centre was taken by council.

It was agreed to sign a lease subject to approval by the municipal solicitor of the document. Money was provided in the library budget for the branch earlier this year.

Tenders ranged from $435 from Stockers to $1,282 from Dowells for moving municipal equipment from the present hall to the new one on Vernon Avenue. Council accepted the low bid, one of five.

Night School Enrolment Hits 5,200

Student registration for adult education courses offered by the Greater Victoria School Board has topped last year's figures by about 600.

Registration for the 1965-66 is 5,271 and $180,000 in fees have been collected. Courses added to the program this year include telecommunications management accounting, gas welding, data processing, dental assistant, how to use a slide rule, blue-print reading and heat treatment of steel.

Insufficient enrolment caused nine classes to be cancelled and eight were doubled because of over-crowding. In addition, two full-time classes are being held in the adult education division in both an academic Grade 12 course and a Grade 13 course. One full-time commercial class is also in operation this season.

presented Monday night to the Greater Victoria School Board. The petition, signed by about 120 persons, went first to the Saanich police department.

It also objected to student parking on both sides of narrow streets surrounding the school.

The board's buildings and grounds committee referred the matter back to Saanich municipal officials, saying parking and joy-riding on the streets "is probably a matter for the police."

They also said the school board does not provide parking areas for students at any school.

HEAVY PARKING

Grievances listed on the petition included inconvenience to delivery trucks from heavy parking, possible interference with fire trucks, and the fact that residents in the Mt. View area are often blocked out of their own driveways by students' cars.

The school board offered to meet Saanich council to discuss the matter.

CPA Jet Sets Trip Record

VANCOUVER—A new trans-Pacific flight record from Tokyo to Vancouver was established Sunday by a Canadian Pacific Airlines super DC-8 jetliner. The big jet, the Empress of Montreal, covered the 5,000-mile distance in seven hours, five minutes non-stop.

Previous record was seven hours and eight minutes set in September, 1964, also by a CPA-DC-8 jet.

Board Backs S. Viet Film

South Viet Nam is the topic of a feature-length film to be shown Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior High school auditorium.

It is the first of a seven-movie series, 'The World Around Us', to be presented this season by the adult education department of the Greater Victoria School Board.

Cameraman and narrator is Kenneth Armstrong, American journalist and TV news director, who recently spent a year in Southeast Asia.

The school board is inviting Victorians to "tour the world from an armchair" by attending the fifth film series dealing with geography, history and travel.

Other films in the series are: Arab World, Nov. 26 and 27; Puerto Rico, Jan. 21, 22; India, Monsoon Mosaic, Feb. 11, 12; Africa's Vanishing Wilderness, March 11, 12; Trekking the Tibetan Border, April 15, 16; Mexico's California, May 6, 7.

NO GRADES IN REPORTS FOR PARENTS

Parents of Greater Victoria youngsters in grades one and two will have extra help assessing first report cards of the year.

Written comments on children's progress will be used entirely on October reports. However, letter grades will appear as usual in subsequent reports.

The change has been made because it was considered too difficult for teachers to sum up a child's progress during the first two months.

Parents of grade one and two youngsters are also being supplied with information on revised curriculum in the first two grades, and are being encouraged to come to the schools to meet the teachers.

ECONOMIC BOOM BLAMED

Naval Reserve Short of Allotment

By RON SUDLOW

The Royal Canadian Naval Reserve is "severely hindered" short of its national allotment of 3,000 men, Commodore Gordon Edwards said in an interview here Monday. The recently-appointed commanding officer of Canada's 16 naval divisions is on a cross-country tour of reserve units.

Building Go-Ahead At Simon Fraser

The provincial cabinet Monday gave Simon Fraser University the green light for its 6.5 million "phase two" construction program.

It granted the university's request for permission to spend up to $6,500,000 for major additions to its academic quadrangle and science complex.

Monday night he paid an informal visit to HMCS Malahat, Victoria's reserve division. He will inspect the unit next spring.

Commodore Edwards said he hoped the reserve divisions will be up to full complements when he makes his inspection tour.

RESERVE STRENGTH

Although reserve strength was cut back by more than 1,000 by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, reserve sailors play an important role when Canada is involved in minor engagements such as Cyprus, Pakistan, and the Gaza Strip.

And when prolonged emergencies arise, Canada will rely on reserves to fill vacancies at home, he added.

The naval reserve program is designed to produce "mission oriented" seamen.

Commodore Edwards used as an example recent exercises conducted by reservists here which called for control of merchant shipping under simulated wartime conditions.

He said he wanted his naval divisions to be "young military organizations" balanced by the experience of retired naval officers who served in wartime.

He said reserve training offers self-discipline, summer employment, cruises and "an opportunity to stand by one's country."

Reserve cruises to Europe and South America have been laid on for 1966.

Commodore Edwards blamed

the present deficiency in Canada's reserve strength on the country's economic boom.

Young men are not looking for the extra dollars they can earn participating in reserve summer training and winter drill, he said.

Harkness Still Differs With Dief Policy

Re-Election Bid Personal Fight

By DAN POWERS

CALGARY (CP) — Douglas Harkness, a key figure in the last Conservative government, is fighting the Nov. 8 general election as a friend who still has some differences with his party's chief.

Mr. Harkness, who resigned as defence minister in 1963 over nuclear policy and personal differences with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says these differences are not the source of support he commands in Calgary South.

"My support stems from the fact that I have been a representative of the riding for the last 20 years and have wide personal acquaintance with many persons in the riding," he said in an interview. "A very large number are ex-pupils of mine."

CALGARY (CP) — Douglas Harkness Monday opposed compulsory medical care insurance in a speech to members of the Petroleum Landmen's Association.

Mr. Harkness, former defence minister, said the proposed Liberal medical care insurance scheme "crosses the line between social welfare and socialism."

Mr. Harkness and Mr. Diefenbaker met at an airport here Oct. 15 as the Conservative chief prepared to wind up an Alberta visit. It was their first appearance together since the 1963 crisis.

Mr. Harkness said later: "I would say that we got together as friends although we still differ on some matters of policy."

Mr. Harkness did not attend the Diefenbaker rally in Calgary because of a speaking engagement elsewhere.

Mr. Harkness, former farmer, high school teacher and a George Medal winner for military bravery, was elected in Calgary East in 1945 and in Calgary North in 1952 following redistribution.

He scored an easy victory in 1963 when he stood for nuclear arms for Canada, a position opposed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

Winning the election, not past differences, is the important thing, he says. He will rely on past strategy, "canvassing, personal contact, door-to-door calls by myself," speaking engagements at clubs and coffee parties.

Mr. Harkness, 62, was born in Toronto but came West and graduated from the University of Alberta with a bachelor of arts degree. He farmed and taught school in the Red Deer area and moved to Calgary in 1929 where he was a high school teacher in the 1930s for 10 years. A reserved, almost shy man, he is married and has one son.

A lieutenant-colonel in the army during the Second World War, he won the George Medal in the rescue of men trapped aboard a torpedoed ship bound for Sicily. He became defence minister in October, 1960, after holding posts as northern affairs and agriculture minister.

In the 1963 election, he piled up 21,834 votes against 15,256 for Social Credit's Bob Simpson, now a member of the Alberta legislature. Liberal Marion Law had 14,310 and the NDP's Everett Baldwin had 4,773.

This election he faces G. Nelson Weston, a Calgary insurance man and former Social Credit organizer in Ontario. Liberal Adrian Berry, Calgary alderman and trust company executive, and NDP candidate Ian Adam, University of Alberta, Calgary, professor.

Fisher Sees Viet Force From Canada

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Douglas Fisher, New Democratic party House leader in the last Parliament, said Monday he believes the Liberal government has a secret pact or agreement with President Johnson to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam after the Nov. 8 federal election.

In an interview with radio station CJLX, Mr. Fisher said he knows for a fact the Liberal government drafted a plan for sending communication and transportation personnel to Viet Nam.

He said the draft was on Defence Minister Paul Hellyer's desk in August. He credited a defence department source for leaking the information.

Mr. Fisher, who does not plan to contest the Nov. 8 election, termed as nonsense allegations by Creditiste Leader Jean Caouette that the Liberals plan to introduce military conscription after the election. He said conscription would be political suicide for the Liberals.

300 AT TURKEY DINNER

Real Issues Avoided Says Socred Leader

THREE HILLS, Alta. (CP) — The old-line parties are "not talking about the real issues in this election," national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said Monday night.

"Until we get down to the basic issues we will drift" into welfare statism, Mr. Thompson told 400 persons at a Social Credit supper and rally in this farming community, 35 miles northeast of Calgary.

About 300 persons were served turkey, potatoes, dressing, salad, apple pie and coffee at the $2-a-plate dinner in the Three Hills Community Hall, which holds about 600.

After the dinner, the hall's doors were opened and another 100 persons filed in to stand or sit as the Social Credit leader called on Canadian voters to sit down and "do some quick thinking."

If they don't know which party to vote for, then they should decide what kind of representation they want, he said.

"What we need is leadership, men who will stand on principle. If we had that, then we would have the kind of government we need in Canada today," Mr. Thompson said.

"Don't you think that if you had the same kind of government in Ottawa as in Alberta you would have better government?"

Coal Mine Aid 'Carries Strings'

SYDNEY (UPI) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas rapped the federal government Monday for "giving Cape Breton coal mines $25,000,000 with one hand and taking back three or four times as much with the other."

ATTENDANCE

Caouette Fights War Of Numbers

MONTMAGNY, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, leader of the Ralliement des Creditistes, Monday night accused reporters and newspaper publishers of deliberately distorting attendance totals at his election meetings.

Speaking before an audience of 600 persons in this community on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, 35 miles northeast of Quebec City, Mr. Caouette said publishers have ordered their reporters to abide by a ceiling of 450 for all of his meetings.

He said "it is impossible to find another political leader who can draw the kind of attendance that Caouette does."

Mr. Caouette also charged the publishers with trying to convince the people that his party is a new one which will soon disappear. He said Social Credit has been around for 30 years and that the Creditistes will not drop out of the political scene.

Mr. Caouette said the old parties are the same as far as the French Canadians are concerned. He said they talk of working "for the benefit of national unity" but the contrary is true as, for example, when the western members demand something in Parliament they get it. This is one of the reasons why "our economy is 15 years behind."

'Too Soft Or Too Old'

VANCOUVER (CP) — B. C. Highways Minister Gagliardi Monday labelled Prime Minister Pearson as too soft and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker as too old.

Speaking at a Social Credit election campaign meeting, Mr. Gagliardi said Canada needs a vision and men of ability in Ottawa to make it a reality.

"Neither the Liberal nor Conservatives are popular enough to form a powerful majority government and their leaders are either too soft or too old," he said.

Parties Use TV Soft Sell

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Political television appeals for the Nov. 8 election frequently have that dressy look. The aim is to catch the viewer's attention and hold it while the message is delivered.

The intention is to avoid bludgeoning the viewer with a long lecture on party policy. As a result, television ads tend to be polished and professional. It's a soft-sell rather than hard.

On CBC free-time political telecasts, Prime Minister Pearson is seen in a living room atmosphere chatting with Liberal candidates or somebody else about party policies.

A large part of the Liberal advertising budget has gone into one-minute filmed or taped commercials.

In keeping with the trend away from the earnest candidate making a straight vote appeal, the spots try to make a point by backing into it.

USE INTERVIEWS

One device is a man-in-the-street interview.

The Progressive Conservative television campaign is aimed at showing the party has effective policies and top-level leaders.

National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas is being presented in an informal way. One telecast had him sitting with a group of university students on campus while an NDP candidate, Reid Scott, interviewed them.

Not everybody goes for the contrived approach. Social Credit emphasizes its leader, Robert Thompson, in both one-minute and five-minute tapes.

"He is our spokesman and he gets the message across best," says Frank Jones, the party's campaign director.

WILL CANADA BENEFIT?

Pearson Blasts Hees On Tobacco Issue

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson Monday criticized former Conservative Transport Minister George Hees for having a "strange, shortsighted and irresponsible approach" to the situation in Rhodesia.

He was asked to comment here after a cabinet meeting on Mr. Hees' suggestion that Canadian tobacco growers will benefit if the Commonwealth countries apply economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

The former member of John Diefenbaker's cabinet, who is running for election in Northumberland against Liberal Pauline Jewett, pointed out at a press conference last week that Rhodesia's main export is tobacco. Should the Commonwealth countries place a ban on Rhodesia's tobacco it would open up new markets for Canadian tobacco.

IRRESPONSIBLE

Mr. Pearson said "that's a strange, short-sighted and irresponsible approach to one of the most critical situations in the world today."

The Rhodesian problem he said is occupying the attention of the United Nations and heads of all Commonwealth countries. Mr. Pearson added that to treat the problem the way Mr. Hees had was "to say the least irresponsible and short-sighted."

Speaking at Peterborough last week Mr. Hees said a trade blockade against Rhodesia would provide a shot in the arm for Canada. He pointed out that Rhodesia sold around 100,000,000 pounds of tobacco to the United Kingdom compared to 25,000,000 pounds sold by Canada to the United Kingdom.

PARIS (UPI) — A 28-year-old German tourist today confessed to the killing of three prostitutes, a series of crimes that terrorized the night-life of Paris for a week, police sources said.

Restore Dentures' Natural 'Whiteness' And True Color

Modern dentures are made to look LIFE-LIKE when they are new. But artificial teeth may soon discolor. They often turn "denture-gray"—look "dead" instead of LIFE-LIKE.

Chemists designed KLEENITE—the active live-oxygen powder—to restore original "whiteness" to teeth and true pinkness in denture gums. KLEENITE's special SURFACTANT penetrates removing embedded stain and gray discoloration. KLEENITE cleans faster than any other leading cleanser we have tested. What's more, KLEENITE, used regularly, removes food deposits, mucin plaques and odor-causing bacteria—fully protects against denture breath. Today twice as many dentists as ever before are telling denture wearers about KLEENITE—the better, faster way to restore original whiteness and true color.

HUNTER CLAIMS

'Tories, Liberals Disappointing'

Loss of personal respect for both old line parties made it easy for Frank Hunter to accept the Social Credit invitation to seek election in Victoria, he said Monday night.

In his maiden election speech to 75 people at Oak Bay Junior High School, Mr. Hunter said he used to admire both Liberal and Conservative parties.

"But eventually I came to the reluctant conclusion that they both left a lot to be desired," he said.

More Smoke Than Fire, But Costly

From a commercial viewpoint, the 1965 British Columbia fire season showed more smoke than fire.

The Provincial Forest Service said in a final report last week that the 2,260 fires between May 1 and Oct. 15 was above average for the last 10 years.

But total acreage of commercial timber burned "will be much lower than usual," said the report.

The worst fires of the season—up to 30,000 acres—were in far northern B.C. where there is little commercial timber.

Total cost of fire suppression was $2,487,700—about 20 times more than the $124,100 spent in 1964, but far from a record. B.C. has spent over $4,000,000 fire-fighting in bad years.

Worst fire years of the last decade were 1958, with 3,058 fires; 1960, with 2,635, and 1962, with 3,102.

The report said extensive use of aircraft was of "considerable help" in limiting the extent of forest damage.

"Water bomber played a major part in holding the fires until men and equipment could be brought into the sites, and helicopters proved invaluable in getting men to remote areas before fires there reached uncontrollable size."

Ailing Chinese Jailed

SINGAPORE (AP)—An Indonesian Chinese who claimed he sailed 75 miles in a sampan to see a doctor in Singapore was sentenced to nine months in prison Monday. Tang Seng Tjua, 43, pleaded guilty to illegally entering restricted waters. He said he was unable to get medical treatment of his home island of Lingga, in Indonesia.

INVADERS NDP DINNER

RCMP Send Apology For 'Stupid Mistake'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The RCMP apologized Monday for what it said appeared to be a "stupid mistake" by two officers who invaded a celebration for T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, Saturday night.

Superintendent J. J. Atherton, in charge of the RCMP in the Vancouver area, said there was no deliberate attempt to embarrass anybody at the celebration marking Mr. Douglas' 30 years in politics.

The two officers, from a detachment in the neighboring New Westminster, entered the Showman building of the Pacific National Exhibition.

TRAFFIC CHARGE

NDP officials said the constables told them they had a warrant for the arrest of a bartender. The officials said the warrant apparently dealt with a traffic charge.

A member of Mr. Douglas' staff said he does not know whether Mr. Douglas noticed the officers, although one had walked across the dance floor in front of the head table at which the NDP leader was seated.

Other guests at the table included Woodrow Lloyd, CCF opposition leader in Saskatchewan, Howard Green, former Conservative external affairs minister, and M. J. Coldwell, who headed the former national CCF party.

The police constables stayed for 10 minutes and left after said. "And I completely lost my personal respect for the Liberal machine."

Sharing the platform with provincial Forests Minister Ray Williston, Mr. Hunter pledged every effort to see that British Columbia received fair recognition from Ottawa if he is elected to Parliament.

"Mr. Pearson has said he needs a majority government to carry on," Mr. Hunter said. "Do you want a majority government to carry on as it has in the past?"

JOINED CANADA

Mr. Hunter said if elected he would "seek to serve you and our country" and strive for full recognition of the terms laid down when British Columbia joined Canada.

"We have never been given the road we were promised under those terms," he said. "We should have a bridge or a tunnel across Seymour Narrows, but if both of these were not feasible we have a ferry service which at present is not recognized by Ottawa."

Speaking in support of the Victoria candidate, Mr. Williston said there was no basic reason for the calling of a federal election at this time.

He forecast that if Mr. Pearson went back to Ottawa with a healthy majority he would immediately institute a tight money policy.

"And that's the last thing we need in B.C. right now," he said. "They (Ottawa) have made it hard enough as it is. We had only just got going when they slapped an 11 per cent building tax on everything."

Mr. Williston said the only really booming province paying its way in Canada was British Columbia.

NO ASSISTANCE

"But the assistance we had hoped for from Ottawa has not been forthcoming," he said. "More often we have been thwarted."

The minister said British Columbia was not asking for anything it shouldn't have or did not have a right to.

He said both British Columbia and Alberta were a source of embarrassment to Ottawa because "they have plans for this and that while all we have is performance."

The meeting was chaired by campaign manager, Geoffrey Ellis.

walking through the hall in search for the man. He was not there.

Supt. Atherton was asked in an interview whether it was usual for constables to enter such a gathering on such a mission.

"I tell you it was most unusual and most improper and this seems to be a stupid mistake. We have no excuses to offer."

He said the RCMP apologizes for the action of the men, immediately adding there was certainly no deliberate attempt to embarrass anyone.

He said he was continuing an investigation into the incident. Ernest Hall, provincial secretary of the NDP, said he was grateful for Supt. Atherton's statement.

FOR THE RECORD

But he said "for the record" a protest will be sent to George McClelland, RCMP commissioner in Ottawa, and Attorney-General Bonner.

The protest would say that the NDP does not question the right of the police to do their duty.

But it did protest the "inexcusable" manner in which the two constables did their duty Saturday night.

John McNaiven, liquor committee chairman for the celebration, said:

"If they intended to embarrass us, or embarrass Mr. Douglas, they couldn't have done it more beautifully."

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night. If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection. In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months. Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions—even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Arthur Mayse

In the weeks since Mr. Pearson issued his election call, we have been assured by practically every heavy thinker in the punditry trade that Canadians are apathetic about the November contest.

As a lazy man who would much sooner accept ready-made opinions than shape his own, I was content to go along with the experts until one puzzling contradiction forced itself on my notice. This is that where ever I go, and who ever I talk to, the only Canadians who profess themselves unconcerned are those who never vote and never will, unless their country adopts the Australian tactic of penalizing truants from the polls.

The others, who make a considerable majority, may be confused, uncertain of downright distressed. But apathetic they are not.

They do, however, seem to be approaching this election more quietly and thoughtfully than Canadians have done in the past; a circumstance which shouldn't be surprising. The picture is less clear than it was when we last chose a prime minister, and the voters' approach more wary.

The bedrock Liberal and the hard-core Conservative are still with us, of course. These are doing their manful best to get the good old compah and razzmatazz into campaigns so far sornber; but they are waking few echoes.

This is the year of the undecided voter, concerned less with platform planks and promises than with questions for which answers aren't forthcoming.

The sudden healing of wounds received in Mr. Diefenbaker's falling-out with certain of his ministers in 1963 is altogether too fortuitous.

Is it true that a vote for Dief may later prove to have been a nod for an acceptable inheritor, perhaps Manitoba's premier Duff Roblin?

And what about personable and persuasive Quebec chief Jean Lesage? Is he being groomed as Mr. Pearson's possible successor?

The Nov. 8 contestants have left their youth a fair peg behind: just who, in long range terms, are we voting for? There are other points that must remain obscure. Mr. Pearson's personal honesty is acknowledged. But if he is returned to the PM's office, can he be counted upon to temper trust with caution where the Quebec 'old guard' is concerned?

The new problem of future water diversion from Canada to meet United States' need also demands hard and quiet thinking, in terms of the men at Ottawa who must deal with it.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not endear himself to Washington during his time as prime minister. Is he diplomat enough to speak for Canada in our relations with out shrewd neighbor?

Then there's the nasty word 'conscription', scribbled upon the Liberal door by sagging Creditiste leader Real Caouette, and not yet commented upon by Mr. Pearson. The undecided voter could do with an answer there, also.

By no means all of these questions will be answered before election day. When matters come to the clinch, we must take a good deal on trust, and hope we chose well.

It's a hard choice, one of the hardest I can remember.

My personal hope is that Mr. Pearson will get the mandate by a working majority, since only under such conditions will he be able to form the strong national government Canada badly requires. I am doubtful about some of his policies. But a choice must be made—at least, by all save the truly apathetic—and this is mine. I think, of these two, Mr. Pearson will best serve Canada.

Pacific Wing Meeting
The 800 Pacific Wing of the RCAF Association will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 1212 Quadra Street. The association's national convention in Regina recently elected George A. Ault, C.C.E. of Ottawa, as president of its executive council.

MORE DATES than any other girl in town—that's the modest claim of Lorna Bussey of the provincial centennial office here. The boxes she is stacking contain 35,000 two-year calendars. They are being readied for shipment to local centennial committees throughout B.C. They'll sell them for $1 each, making a small profit for local celebrations during the 1966 and 1967 centenaries of the B.C.-Vancouver Island union and Confederation. The calendars contain sketches and stories from B.C. history and could make interesting gifts for friends abroad. (Times photo)

Postal Employees' 'Colonial Status' Protested at Probe

Postal workers have been accorded "a kind of colonial status" for far too long, a special inquiry was told here this morning.

The long denial of industrial democracy in the Post Office has been a costly and tragic mistake on the part of the government," said the local branch of the Canadian Postal Employees' Association.

The comments were contained in a brief to Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit, appointed to investigate working conditions in the Post Office across the country after last summer's strike.

The inside postal workers said the "great dilemma" of the Post Office seems to be the lag between the tremendous progress in handling mail and the failure to make comparable progress in the art of handling men.

"A major contributing factor to this failure has been the obsolete system of labor relations that has held sway for too long, a system that is the almost exclusive preserve of management," said the brief.

"Post managers are very jealous of the prerogatives that the system confers on them and when challenged in any of the many areas of exclusive right and absolute power tend to respond thus:

"We can make things a lot worse around here. Or, 'If you don't like it, you can quit.' These negative, in fact reactionary, responses clash in a most fundamental way with the principles and purposes of the union, which seeks to bring about better working conditions and improved staff morale."

FULL BARGAINING
The only hope for genuine reform lay in full collective bargaining, "something more significant" than that proposed in the Heagy report.

The brief also said top-ranking personnel "reflected the colonial-like thinking" of the central administration.

Swarms of officials visited the offices but never considered it part of their job to look into staff dissatisfaction.

"They are poor ambassadors, these high officials who manage to spend so much time in the field without ever coming into touch with the grass-root problems of the service," said the brief.

"Had these gentlemen taken the trouble to check all the facts during their excursions, our re-

CRIME SPREE COMES RIGHT ON SCHEDULE

Sidney's annual outbreak of break-ins continued overnight Monday with a $100 theft of cash at Sidney Garden Equipment.

The night before White House and Homes, a sporting goods store, was entered and stolen were two air pistols, a .22 rifle, five boxes of air-gun pellets and 1,000 rounds of .22 ammunition.

Last week $300 was stolen from Victoria Flying Service offices. The thieves tried to "peel" the office safe but were unsuccessful and then gained entry to the safe by bashing in one side of it.

Sidney RCMP have been operating intensive patrols in an attempt to stop the little crime spree. It is usual for an outbreak of burglaries in the area at this time of year.

In the past the last week of the horse races at Sandown has usually coincided with a number of burglaries, RCMP said.

Milk Price Going Up Here Soon

A milk price increase will appear in Greater Victoria soon.

A dairy company spokesman confirmed this today after it was learned that the Victoria area is the only one in the province that hasn't seen a milk price boost this year.

Current price of a quart of homogenized milk delivered to the home is 25 cents—two cents less than in Vancouver where the price went up last June.

"This situation will not prevail long," the spokesman said.

He said it was impossible to say at this stage whether the Victoria price would go up one or two cents—27 cents is the average price for a quart in B.C. now.

'VERY SOON'
But the boost will come "very soon," he said.

Last price increase here was in 1958.

The company spokesman said that dairy employee wages have been increased by recent wage negotiations and the prices paid to farmers for raw milk have been rising steadily all year.

E. C. Carr, chairman of the B.C. Milk Control Board based in Vancouver, told the Times that prices to the farmers have been rising steadily for several months across the province. The prices are based on a production quota formula.

'PRESSURE ON'
"The formula has been going up, and there have been recent employee wage negotiations," so the pressure is on the dealers now," he said.

"There have been price boosts at the retail level in the upper Vancouver Island region and Victoria, and the lower island is the only area in the province that hasn't seen a price increase this year," said Mr. Carr.

Dec. 1 Opening By Pearkes For Saanich Municipal Hall

Saanich's new municipal hall will be officially opened by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes Wednesday, Dec. 1, at 2:30 p.m.

This was disclosed Monday night by Reeve Hugh Curtis, who also said the band from HMCS Naaden will play.

The Verdon Avenue hall, now being completed at a cost of $625,000, will open for business Nov. 22.

The first formal council meeting in the new premises, between the fire-police station and the health and welfare building, will be held Monday, Dec. 6.

Reeve Curtis said it is hoped that former reeve George Chatterton, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich in the last Parliament, will be able to attend and chair part of the meeting.

Invitations will be sent to past reeves and councillors and other's prominent in the growth of Saanich.

Two special nights will be set aside Dec. 1 and 2 for the public to view the building. Conducted tours will be held until 9 p.m.

ICE LICE OR NERVES DURING PLAYING OF ANTHEM?

Griffin Sees Red Over Blue Line Wiggling

By AB KENT
Ald. Michael Griffin Monday threw a verbal body-check at hockey players who "scratch and wiggle" during the national anthem at Memorial Arena.

"Couldn't somebody tell them to keep still?" he asked sports centres director Jack Morgan at a meeting of recreation and community services committee.

And another thing, the alderman protested, only a portion of The Queen, or O Canada is played at sports events.

"Why not the whole God Save the Queen?" he said. "There is nothing worse than an abbreviated version of O Canada."

City manager Dennis Young said the shortened

Heywood Hookup Open Next Month

First major breakthrough in moving James Bay traffic east and north at rush-hour will be seen in about three weeks, city engineer James Garnett said today.

He reported to Victoria city council traffic committee that Heywood Avenue extension linking Superior with Vancouver Street by way of Southgate Street is well under way and should be operating in two to three weeks, depending on weather.

The short section of new street removes an impasse that has existed many years, and which was only slightly relieved with extension of Superior through

Fireplace Blamed In James Bay Fire

A baby-sitter awakened by the coughing of children discovered a fire raging through the house early this morning.

The 14-year-old girl, aunt of the children, rushed them to safety in their nightclothes.

The fire, blamed on a faulty fireplace, did $5,000 damage to the house at 70 Menzies but only about $500 damage to its contents.

Janet Chiasson, 1125 Oxford, was babysitting for her sister, Mrs. J. Dennis Breckon. Mr. Breckon, a rifleman with the Queen's Own Rifles, only recently returned from service in Cyprus and his wife were out for the evening.

The Breckon children, Renee, 4, Ronald, 2, and David, nine months, were asleep in their bedrooms in the main floor apartment of the house.

OPENED WINDOW
Janet said today she fell asleep on a sofa in the living room. She awoke before 1 a.m. to hear the children coughing. Janet noticed smoke in the room and opened a window.

She investigated further and when she opened the door to the basement, a pall of smoke surged into the upstairs. She closed the door and awakened the children.

Janet said she bundled up the baby and Ronnie but had difficulty in getting Renee to get out of bed. She finally carried out the younger children under her arms and prodded Renee into the street.

Janet took the children across the street to the home of Mrs. Patricia Jenkins, 69 Menzies. Mrs. Jenkins turned in the alarm.

By the time firemen arrived the fire was going strongly in the basement and in the upstairs suite which has been vacant since last weekend.

Deputy Fire Chief James Allan said today the fire apparently was caused by a fault in the fireplace.

THROUGH CRACK
He said the babysitter lighted a fire and it spread through a crack to the basement and upstairs. The fire was still going when Mr. and Mrs. Breckon returned home.

Mrs. Breckon said this morning there was no insurance on the contents of the rented house. She said she recently saw a fire in another house in the James Bay area and wrote to her husband in Cyprus that they should obtain fire insurance.

But, she added, "we never got around to it."

Pre-Payment To Save Money For Taxpayers
Oak Bay ratepayers next year will get a chance to pre-pay their 1966 taxes and save some money, council decided Monday night.

The pre-payment period will be Jan. 1 to May 15 when residents will be given an opportunity to pay 95 per cent of the amount of this year's taxes.

Council will pay them four per cent on their money until the June 30 tax deadline for a saving on taxes of roughly two per cent.

Each year the municipality is forced to borrow about $1 million at 5 1/2 per cent interest to remain solvent until tax revenues start to come in.

Reeve Allan Cox praised the plan saying there was no reason the taxpayer shouldn't get a rebate if the municipality could save on bank interest.

Ask The Times
Q. When is the actual time of dawn in relation to the time given for sunrise? N.H.

A. This varies, depending on location and time of the year. But dawn and sunrise are not necessarily instantaneous, says Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

For instance, at 40 degrees latitude, astrophysical twilight, or breaking of dawn would begin at 5:43 a.m. Dec. 27. Sunrise would be at 7:21 a.m. And on the equator, twilight precedes sunrise by about half an hour every morning.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve riddles or legal problems. Notions, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

DEAR ABBY...

It's Nothing New!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last week I was hired and our house was for a birthday party. The invitations were mailed two weeks in advance. A photographer came in nice party clothes, but others showed up in their soiled play clothes, barefoot! (One little girl had curlers in her hair.) All these children are from a high-class neighborhood and had nice party clothes to wear.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Hand-Painted Designs Make the Difference

By PENNY SAVER

In these days of mass-produced everything it is becoming more and more difficult to appear as an individual, especially when you have bought a lot of your clothes from the very same rack as the girl next door.

This at least is what many women feel, and what sends them on endless trips around town seeking new and individual garments that may not have been discovered yet by the majority of women shoppers.

So here's a tip I picked up recently for people who want to be different, and to wear something nobody else is wearing—the key is the lovely hand-painted patterns on a top-quality line of sweaters and other articles.

Beautiful floral designs highlight these sweaters, which come in a lovely array of colors. Knit of banlon, they sell for $11.95 or $12.95 for cardigans, and $7.95 and $8.95 for short-sleeved pullovers.

The designs, sometimes in a yoke effect, sometimes right down the front or on one shoulder only, lend a really exclusive touch. Here a word about the method—it's a special kind of textile paint, developed in Europe, that's used. Coming in very attractive hues, it's guaranteed not to run or streak ever, a most important item on my list. The lady who does the work has experience in it, even teaches classes to others interested in a stimulating and useful hobby.

Besides the sweaters, other articles adorned with the hand-work are velvet hair-ribbons for big and little girls, which are priced from 65 to 95 cents each.

The floral designs on the headbands get an extra touch of lustre from sparkly gold and silver powder which is dusted on, or take on a velour finish by having something called cloth dust applied.

Another attractive item which would be very useful with the weather we've been having lately is an umbrella, the mainstay of West Coast residents, which features also waterproof, hand-painted designs. These aluminum-frame umbrellas with acetate covers and sturdy plastic handles sell for $6.50, $6.95 and $9.95.

Most have different decorations painted on them—flowers, butterflies and oriental designs—but for real individuality you can order your own and have a design of your choice on it.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Meet This 89-Year-Old Who Still Is Youthful

Not long ago I had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Louise Mitten who gaily admits to being 89 years old. Mrs. Mitten said, "For some years my friends have been telling me not to tell my age because they say I look and act so much younger than I am. I don't feel that way about it! I think it is wonderful to have lived this long and to have had all that life and happiness!"

She continued, "Of course I have had my ups and downs, as everybody does, but if people can't take the downs and concentrate on their blessings, they are sunk at any age. I am convinced that most women think themselves into growing old. Most of it is a question of viewpoint."

I was eager to visit with Mrs. Mitten because a mutual friend had told me how terrific she is and what a wonderful interview she would make for me. Our mutual friend also thought that we would have a rapport, not because I am anywhere near 89 but because we are both madly in love with life, interested in everything and believe that age consciousness is the most aging characteristic a woman can have.

Mrs. Mitten thought it was ridiculous for anyone to want to interview her, but with our friend's reassurance she consented. I am glad she did because her remarks are inspirational and will make every woman who reads them stop to evaluate her own attitude and approach to life.

I think that the best way to present Louise Mitten is to bring you some quotations from our conversation.

Not long ago her doctor asked her if it bothered her to be so old and she replied, "You'll have to ask someone older than I am."

She said, "I stay away from people who make me unhappy and gloomy. I don't go near them."

"I have many many friends

When the gifts were opened, several of the little guests said, "Mother said to tell you she didn't have time to buy a present, but she will when she gets time."

When the colored pictures were developed, the hair curlers and dirty bare feet stuck out like sore thumbs. The party was supposed to be from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m., but the first guest arrived at 1 p.m. and the last one left at 5:30 p.m. How can I prevent this from happening at the next party?

DISGUSTED IN DIXIE

DEAR DISGUSTED: You can't. There have always been mothers who don't have time to bathe and dress their children and send them off properly to a party and, regrettably, there always will be.

DEAR ABBY: I realize that there are more earth-shattering problems, but this is something that grates me no end. I am a mature bachelor-girl in my mid-40s, and I am rather conservative in my behavior. I am willing to be friendly, within reason, but tradespeople (sales clerks, service station attendants, beauty operators, etc.) invariably call me by my first name if they find out what it is. Sometimes they even ASK me what it is, like the mechanic where I took my car to be serviced. I never laid eyes on this boy before. He was at least 20 years my junior. What can I say to nip this sort of familiarity in the bud? Or am I being a— STUFFED SHIRT (?)

DEAR STUFFED: If someone asks you your first name, and you feel that he is being unduly familiar, reply, "It's Mary, but I'd rather you call me Miss Hosenfelder." Your reply may not endear you to that person, but you'll have put him in his place. And that's your objective, isn't it?

Every Dessert Imaginable . . .

Haute Couture As Topper

FEAST AND FASHION AT GALLERY

By PAT DUFOUR

Judging by the trimness of the figures of 240 women who attended a dessert party and fashion show in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria on Monday afternoon, they must have the strongest powers of resistance in the city, or the most efficient diet-reducing exercises on record!

Never has a richer feast of desserts been served anywhere, most of them with spiraling crests of whipping cream or meringues! To name a few . . . there were peppermint rousers, creme de menthe and creme de cocoa pies, trifles, peach flams, latticed in whipping cream; cream pies of every shape, color and description; chocolate rolls encased in cream "show" petit fours and slice cakes oozing with chocolate, chewy nuts and other goodies.

But, for those in danger of committing a sampling suicide, the fashion show that followed was enough to have guests dashing four times around the block, as the first course of a highly-concentrated reducing program.

The colors of the creations were superb, rivaling the outstanding floral arrangements by Mrs. Peter Banks that created their own miniature gardens in the gallery. The styles were exciting, the fabrics feminine and exotic, even those designed for other than after-five occasions.

One such ensemble was the sports outfit modelled by Betty Horne. Teamed with slim-fitting worsted wool slacks that sang in a burnt orange shade was a White Stag sweater that complemented them to perfection. Banded in pink and burnt orange, the white boat neck-lined creation had a bouquet of crocheted flowers to give it extra-zing.

SPANISH STYLE

Looking as Spanish as Queen Isabella herself, Paddy Di Castri was striking in a black velvet hostess outfit that favored the new European trend.

The bell bottoms of her long pants were as full as any worn by the crew Christopher Columbus chose when he set out with the Spanish queen's blessing. There was one big difference, though. Paddy's were a triumph of femininity with their insets of white eyelet embroidery ruffles that were repeated on the peek-a-boo collar and cuffs of her matching topper.

The gallery hummed with excitement as Mary Stark modelled an Italian import ensemble by Zigler. Created in the finest of white wool, there was a long slim evening skirt, side-slitted; a short one for the cocktail hour and a matching shell delicately banded in silver beads. A matching evening cape with mandarin collar completed the picture of haute couture.

Any artist would have wanted to paint Vera Harris as she made her appearance in a slim-skirted gown of black silk velvet that gave a queenly look with its portrait collar of white mink. The sleeves were slender and in wrist-length. Garnet red and jade were the happy blending in an outfit modelled by Lynn Harper. Her Blin and Blin topcoat in the first shade glowed when matched with her suite of jade antron and jade Courreges hat styled in the "little girl look" with an up-turned Breton brim and saucy bow at the back.

BLUE AND MUSTARD

Clever combination of color was also seen in a casual outfit worn by Mickie Allum which featured a weskit and slim skirt of blue dove plaid. The mustard tones underscored in the plaid were gloriously repeated in a large-bowed blouse that hinted of chiffon until one saw the terylene label.

Royal blue, always the favorite of women with a flair for the dramatic, was well presented in a sleeveless cocktail dress and matching reversed jacket worn by Isabel Hawkins. As she walked, her outfit shimmered in the gallery lights, with its overall pattern in delicate lurex threads.

And, for those with a fancy for the frivolous, there was a dream of a short evening dress. Of black chiffon, with a full skirt that seemed to beg to be danced in, it almost stopped the show with its

Prince to Be 'Pommie' In Australian School

MERRIJOG, Australia (Reuters)—Prince Charles will come to school here next year in a new hurdle of the toughest and most democratic education any heir to the British Throne has faced for centuries.

It was announced Monday at Buckingham Palace in London that the prince—17 next month—will spend 3½ months at the Timbertop branch of Geelong Grammar School, one of Australia's leading academies.

He will be the first member of the royal family to attend school in an overseas Commonwealth country. At the end of the term he will return to his own school, Gordonstoun in Scotland, the cold-shower establishment whose strict regime for turning out leaders of men has already toughened him up. Timbertop is in the foothills of the great dividing mountain range at Merrijog, more than 100 miles northeast of Melbourne.

Charles will be among 120 boys of about 15 and 16 who organize their life at the school with a minimum of supervision from teachers and staff.

The running of the establishment is left almost entirely to the pupils, who elect their own leaders and change them frequently to give as many as possible a taste of leadership.

CONTINUE STUDIES

Because of his Gordonstoun experience and his superiority in age Prince Charles will have a dual role. He will continue his studies but he will also act as a supervisor, training the boys in hiking and outdoor activities.

Assistant headmaster V. J. H. Tunbridge said the Prince would not share a dormitory with other boys because they are younger than he. But he would eat with them and share other facilities.

Timbertop teacher Michael Hanley, 40, a South African, said Charles may well find himself a "slushy"—the term for the boys when they take their turn of serving food and washing dishes.

To his fellow pupils he will be "Pommie"—the Australian slang for an Englishman.

At Timbertop the accent is on development of maturity, character and individuality.

Each boy makes his own bed and his unit is inspected thoroughly every morning by a teacher for tidiness.

All maintenance work is done by the boys and the annual 500 tons of wood on which the school depends for its fuel is chopped, gathered and stacked by teams allotted to the work.

There is no organized sport but the boys have an intensive physical fitness program.

Hikes of 100 miles in a week-end through rough bush country are not uncommon for the older boys. They camp out and have compass-reading, nature and bush-craft lessons on the way.

Successful Party-Makers

Hot canapes and crunchy little nibblers may not "make" the party, but they do help to get things off on the right foot. We can't imagine making them without several kinds of Canadian cheese to speed up the job and make them a real flavor treat.

Potted Cheese

A zippy cheese spread is always more fun served in a little crockery pot surrounded by crisp crackers. For a new one try combining grated Gouda Cheese and a little Blue Cheese with just enough mayonnaise to give a good spreading consistency.

Quick Trick

For another quick and easy cracker spread, beat a package of pimiento or chive Cream Cheese until fluffy. Then, blend in very finely-chopped ripe olives and some slightly crushed capers.

Broiler Treat

Hot canapes must be toasted at the last minute—there's just no getting around it. However, many fillings can be made ahead, and spread on bread rounds all ready for the broiler. One of our favorites combines devilled ham, shredded Cheddar Cheese, ("old" gives best flavor), mayonnaise and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Remember to cover tightly with clear wrap or foil and store in the frig, on cookie sheets, until ready to bake.

More from the Oven

While you're doing the advance preparation, here's another hot canape that's nice made with rye bread for a change. Cut the bread into circles with a biscuit cutter and spread with well-seasoned cream cheese. To season the cream cheese add dill, celery salt, thyme, paprika, snipped parsley or chives, or any combination thereof—along with salt and pepper, of course. Over the cheese goes a thin slice of onion and finally a topping of mayonnaise. Broil until lightly browned, keeping a watchful eye so they don't burn.

Nutty Sandwiches

Use salted nuts, sandwiched together with creamy fillings, to fill in any little holes on your party tray. For salted pecans, mix together three tablespoons Cream Cheese with two tablespoons anchovy paste. With walnut halves try equal parts, Blue Cheese and soft butter.

Midget Cheese Balls
Cream Cheese, devilled ham and horseradish make a happy trio. Form into small balls and roll in toasted sesame seeds or snipped parsley. Serve them with pretty party picks so they'll be easy to eat.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some faint horizontal lines and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A vertical crease is visible near the right edge, and the binding edge on the left is partially visible.

PET POINTS

By Dr. J. R. Elias

Do Insects Use Odors To Warn of Danger?

Yes. Various species produce a variety of odors to warn family and friends of danger, to direct them to food, and so on.

Clinic: Q. One of my turtles just sleeps most of the time. When he walks around, he has his eyes closed. Also, he's eating less and less. What should I do?

Miss L.P. A. These symptoms resemble those that can develop if turtles are fed ant eggs. This is the wrong food for turtles. Switch to meat—raw beef, insects, worms, chicken. Also, place a few drops of cod liver oil on his head so that he can reach it with his tongue.

Clinic: Q. I have a "red eared" turtle which I bought in a five and 10 cent store. He eats only chopped meat. Is this good for him? He's only a baby now, but will be change to a vegetarian as he grows older?

Miss L.B. A. Somebody has been feeding you the wrong information. Turtles are meat eaters. They need meat three or four times a week, supplemented with commercial turtle foods available from your pet shop.

Clinic: Q. Is the Great Dane as ferocious as it looks? I saw a picture of one in a book. I would certainly hate to meet one face to face.

H.F.K. A. Have no fears. The Great Dane is a gentle dog. This wasn't always true. In the Middle Ages the Great Dane was bred to hunt wild boars. However, his ferocity has long since been bred out of him, and he rates now among the gentlest of breeds.

Clinic: Q. Should a rabbit be picked up by the ears? I have been told not to, but I thought this was the proper way.

Miss E.M.W. A. Picking up a rabbit by his ears is the wrong way and can cause injury. The right way: Grasp the fold of skin over the shoulders with one hand and support his rump with the other.

Clinic: Q. Can you housebreak a kitten the same way you housebreak a puppy? I just got one as a gift and would appreciate your help.

Miss M.O. A. Housebreaking a cat usually is much easier than housebreaking a dog. Usually all you have to do is fill a litter box with cat sand, place it in a location easily accessible for the cat, and leave it there. The cat's natural instinct for cleanliness will take care of the rest.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ronald Curry, age 12, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for his question:

Which is the largest planet?

For a long time most astronomers suspected that our neat solar system was the only one of its kind. Now we know that other stars have families of planets. The experts suspect that there are billions of assorted planets out in the Milky Way.

We know that at least one planet of a distant solar system is much heavier than any of our sun's planets. There may be countless planets in space bigger and heavier than our own biggest planet. The job of finding and measuring them is waiting for the astronomers of the future. Meantime, in our own little home in the heavens, the largest of our planet kinfolk is giant Jupiter.

Much larger planets may orbit other stars, but compared with the other planets of our solar system Jupiter is indeed a giant. If the bulky planet were a hollow shell, it could swallow up its eight brothers plus duplicates and triplicates of the seven smaller ones. It would be large enough to hold about 1,300 full-sized models of the planet Earth.

Made Up of Lighter Materials

This is another way of saying that the volume of Jupiter is 1,300 times greater than the earth's volume. The diameter of its equator is 88,800 miles, more than 11 times wider than the earth. You would expect such an immense planet to be perhaps 1,000 times heavier than the earth, but this is not so. If we could compare their weights on a pair of celestial scales, we would need only 318 models of the earth to equal the weight of bulky Jupiter.

Jupiter's mass is roughly 318 times the mass of the earth. A planet's mass is the amount of matter packed into its volume. Figures show that Jupiter is made of lighter materials than the earth. The bulky planet is a less dense than the earth. The over-all weight of the earth is about 5.5 times greater than an equal volume of water. The density of Jupiter is only 1.34 times the density of water. An average spoon of the earth's materials is about four times heavier than an average spoon of Jupiter's bulky materials.

Bulky Jupiter is the largest, but not the densest of our planets. When it comes to the force of gravitation, the most massive planet has the largest quota. On the surface of Jupiter, a 100-pound earth boy would weigh about 260 pounds. A spaceship would need a boost equal to 37 miles a second to escape the pull of its surface gravity.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Brad Murphy, age 13, of Kansas City, Mo., for his question:

Does our sun revolve around a larger sun?

The moon revolves around the big earth, and the earth revolves around the monster sun. Everything in the heavens is on the move, and it is natural to suppose that the sun orbits some larger object. The sun certainly is on the move, zooming through space at about 170 miles a second, and we travel with it.

It revolves in an immense path around the galaxy. With it whirl billions of stars in a vast pin-wheeling system. Some travel in fast lanes, and some in slower lanes, but all of them swing around a central hub of the Milky Way. The sun takes many millions of years to complete its revolution around the big starry wheel, and each trip is called a cosmic year.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—City desks will pick up a good human interest story if they can verify this. The story is about that when one-time actor Tom Neal, now behind bars charged with killing his wife, issued a desperate plea for funds to pay for his defence, one of the first to send a cheque was Franchot Tone. If true, Franchot is not only a gentleman but approaches saintliness in his ability to forgive. Years ago, the front-pages blazed when Neal pulverized Franchot over the affections of Barbara Payton. Franchot was beaten terribly, landed in the hospital with multiple injuries, including a broken nose, and never regained his full hearing. Neal's movie career went on the skids immediately. Miss Payton proved highly forgettable, but Franchot remains a respected and talented member of the acting profession.

Carl Theodore Dreyer, the veteran film-maker, wants Maria Callas for a movie version of "Medea," which sounds like a splendid idea. "The Agony and the Ecstasy," which opened at Loew's State, is already sold-out through Jan. 30... the first time a movie has pulled that much of an advance. The consensus is that Rex Harrison walks away with it, as he does so frequently... The U.S. Attorney's office in Chicago wants to ask some more questions about a famous performer's friendship with a famous gangster... Diahann Carroll's manager is denying the printed reports that she will star on Broadway as Queen Nefertiti for Richard Rodgers. Odd. You'd think she'd do anything for him, after the glamorous part he gave her in "No Strings."

Bobby Hatfield of the Righteous Brothers is scheduled to marry dancer Joy Ciro in Hollywood next year... Gina Lollobrigida doesn't believe in suffering. In France shooting "Hotel Paradiso," she had 14 cases of furniture shipped from her house in Rome to Paris penthouse. That's the way to do it, baby; you only live once.

Broadway guessing game: A gorgeous chorus girl in a current musical comedy has three "happily married" stars making the old pitch for her... Chums guess that a beautiful blonde screen and TV actress has starred in a quiet interracial wedding. She and her best beau, a jazz musician, have been spotted house-hunting in the Pacific Palisades.

A highly-touted TV program with a star at the helm is due for the air, no matter what the executives say for public consumption... A famed video star, recently married, now consults his ex-girl on how to handle his bride. She has become difficult, he complains. Would you believe THAT plot if you saw it on the tube?

Last February this column predicted stardom for a girl named Marilyn Michaels, as the result of rave reports of a taping she had done with Sammy Davis for "Hullabaloo." Among other things, she did brilliant imitations of Barbara Streisand, Connie Francis and Judy Garland... She has opened in Dallas in "Funny Girl," playing the Barbara Streisand role, and to the delight of all concerned—including me, and I've never met Marilyn—the superlatives lit up like neon signs and one reviewer considered that she "made stage history" with her talent.

COFFIN HAS GOLD CREST

Tomb of Scientist Found By Excavators

SYRACUSE, Sicily (AP)—Italian archaeologists said Sunday they believe they have found the tomb of the Greek mathematician and scientist Archimedes, lost more than 2,000 years.

Prof. Salvatore Ciancio, inspector of antiquities, said workers excavating for a new hotel made the discovery. He said he is convinced it is Archimedes' tomb.

The workers uncovered 160 square feet of large marble blocks with a lead coffin under the two centre blocks. The coffin, bearing a golden crest set with precious stones, contained the ashes of a human being.

In 75 B.C., Cicero wrote that he had found the tomb, marked by a marble column. Ciancio said there were marks on the marble blocks where a column had stood.

The tomb was found on the edge of Syracuse in an area known as the Necropolis of the Little Caves, where there are many ruins and ancient graves. Archimedes was put to death in 212 B.C. by soldiers who had besieged Syracuse for three years and had been held at bay by war machines invented by him.

When the soldiers finally captured the city, they killed Archimedes despite orders by their general, Claudius Marcellus, to spare his life. Marcellus had the tomb erected to honor him.

There's Life in the Old Guns Yet

Gun fanciers are getting fired up for the third annual V.I. Collectors' Association arms show on Sunday.
More than 500 are expected to attend the show at Victoria Ballroom, 1990 Government. The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Over 1,000 antique weapons will be displayed, including flintlock pistols, muskets and revolvers.
Most are in operating condition.
Bulkier item is expected to be a bolt-action anti-tank weapon used in the Second World War.
One of the more expensive weapons will be a $400, 1890

Colt pistol used in South Africa and with 11 notches on its stock.
Association president Hugh Lyle, 115 Moss Street, speaks highly of the hobby although it involves a lot of work in refinishing and repairing.
He has been collecting for 11 years. His first specimen was an 1886 Smith and Wesson revolver which he picked up at bargain price at a local auction. One of his prize possessions is a Colt found in 1914 near Leechtown—site of a gold rush in the 1850s. The grip shows four notches.
Also on display Sunday will be the new Douglas machine-gun engineered by Cliff Douglas of Victoria.

"THEY'RE STILL LETHAL," says gun collector Hugh Lyle about two of the scores of antique weapons he owns. In left hand he holds the 100-year-old Calvert "Pepperbox," a 40-calibre British pocket-pistol. Other weapon is George III "G.I. Issue" pistol, a .75-calibre weapon dating back to 1750.

ISLAND DIGEST

Move Asked For Terminal

GANGES — The Chamber of Commerce here will press the provincial government to move its ferry terminal at Fulford to Isabella Point.

The new location would be south of the present terminal which is located at the end of a long inlet.

The chamber claims the Isabella Point terminal would reduce the run out of Swartz Bay from 45 to 20 minutes.

The resolution adds the same vessel could double its service and handle twice the traffic without increasing operating expenses.

That's how RCMP Constable Dennis McDonald described the shooting in a police cruiser July 17 of Doseanne Isabel James, 28, of the Quamichan Indian Reserve near Duncan.
He was testifying at the Assize Court trial of Bert George, 22, of Quamichan, charged with capital murder of the woman.

PARTY ARGUMENT

The constable testified he drove to the James home on Quamichan Rd. that night to investigate an argument at a party in a nearby house.

When he arrived, he said he saw Mrs. James and George lying in the grass in the back yard.

He testified he saw a scythe blade on the ground nearby and became aware of gashes to Mrs. James' arms and legs.

He then turned his attention to George again but he had vanished.

CONTINUED SEARCH

The woman was placed in the prowl car and the police officer continued his search for George.

When he returned to the car he said he saw a man standing beside it. Then he heard the shot and Mrs. James slumped in the front seat.

The constable took a .22-calibre rifle from George, placed him under arrest and rushed Mrs. James to King's Daughters Hospital in Duncan.

CHEST WOUND

Dr. James Goodbrand of Duncan told jurors he found what he thought to be a bullet hole in the woman's chest when he examined her in the emergency ward. The trial continued today.

'Went Over My Head' —Larocque

SIDNEY — Lt. Col. J. H. Larocque resigned as village chairman last week because council went over his head in conducting municipal business.

In a letter to council, he said certain matters had been taken up with the provincial government and with North Saanich without reference to council committee or the chairman.

He had come to the conclusion he had not been permitted to add anything of a constructive nature to council's deliberations, he said.

"Under these conditions, I have no other alternative but to resign," he stated.

His reasons for resigning are similar to those of former chairman A. A. Cormack who quit council in August because three members of council initiated a $185,000 road development program without consulting him.

SCUTTLED

F. S. B. Heward also resigned as commissioner at the same time, claiming council agreed to a long-range planning program and then scuttled the proposal at the last moment.

Earlier in the year another commissioner J. G. Mitchell resigned, claiming a "vote pattern" existed in council regardless of the issues and business at stake.

He accused Commissioners Douglas Taylor, Andries Boas and L. A. Christian of using "block tactics."

TECHNICAL POINT

Council at Monday's meeting decided not to accept Col. Larocque's resignation on the grounds he did not submit it properly.

To comply with the Municipal Act, the former chairman should have addressed his letter to the village clerk instead of council. The technical point means little as the former chairman has but to absent himself from two council meetings and his resignation becomes effective.

Boat Burns to Water Line

By DON DINGWALL

CHEMAINUS — Commercial fisherman Paul Coulombe went ashore on Willy Island this morning to gather oysters.

When he took a look out to check his anchored boat, the Jenny H, it was on fire.

Before Coulombe or nearby boats could do anything the Jenny H was burned to the water line.

The 30-foot boat was towed by the fisheries department vessel Joysea and beached on the spit of Willy Island.

Fisheries patrolman William MacLeod said the Jenny H was beached to get it out of the way of the shrimp boats.

Willy Island lies just off Che-mainus near Bear Point.

Hit-Run Driver Fined $300 After Three-Car Collision

LADYSMITH — A man who fled a three-car collision Sunday was fined a total of $300 Monday in Ladysmith RCMP court.

John Lister of South Wellington pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was suspended and failing to remain at an accident scene.

Other drivers involved in the accident on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Cedar Rd. cut-off were James Taggart of Victoria and Mrs. John Forsyth of Ladysmith.

The smash sent John Mather of 1111 Harrison St., Victoria, to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was reported in good condition today, recovering from a broken jaw.

Court was told Lister was southbound on the highway when he collided with the Forsyth auto making a left turn. Taggart's car crashed into the rear of the turning auto.

Wayne Donald-Wilson was fined $250 on charges of impaired driving and being a minor in possession of liquor.

Police said he lost control of his vehicle and drove into a ditch at the Trans-Canada Highway and Bayview in Ladysmith.

NORTH COWICHAN — If an underwriter survey of the South End Fire District turns out the way Chief Pat Clarkson thinks, householders will be saved money.

An individual householder could save up to $10 a year on his fire insurance.

The municipal south end is graded Class B and residents pay 55 cents per $100 of value.

Chief Clarkson feels the south end can be justified as a Grade A classification.

The last underwriter survey was in 1959 when the South End Fire Department was formed.

Since then the department has added a second fire truck, more fire hydrants, water extensions, two-way radio and a telephone alarm system to augment the air horns.

Originally the department had 13 volunteer members. Now there are 21.

Chairman of the fire prevention committee Coun. John Cannon said Monday: "I would like to see the survey done by the end of the year."

He said insurance premium savings would be proportionate according to the amount of coverage and the property value.

The survey is done by an engineer of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

DUNCAN — New president of the Cowichan District Parent-Teacher Council is Mrs. Stan Robertson.

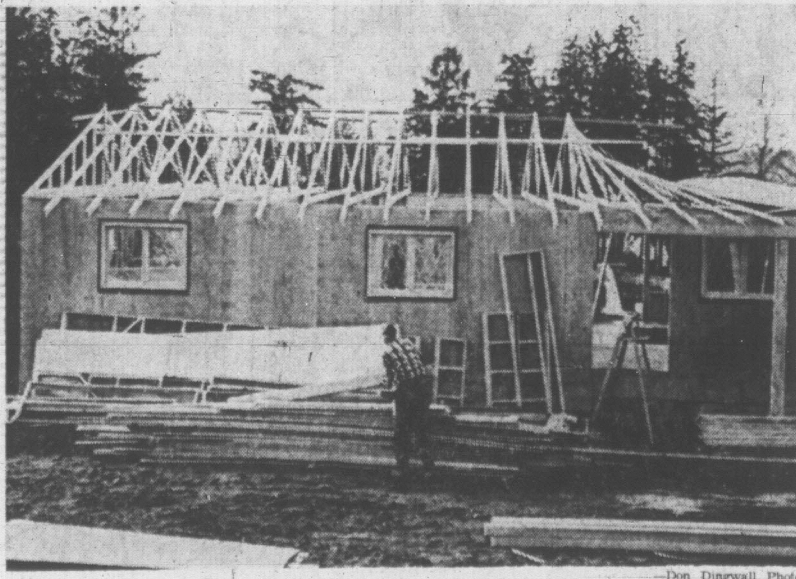

Also elected were Mrs. Don Hayes, Somenos, vice-president; Mrs. L. A. Batchelor, Shawinigan Lake, recording secretary; Mrs. Orval Maxwell, Bench, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Pat-Mason, Shawinigan Lake, membership; Mrs. Neil Pack, Somenos, door committee; Mrs. Arthur Marsh, Somenos, music festival; and Mrs. B. Falconberg, historian.

LAKE COWICHAN — Scouts of Second Lake Cowichan Group are planning a three-day winter camp-out this December the group's recent annual meeting was told.

John Padjen was elected president at the meeting and reported an enrolment of 16 Scouts and 26 Cubs in this year's troops.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Robert Veitch, vice-president; Mrs. Barry Volkers, secretary; Harvey Cornell, treasurer, and Mrs. Gordon Irvine, social convener.

IMPLEMENTATION of community planning is more important than the idea itself, A. H. Roberts, planning director, Capital Region Planning Board, told a meeting of Vancouver Island chambers of commerce Monday, in Nanaimo. He used the proposed regional parks scheme to show how valuable lands can be lost unless the public becomes aware of planning. Community planning enables an area to get to understand itself and its economic and social conditions as well as assist the community to choose its future, he said.

Now... Instant Houses

Ten o'clock Friday morning there was nothing on this site but the foundation. Eight hours later the three-room home was ready for roofing. Realtor Harold Allman said it was the first of its kind in Duncan. The house was transported in parts to the site as one truckload. Allman Estates Ltd. have the local franchise for National Engineering Homes of Abbotsford. Only items which did not come on the truck were the foundation and the fireplace. The house will be ready for occupancy in a month. New owner will be Duncan insurance agent Stan Robertson. The new-style home overlooks Quamichan Lake.

TANKER BEATS PICKET BOATS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 13,000-ton oil tanker tied up today at the strikebound British American Oil Company's bulk-loading terminal in suburban Burnaby.

Two boats carrying pickets from the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union were forced to give way as the tanker moved in.

The tanker, the Montreal-based B-A Canada, carried more than 5,000,000 gallons of refined product. A company spokesman said it came from "the Caribbean area" but would not elaborate.

It was escorted into Vancouver harbor Monday by two tugs chartered by B-A and manned by company-hired crews.

RCMP kept watch on two bridges spanning the harbor, and two police boats controlled the harbor as the tanker moved through to an anchorage near the marketing terminal.

It moved to the dock at high tide this morning.

"Our two picket boats stayed in position until the last minute," a union spokesman said. "They were forced to move by the tanker."

The tanker's cargo of such refined products as gasoline and fuel oil was to be pumped into storage tanks at the terminal, normally fed by pipeline from the company's strike-bound refinery at Port Moody, a few miles away.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said today the government would be "receptive" to a request to send military personnel to Viet Nam as part of a United Nations peacekeeping force or truce inspection team.

Pearson To Tackle Prairies

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pearson moves into one of the more critical areas of his 1965 election campaign today with his second air hop into the Conservative-dominated Prairies.

Pearson makes four speeches in a whirlwind two-day tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan as he makes his first trip into both provinces since calling the Nov. 8 election.

It is a trip during which he is expected to defend the proposed national medicare scheme in Alberta, visit riding after riding, and outline his government's farm policy to a rural audience in Saskatchewan.

The Liberals hold one seat (Calgary South) in Agriculture Minister Harry Hays) of the 34 in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

HOLDS RED DEER

John Diefenbaker's conservatives hold all 17 in the wheat province and another 14 in Alberta. The Social Credit party has the other two Alberta seats with leader Robert Thompson.

Diefenbaker Hits Two-Nation Idea

FORT WILLIAM (UPI) — Cheered on by one of the most enthusiastic crowds of his campaign, Conservative chief John Diefenbaker Monday night painted himself and his party as the new saviours of the Canadian nation.

He told a standing-room-only crowd of 2,500 that national unity is the major issue of the Nov. 8 election campaign.

"Pearsonian Liberalism," he said, has turned its back not only on the traditions of the nation, but also on the traditions of its own party.

"Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has said Canada is two nations. Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has allowed provinces to make treaties. Tell me when a province has had the right to refuse to participate in a national program," Diefenbaker demanded.

"The Liberals are going to raise each province to the status of an associate state. And when that day comes, this nation cannot hold together."

"When they're challenged, they come out of their corner ready to fight. But when someone asks: 'Are you ready,' they reply, 'not quite.'"

"You won't build Canada on that basis — by taking strong stands and running away from them."

Diefenbaker said his lonely opposition saved Canada from the "dangerous" Fulton-Favreau formula for amending the constitution.

"I said if that formula was accepted, this country would never again be able to make any

SNAP, CRACKLE, POP

Judge Chews Over Case

LONDON (AP) — Snap, crackle and pop went the jaws of Judge Frederick Layton as he munched his way through the evidence.

Before his lordship in the High Court of England were some of the best brains of the British bar — and a packet of crispy, crunchy Sugar Ricles.

Likewise a packet of Frosties, the breakfast cereal that helped make Britain great. Not to mention a portion of Butterkist, the cause of the whole legal hassle.

His lordship sampled the lot.

Her Majesty's commissioners for customs and excise submitted that Butterkist, sold mainly in movie theatres, qualified as candy and thus was liable for sales tax.

Clark's Cereal Products, makers of Butterkist, claimed that the product was just as much a cereal as the goods in the breakfast packets.

Their lawyer, Michael Hoare, argued: "The character of the product isn't changed just because you sell it in small bags."

"And it's wholly irrelevant whether you squash the grain or roll it or explode it."

"As far as I'm concerned," his lordship said, "Butterkist is nothing more than popcorn in an improved form."

"The British public certainly doesn't buy it in cinemas to take home for breakfast."

Having thus branded Butterkist as candy and liable to tax, he ordered Clark's Cereal Products to pay the costs of the hearing. And an usher knocked the Sugar Ricles all over the floor.

WIRE BRIEFS

Police Dog Bites Wrong Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Constable Marvin Magnusson was bitten by police dog Rex today as the dog attempted to help police subdue a suspected prowler.

As Const. Magnusson struggled with the suspect inside a city apartment block, Rex eluded his handler, Const. W. D. Needham. But instead of grabbing the prowler he sank his teeth into the right leg of Const. Magnusson.

The constable was taken to hospital for treatment. The suspect was arrested.

India Border Tensions Grow

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said today "the situation may have worsened" in recent days along the ceasefire line between Indian and Pakistani forces. He said tension was reported to remain high.

Truce Team Missing On Plane

VIETIANE, Laos (Reuters) — An aircraft belonging to the International Control Commission with a dozen persons aboard was reported missing today between here and the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

Commission sources said the plane carried three Canadians, five Indians, one Pole and two or three French crew members.

The sources said the plane, a Stratoliner, took off from Vientiane Monday on a two-hour flight to Hanoi.

Commission helicopters based in Vientiane searched for the plane between here and the North Vietnamese border but were hampered by thick jungle and lack of time to alert pro-Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft gunners.

NEED 48 HOURS

The Communists need 48 hours to inform their gunners of the passage of control commission helicopters.

The commission said it had been in touch with Communist representatives here who passed on a request for aid in the search for Communist headquarters at Sam Neua.

Sam Neua was the only alternative airport between here and Hanoi.

The plane sent one routine message before disappearing.

CRISIS GROWS

Rhodesia
Detains
Ex-PM

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The detention of a former prime minister known to favor majority rule and an 11th-hour plea by Britain against a seizure of independence by Rhodesia today heightened the growing crisis in this self-governing African colony.

Only a few hours after Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected a British proposal for a Commonwealth mission to visit Salisbury to discuss the independence issue, Prime Minister Wilson sent a cable pleading with the Rhodesian leader not to declare unilateral independence and to continue negotiations.

Today, Smith announced that he would meet formally with his cabinet Wednesday and observers expected a decision on UDI would be made then.

Shortly after Wilson's cable was received in Salisbury, the Rhodesian government imposed a 12-month restriction order on former prime minister Garfield Todd as he was about to leave for Britain to take part in a teach-in on Rhodesia at Edinburgh University.

The order restricted Todd to his farm at Shabani, 250 miles south of Salisbury. A government statement said the order was made "as a result of information received through security channels" under the Law and Order Act.

SHABANI (CP) — More restriction orders against European leaders in Rhodesia who oppose government independence plans are probable, former Rhodesian premier Garfield Todd said today. He said he would appeal his detention.

Speaking only 14 hours after he had been served with a restriction order confining him to his 60-square-mile cattle ranch for the next year, Todd said:

"This restriction came as quite a surprise to me. Of course, as they have banned African nationalist leaders who oppose them it was logical that I should also be considered, but I never thought they would actually do it."

Clouds May Hide Comet

City astronomers today were bucking "less than 50-50" odds of getting a chance to observe the Ikeya-Seki comet Wednesday morning because of poor weather conditions.

The comet, discovered Sept. 18 by Japanese scientists, is expected to be at its brightest Wednesday and Thursday mornings as it streaks toward the sun at 250 miles per second. The comet and its 10 million-mile long tail will be visible, weather permitting, between 6:30 a.m. local time and dawn, scientists at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory say.

But weatherman Bill Mackie predicts the southeast horizon due here tonight breaks early. City astronomers have been unsuccessful in attempts to view the comet for the past several mornings.

Streaking in from the edges of the solar system, it will make a hairpin loop around the sun during a five-hour period beginning at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

But local observers say it will be too far below the horizon here.

Four Named As Responsible

QUEBEC (CP) — A coroner's jury, after an all-night hearing, today found four men criminally responsible in the arson-racket killing of four persons.

Found responsible were Andre Lamothe, a lumber dealer; Ovide Boulet; Jean-Jacques Gagnon, a Montreal accountant; and Fernand Quirion, another lumber dealer. Lamothe, Boulet and Quirion are Quebec City residents.

Four separate inquiries, one for each of the dead men, came as a climax to announcements by Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner that up to 12 persons may have been killed in an effort by the underworld to block his department's investigations.

Seven persons are known dead, Mr. Wagner has said, and he has described the figure of 12 as a good approximate estimate for the total toll of underworld killings.

Bodies Covered With Quick Lime

Lamothe, 43, was found criminally responsible in the deaths of all four victims, whose bodies, covered with quick lime, were found in various areas south of Quebec City last month.

Boulet, 52, was held responsible in the deaths of Bilodeau, Faucher and Brie, while Gagnon was held responsible in the death of Chandonnet and Bilodeau. Quirion was held responsible in the death of Bilodeau.

The first of the inquiries lasted more than five hours, with Mr. Wagner himself present during its final stages. The jury was out 30 minutes before rendering its verdict.

Gagnon, under protection of the court, agreed to the admission of testimony he gave earlier this month before a provincial fire commissioner's inquiry in Montreal.

He said he had killed Bilodeau on a deserted road, after having travelled with him for some minutes.

Boulet told the coroner's jury, "It was in Lamothe's car and we followed Bilodeau's car."

"At a certain point, I heard two little noises and when I caught up with Bilodeau's car I saw he was lying in the car, his head on the front seat and covered up with something."

Boulet said that Gagnon then told him: "You have just witnessed a murder."

"Why did you kill Bilodeau?" a Crown prosecutor asked Gagnon, Lamothe and Boulet.

The reply was that Bilodeau had been arrested by the police and had talked about the fire that destroyed his home at St. Joseph, Sept. 30, 1961.

Bilodeau, a painting contractor, had appeared in Quebec City before the fire commission Sept. 10, 1965. He was killed Sept. 18, authorities said.

Blaze Kills Que. Sailor

Dead is 18-year-old Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier of Val Dal, Quebec.

Hungarian Envoy Seeks U.S. Asylum

LONDON (AP) — The foreign office announced today that a Hungarian diplomat, missing from his home since Saturday, has requested political asylum in the United States and has left Britain.

The foreign office announcement said the Hungarian embassy was informed this morning.

The Hungarian embassy reported Sunday night that its second secretary, Laszlo Szabo, 42, had disappeared from his London apartment.

Szabo, his wife and young daughter arrived in London about a month ago. He is an economics expert.

Szabo's wife and daughter were reported still in London.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said the "United States government has agreed to do what it can to help Szabo and is considering his case."

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and British Columbia governments will share equally the cost of an assistance and rehabilitation program for the province's fruit growers who suffered frost losses last winter, it was announced today.

The B.C. agriculture department will administer the program. No figure of over-all cost was announced.

The assistance will be paid to fruit and grape growers in the Okanagan, Kootenay and Similkameen valleys, and the plan has been discussed with executives of the fruit and grape growers' associations.

Farmers will be reimbursed for a part of their loss on 1965 crop returns and will receive payments for the replacement of trees and vines.

ESTABLISH FORMULA

In brief, the formulas to be used in setting the amounts are: Growers will be paid the difference between their 1965 crop returns and 75 per cent of their average returns during the preceding 10 years, with adjustments made for orchards and vineyards less than 10 years old. Maximum amounts of assistance will be decided after a preliminary review of applicants.

To qualify, an owner must have three acres of land in fruit or five acres in grapes and normally receive half or more of his income from the orchard or vineyard.

Payments of $2.50 a tree will be made for each fruit tree replaced in excess of 25 trees and up to a maximum of 2,000 trees per owner.

Payments of 40 cents a vine will be made for each grape vine in excess of 125 and up to a maximum of 10,000 vines per owner.

The announcement said advisory committees of growers will be formed to advise the governments on details as the program is implemented.

Inquiry Bid Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon rejected today opposition demands for a public inquiry into allegations by Dr. Guy Marcoux that Liberal and six Social Credit MPs made a "shady deal" after the 1963 election.

Mr. Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, told a press conference there should be no inquiry unless Dr. Marcoux, independent candidate in Quebec's Montmorency, produced "something" to support his charges.

police enforced strict security measures, including a search of all who entered the room.

The Quebec justice department has been pressing investigations of arson in the province, which have virtually always been connected with fraudulent bankruptcy rackets.

The investigations were stepped up last year when Mr. Wagner assumed office. Investigators have said that the arsoning or rings and their bankruptcy outlets have connections in other parts of Canada, in the United States and even as far away as Latin America.

Of the death of Redempteur Faucher, Lamotte testified: "Boulet and Faucher went to join me on Highway 5 in Boulet's car."

"I waited for them in my own car and they joined me in that. But beforehand, Boulet went to get a hammer from the trunk of his car.

"Once in the woods at St. Gilles' south of Quebec City, where two bodies were found Boulet hit Faucher a number of blows on the back of the head and then he opened the door and dragged Faucher outside and went right on beating him."

COULD NOT BURY HIM

They weren't able to bury the body because the ground was so marshy. Lamotte said Faucher had been killed at Quirion's request. He said Quirion had said Faucher had robbed him, that the police wanted him for something else, and that "this was a dangerous witness because one of his relatives worked at Quebec prison and would advise him (Faucher) to tell all to the police."

Lamotte said Faucher was one of his good friends. "We set many a fire together," he added grinning broadly.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies cleared briefly over the province Monday night and temperatures dropped below the freezing mark at many interior points. Another active weather disturbance was on its way toward B.C. this morning. Rain and gale force winds have already reached the north coast and will reach southern areas later today. Cloud from this system will penetrate into the interior and some shower activity is expected there Wednesday.

HAYS
... pneumoniaHays Illness
Major Setback For LiberalsBy VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Expectations of the Liberals to capture a number of seats in western Canada have suffered a serious setback because of the illness of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, the Liberal party's national campaign manager Walter Gordon said here today.

The agriculture minister is now in hospital in Edmonton suffering from pneumonia. It is not known at this stage whether his recovery will be sufficiently rapid to allow him to do much more intensive campaigning before voting day Nov. 8.

This was a "serious blow" for the Liberal party's campaign plans in the west said Finance Minister Gordon at the weekly Liberal party's press briefing in its national headquarters.

STILL HOPEFUL

Earlier in the campaign when Mr. Hays was going "all-out" slumping the hustings Mr. Gordon had given very optimistic that the party would make several gains—particularly in the Prairie provinces. But with Mr. Hays temporarily out of the picture Mr. Gordon would only say that he was still "cautiously hopeful."

Other Liberal sources said that they hoped the Liberals would pick up two more seats in Manitoba, perhaps two in Saskatchewan and one or two in Alberta.

Mr. Gordon said he was confident the Liberals' popular vote would increase. However he was hesitant about predicting a sufficient increase in votes for the Liberal candidates to overcome the large Conservative majorities that the Tories obtained in the Prairie seats in 1963.

The Liberal party's campaign manager said it was becoming increasingly evident that the smaller parties—especially the New Democratic Party—will get nowhere in this election.

He said the NDP campaign has not yet got off the ground despite the $1,000,000 campaign war chest the party has accumulated. Mr. Gordon said this was a surprise because many politicians had believed the NDP would make some gains in the election.

Mr. Gordon said the final issue of the campaign had now emerged. It was, he said, clearly up to the electorate to decide whether they wanted the economic prosperity of the Liberal regime to continue or whether they wanted to return to the economic chaos of the Diefenbaker years.

Turncoat Returns

HONG KONG (AP) — Morris R. Willis, 32, of Fort Ann, N.Y., crossed from China to Hong Kong Monday with his Chinese wife and daughter. He was one of 21 American defectors in the Korean War who chose to stay with the Communists 11½ years ago. Willis, appearing nervous and ill at ease, refused to talk to reporters.

Mr. Gordon said the final issue of the campaign had now emerged. It was, he said, clearly up to the electorate to decide whether they wanted the economic prosperity of the Liberal regime to continue or whether they wanted to return to the economic chaos of the Diefenbaker years.

major changes in its constitution, and Parliament would be reduced to a rubber stamp, Diefenbaker said.

The 70-year-old former prime minister said the Liberals are attempting to ride into power on the success of policies adopted from his own administration. He mentioned the devaluation of the dollar and wheat sales to China.

PEG DOLLAR

"They said these policies were wrong. Now, they're illegitimate offsprings to which they're claiming paternity."

"Were they telling you the truth when they said pegging the dollar meant Canada was bankrupt? Were they telling you the truth when they criticized selling wheat to feed starving humanity in China? Were they telling you the truth when they said national development meant nothing?"

The Liberal government is using $2.1 million in federal funds to advertise the Canada Pension Plan, which comes into effect in January, he said.

"They're using your money to get you to support them in the election," Diefenbaker charged. "This is wrong."

The crowd accorded him a standing ovation at the beginning and end of his speech. The twin ridings of Fort William and Port Arthur have not returned a Tory MP for 35 years.

Liberal officials feel they must break this prairie Conservative stronghold if they are to get a substantial national majority.

And they are hopeful in at least two constituencies in Alberta to be visited by the prime minister on his trip.

One considered most promising is the Athabasca seat now held by Tory F. J. Bigg who won by 6,658 votes and doubled the vote of his Liberal opponent in 1963. It was Bigg's largest margin since first winning the riding in 1958.

The Liberals feel they have a strong candidate in David B. Hunter who resigned as leader of the provincial party to contest the federal election.

The Liberals also think they have a chance in the Edmonton-Stadcona riding now held for the Conservatives by Terry Nugent.

THE ELECTION TRAIL

They'd Rather Switch

A new twist to electioneering is being staged by Social Credit in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Patrick Coderre, campaign manager for Mrs. Vera Pipes, has lined up simultaneous meetings tonight.

Here's how it works: Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will start speaking at 8 p.m. in the View Royal Community Hall, 279 Old Island Highway.

At the same time, Mrs. Pipes will speak at the Laxton Hall, 3213 Marwood in Colwood.

Both speakers should end at roughly the same time, and then will switch to the other hall.

Regular newspaper readers might not believe it, but some persons still aren't aware of candidates in the election.

For the benefit of those unaware of this, here is the lineup: VICTORIA
David Groos, Liberal.
Rev. Clifford Waite, Progressive Conservative.
J. Lloyd Breerton, New Democratic Party.

Writing Prize

J. W. Lawrence Russell, 24, a 1965 graduate of University of Victoria, has been named this year's winner of the $100 B. C. Nicholas prize for good, effective writing.

The award is presented annually by The Victoria Daily Times to the University of Victoria student who presents the best essay, poem, play or article.

It is named in memory of a former Times editor, a one-time member of the UBC board of governors and member of the selection committee of Rhodes Scholars from this province.

Mr. Russell's essay, "The Hole Diggers of the Woods," describes his experience as a summer worker on the Columbia River power project.

He is a native of Northern Ireland and graduated from Uvic in May this year with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

He majored in English and history.

Pearson makes four speeches in a whirlwind two-day tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan as he makes his first trip into both provinces since calling the Nov. 8 election.

It is a trip during which he is expected to defend the proposed national medicare scheme in Alberta, visit ridings the Liberals hope to take away from the Conservatives on voting day and outline his government's farm policy to a rural audience in Saskatchewan.

The Liberals hold one seat (Calgary South by Agriculture Minister Harry Hayes) of the 34 in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

4 FOUND RESPONSIBLE

Lurid Slayings,
Told at Inquest

QUEBEC (CP) — A coroner's jury, after an all-night hearing, today found four men criminally responsible in the arson-racket killing of four persons.

Found responsible were Andre Lamothe, a lumber dealer; Ovide Boulet; Jean - Jacques Gagnon, a Montreal accountant; and Fernand Quirion, another lumber dealer. Lamothe, Boulet and Quirion are Quebec City residents.

Four separate inquiries, one for each of the dead men, came as a climax to announcements by Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner that up to 12 persons may have been killed in an effort by the underworld to block his department's investigations.

Seven persons are known dead, Mr. Wagner has said, and he has described the figure of 12 as a good approximate estimate for the total toll of underworld killings.

Bodies Covered With Quick Lime

Lamothe, 43, was found criminally responsible in the deaths of all four victims, whose bodies, covered with quick lime, were found in various areas south of Quebec City last month.

Boulet, 32, was held responsible in the deaths of Bilodeau, Faucher and Brie, while Gagnon was held responsible in the death of Chandonnet and Bilodeau. Quirion was held responsible in the death of Bilodeau.

The first of the inquests lasted more than five hours, with Mr. Wagner himself present during its final stages. The jury was out 30 minutes before rendering its verdict.

Gagnon, under protection of the court, agreed to the admission of testimony he gave earlier this month before a provincial fire-commissioner's inquiry in Montreal.

He said he had killed Bilodeau.

'To Talk Over Some Business'

Lamothe testified at the coroner's court that he went to meet Bilodeau at St. Henri de Levis "to talk over some business."

Before going, Lamothe said he had taken the precaution with Boulet's help, of equipping himself with a shovel, a bucket of water and 20 pounds of caustic matter "which I had bought in a Quebec City shopping centre."

"Why the caustic stuff," asked Crown Prosecutor Roch Lefrancois.

"To put on the body," said Lamothe.

Mr. Lefrancois asked who buried Bilodeau and whether Lamothe had given instructions about the use of the shovel and other implements.

"It was Boulet," replied Lamothe. "And I needed him to give instructions, because he knew how it had to be done."

Lived With Victim's Wife

Lamothe told me that he had a score to settle with Chandonnet," Gagnon said. "He told me that Chandonnet knew too much about him and that, in addition, he had lived with Mrs. Lamothe while Lamothe was in St. Vincent de Paul Prison, at Montreal."

Lamothe, asked why Chandonnet was killed, said:

"Moreover, when he was killed, Gagnon declared he was mighty glad to have killed him because he had put up long enough with the misery he had caused."

The court was packed and

No N-Arms,
Says Shastri

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Shastri said today India will not make nuclear weapons even though China has entered the atomic club.

Shastri made the announcement in a press conference.

Asked why he made his announcement at this time, Shastri replied:

"This is our policy. There has been no rethinking. I was asked about it and replied."

Shastri declined to say whether India's no-bomb policy would be permanent.

Put this question later on."

Those in whose deaths the inquiries were held here were Alberie Bilodeau, 52, of Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que., Paul Chandonnet, 38, of Sherbrooke; and Paul Brie and Redempteur Faucher, 47, both of Quebec City.

The three others known dead are Maurice Garneau, who disappeared in 1957; Paul Nadeau and Maurice Gingras.

In Quebec, no charges are placed in violent deaths until after a coroner's inquest. Later, a preliminary hearing is held and then voluntary statements are taken, a stage in Quebec legal procedure where the defence can present evidence aimed at getting the charges dismissed before trial.

deau on a deserted road, after having travelled with him for some minutes.

Boulet told the coroner's jury, "I was in Lamothe's car and we followed Bilodeau's car."

"At a certain point, I heard two little noises and when I caught up with Bilodeau's car I saw he was lying in the car, his head on the front seat and covered up with something."

Boulet said that Gagnon then told him: "You have just witnessed a murder."

"Why did you kill Bilodeau," a Crown prosecutor asked Gagnon, Lamothe and Boulet.

The reply was that Bilodeau had been arrested by the police and had talked about the fire that destroyed his home at St. Joseph, Sept. 30, 1961.

Bilodeau, a painting contractor, had appeared in Quebec City before the fire commission Sept. 10, 1965. He was killed Sept. 18, authorities said.

TANKER BEATS PICKET BOATS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 13,000-ton oil tanker tied up today at the strike-bound British-American Oil Company's bulk-loading terminal in suburban Burnaby.

Two boats carrying pickets from the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union were forced to give way as the tanker moved in.

The tanker, the Montreal-based B-A Canada, carried more than 5,000,000 gallons of refined product. A company spokesman said it came from "the Caribbean area" but would not elaborate.

It was escorted into Vancouver harbor Monday by two tugs chartered by B-A and manned by company-hired crews. RCMP kept watch on two bridges spanning the harbor, and two police boats patrolled the harbor as the tanker moved through to an anchorage near the marketing terminal.

It moved to the dock at high tide this morning. "Our two picket boats stayed in position until the last minute," a union spokesman said. "They were forced to move by the tanker."

The tanker's cargo of such refined products as gasoline and fuel oil was to be pumped into storage tanks at the terminal, normally fed by pipeline from the company's strike-bound refinery at Port Moody, a few miles away.

Clouds May Hide
Comet From Victoria

City astronomers today were bucking "less than 50-50" odds of getting a chance to observe the Ikeya-Seki comet Wednesday morning because of poor weather conditions.

The comet, discovered Sept. 18 by Japanese scientists, is expected to be at its brightest Wednesday and Thursday mornings as it streaks toward the sun at 250 miles per second. The comet and its 10 million-mile long tail will be visible, weather permitting, between 6:30 a.m. local time and dawn, scientists at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory say.

But weatherman Bill Mackie predicts the southeast horizon will be obscured in rain and clouds unless a storm system due here tonight breaks early.

City astronomers have been unsuccessful in attempts to view the comet for the past seven mornings.

Breaking in from the edges of the solar system, it will make a hairpin loop around the sun during a five-hour period beginning at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

But local observers say it will be too far below the horizon here.

NHL Approves
Vancouver Bid

MONTREAL (CP) — The board of governors of the National Hockey League has approved Vancouver and San Francisco-Oakland as acceptable locations for the league's new division, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by NHL president Clarence Campbell following the semi-annual meeting of the league's governors.

With Los Angeles and St. Louis having been previously named, this makes four of the six teams which will form the new division of the league, scheduled to start probably with the 1967-68 season.

The approval of San Francisco-Oakland is based on the use of the new Oakland Alameda arena, scheduled for completion early in 1967.

NEED NEW ARENA

An alternate site for the San Francisco area franchise would be a modernized Cow Palace, the rink now being used by San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League. Approval of Vancouver assumes the immediate construction of a proposed new arena in the Pacific National Exhibition grounds.

To round out the new division, four cities remain in serious contention. They are Baltimore, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Of these applicants, all except Philadelphia need substantial modifications of existing rink facilities.

In the case of Philadelphia, a new arena must be constructed. The board of governors did not take any final action of the actual groups seeking the franchises. However, it did endorse both of the competing applicants in Vancouver and indicated a combined application by the two groups would be promptly accepted.

In Los Angeles, the franchise situation has been complicated by the receipt of a third application.

In St. Louis also the multiplicity of interested groups has thus far prevented the issuing of a franchise, the announcement said.

None of the groups seeking franchises was named.

Al Leader, president of the WHL, had made a presentation to the governors earlier today in an effort to have Portland, Seattle and San Diego included in any future expansion plans.

Leader said he received no reaction to his proposal.

Snap, Crackle, Pop

Judge Chews
Over Case
Of Cereals

LONDON (AP) — Snap, crackle and pop went the jaws of Judge Frederick Lawton as he munched his way through the evidence.

Before his lordship in the High Court of England were some of the best brains of the British bar—and a packet of crispy, crunchy Sugar Ricles.

Likewise a packet of Frosties, the breakfast cereal that helped make Britain great. Not to mention a portion of Butterkist, the cause of the whole legal hassle.

His lordship sampled the lot.

Her Majesty's commissioners for customs and excise submitted that Butterkist, sold mainly in movie theatres, qualified as candy and thus was liable for sales tax.

Clark's Cereal Products, makers of Butterkist, claimed that the product was just as much a cereal as the goods in the breakfast packets.

Their lawyer, Michael Hoare, argued: "The character of the product isn't changed just because you sell it in small bags."

"And it's wholly irrelevant whether you squash the grain or roll it or explode it."

"As far as I'm concerned," his lordship said, "Butterkist is nothing more than popcorn in an improved form."

"The British public certainly doesn't buy it in cinemas to take home for breakfast."

Truce Team
Missing
On Plane

VIETNAMESE (Reuters) — An aircraft belonging to the International Control Commission with a dozen persons aboard was reported missing today between here and the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

Commission sources said the plane carried three Canadians, five Indians, one Pole and two or three French crew members.

The sources said the plane, a Stratoliner, took off from Hanoi Monday on a two-hour flight to Hanoi.

Commission helicopters based in Vietnam searched for the plane between here and the North Vietnamese border but were hampered by thick jungle and lack of time to alert Pro-Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft gunners.

The Communists need 48 hours to inform their gunners of the passage of control commission helicopters.

The commission said it had been in touch with Communist representatives here who passed on a request for aid in the search to Communist headquarters at Sam Neua.

Sam Neua was the only alternate airport between here and Hanoi.

The plane sent one routine message before disappearing.

CRISIS GROWS

Rhodesia
Detains
Ex-PM

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The detention of a former prime minister known to favor majority rule and an 11th-hour plea by Britain against a seizure of independence by Rhodesia today heightened the growing crisis in this self-governing African colony.

Only a few hours after Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected a British proposal for a Commonwealth premiers mission to visit Salisbury to discuss the independence issue, Prime Minister Wilson sent a cable pleading with the Rhodesian leader not to declare unilateral independence and to continue negotiations.

Today, Smith announced that he would meet formally with his cabinet Wednesday and observers expected a decision on independence would be made then.

Shortly after Wilson's cable was received in Salisbury, the Rhodesian government imposed a 12-month restriction order on former prime minister Garfield Todd as he was about to leave for Britain to take part in a teach-in on Rhodesia at Edinburgh University.

The order restricted Todd to his farm at Shabani, 250 miles south of Salisbury. A government statement said the order was made "as a result of information received through security channels" under the Law and Order Act.

SHABANI (CP) — More restriction orders against European leaders in Rhodesia who oppose government independence plans are probable, former Rhodesian premier Garfield Todd said today. He said he would appeal his detention.

Speaking only 14 hours after he had been served with a restriction order confining him to his 60-square-mile cattle ranch for the next year, Todd said:

"This restriction came as quite a surprise to me."

Dead is 18-year-old Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier of Val D'Ile, Quebec.

Hungarian Envoy Seeks U.S. Asylum

LONDON (AP) — The foreign office announced today that a Hungarian diplomat, missing from his home since Saturday, has requested political asylum in the United States and has left Britain.

The foreign office announcement said the Hungarian embassy was informed this morning.

The Hungarian embassy reported Sunday night that its second secretary, Laszlo Szabo, 42, had disappeared from his London apartment.

Szabo, his wife and young daughter, arrived in London about a month ago. He is an economics expert.

Szabo's wife and daughter were reported still in London.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said the "United States government has agreed to do what it can to help Szabo and is considering his case."

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and British Columbia governments will share equally the cost of an assistance and rehabilitation program for the province's fruit growers who suffered frost losses last winter, it was announced today.

The B.C. agriculture department will administer the program. No figure of over-all cost was announced.

The assistance will be paid to fruit and grape growers in the Okanagan, Kootenay and Similkameen valleys, and the plan has been discussed with executives of the fruit and grape growers' associations.

Farmers will be reimbursed for a part of their loss on 1965 crop returns and will receive payments for the replacement of trees and vines.

ESTABLISH FORMULA

In brief, the formulas to be used in setting the amounts are: Growers will be paid the difference between their 1965 crop returns and 75 per cent of their average returns during the preceding 10 years, with adjustments made for orchards and vineyards less than 10 years old. Maximum amounts of assistance will be decided after a preliminary review of applicants.

To qualify, an owner must have three acres of land in fruit or five acres in grapes and normally receive half or more of his income from the orchard or vineyard.

Payments of $2.50 a tree will be made for each fruit tree replaced in excess of 25 trees and up to a maximum of 2,000 trees per owner.

Payments of 40 cents a vine will be made for each grape vine in excess of 125 and up to a maximum of 10,000 vines per owner.

The announcement said advisory committees of growers will be formed to advise the governments on details of the program is implemented.

Inquiry Bid Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon rejected today opposition demands for a public inquiry into allegations by Dr. Guy Marcoux that Liberals and six Social Credit MPs made a "shady deal" after the 1963 election.

Mr. Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, told a press conference there should be no inquiry unless Dr. Marcoux, independent candidate in Quebec-Montmorency, produced "something" to support his charges.

police enforced strict security measures, including a search of all who entered the room.

The Quebec justice department has been pressing investigations of arson in the province, which have virtually always been connected with fraudulent bankruptcy racketeers.

The investigations were stepped up last year when Mr. Wagner assumed office. Investigators have said that the arson ring or rings and their bankruptcy outlets have connections in other parts of Canada, in the United States and even as far away as Latin America.

Of the death of Redempteur Faucher, Lamotte testified: "Boulet and Faucher went to join me on Highway 5 in Boulet's car."

"I waited for them in my own car and they joined me in that. But beforehand, Boulet went to get a hammer from the trunk of his car.

"Once in the woods at St. Gilles south of Quebec City, where two bodies were found, Boulet hit Faucher a number of blows on the back of the head and then he opened the door and dragged Faucher outside and went right on beating him."

COULD NOT BURY HIM

They weren't able to bury the body because the ground was so marshy. Lamotte said Faucher had been killed at Quirion's request. He said Quirion had said Faucher had robbed him, that the police wanted him for something else, and that "this was a dangerous witness because one of his relatives worked at Quebec prison and would advise him (Faucher) to tell all to the police."

Lamotte said Faucher was one of his good friends. "We set many a fire together," he added grinning broadly.

HAYS pneumonia

Hays Illness Major Setback For Liberals

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Expectations of the Liberals to capture a number of seats in western Canada have suffered a serious setback because of the illness of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, the Liberal party's national campaign manager, Walter Gordon said here today.

The agriculture minister is now in hospital in Edmonton suffering from pneumonia. It is not known at this stage whether his recovery will be sufficiently rapid to allow him to do much more intensive campaigning before voting day Nov. 8.

This was a "serious blow" for the Liberal party's campaign plans in the west said Finance Minister Gordon at the weekly Liberal party's press briefing in its national headquarters.

STILL HOPEFUL

Earlier in the campaign when Mr. Hays was going "all-out" stumping the hustings Mr. Gordon had been very optimistic that the party would make several gains—particularly in the Prairie provinces. But with Mr. Hays temporarily out of the picture Mr. Gordon would only say that he was still "cautiously hopeful."

Other Liberal sources said that they hoped the Liberals would pick up two more seats in Manitoba, perhaps two in Saskatchewan and one or two in Alberta.

Mr. Gordon said he was confident the Liberals' popular vote would increase. However, he was hesitant about predicting a sufficient increase in votes for the Liberal candidates to overcome the large Conservative majorities that the Tories obtained in the Prairie seats in 1963.

The Liberal party's campaign manager said it was becoming increasingly evident that the smaller parties—especially the New Democratic Party—will get nowhere in this election.

He said the NDP campaign has not yet got off the ground despite the $1,000,000 campaign war chest the party has accumulated. Mr. Gordon said this was a surprise because many politicians had believed the NDP would make some gains in the election.

Mr. Gordon said the final issue of the campaign had now emerged. It was, he said, clearly up to the electorate to decide whether they wanted the economic prosperity of the Liberal regime to continue or whether they wanted to return to the economic chaos of the Diefenbaker years.

Two-Nation Idea Hit By Diefenbaker

FORT WILLIAM (UPI) — Cheered on by one of the most enthusiastic crowds of his campaign, Conservative chief John Diefenbaker Monday night painted himself and his party as the new saviours of the Canadian nation.

He told a standing-room-only crowd of 2,500 that national unity is the major issue of the Nov. 8 election campaign.

"Pearsonian Liberalism," he said, has turned its back not only on the traditions of the nation, but also on the traditions of its own party.

"Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has said Canada is two nations. Tell me when any other Liberal prime minister has allowed provinces to make treaties. Tell me when a province has had the right to refuse to participate in a national program," Diefenbaker demanded.

The Liberals are going to raise each province to the status of an associate state. And when that day comes, this nation cannot hold together."

Diefenbaker said Prime Minister Pearson now says he's for a strong central government.

"When they're challenged, they come out of their corner ready to fight. But when someone asks: 'Are you ready,' they reply, 'not quite.'"

"You won't build Canada on that basis — by taking strong stands and running away from them."

Diefenbaker said his lonely opposition saved Canada from the "dangerous" Fulton-Favreau formula for amending the constitution.

"I said if that formula was accepted, this country would never again be able to make any major changes in its constitution, and Parliament would be reduced to a rubber stamp," Diefenbaker said.

The 70-year-old former prime minister said the Liberals are attempting to ride into power on the success of policies adopted from his own administration. He mentioned the devaluation of the dollar and wheat sales to China.

PEG DOLLAR

They said these policies were wrong. Now, they're illegitimate offspring to which they're claiming paternity.

"Were they telling you the truth when they said pegging the dollar meant Canada was bankrupt? Were they telling you the truth when they criticized selling wheat to feed starving humanity in China? Were they telling you the truth when they said national development meant nothing?"

holding one in Red Deer. Liberal officials feel they must break this prairie Conservative stronghold if they are to get a substantial national majority.

And they are hopeful in at least two constituencies in Alberta to be visited by the prime minister on his trip.

One considered most promising is the Athabasca seat now held by Tory F. J. Bigg who won by 6,658 votes and doubled the vote of his Liberal opponent in 1963. It was Bigg's largest margin since first winning the riding in 1958.

The Liberals feel they have a strong candidate in David B. Hunter who resigned as leader of the provincial party to contest the federal election.

The Liberals also think they have a chance in the Edmonton-Strathcona riding now held for the Conservatives by Terry Nugent.

THE ELECTION TRAIL

They'd Rather Switch

A new twist to electioneering is being staged by Social Credit in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Patrick Codyre, campaign manager for Mrs. Vera Pipes, has lined up simultaneous meetings tonight.

Here's how it works: Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will start speaking at 8 p.m. in the View Royal Community Hall, 279 Old Island Highway.

At the same time, Mrs. Pipes will speak at the Laxton Hall, 3213 Marwood in Colwood.

Both speakers should end at roughly the same time, and then will switch to the other hall.

Regular newspaper readers might not believe it, but some persons still aren't aware of the candidates in the election.

VICTORIA
David Groos, Liberal.
Rev. Clifford Waite, Progressive Conservative.
J. Lloyd Brereton, New Democratic Party.

'HOLE DIGGERS'

Grad Wins Nicholas Writing Prize

J. W. Lawrence Russell, 24, a 1965 graduate of University of Victoria, has been named this year's winner of the $100 B. C. Nicholas prize for good, effective writing.

The award is presented annually by The Victoria Daily Times to the University of Victoria student who presents the best essay, poem, play or article.

It is named in memory of a former Times editor, a one-time member of the UBC board of governors and member of the selection committee of Rhodes Scholars from this province.

Mr. Russell's essay, "The Hole Diggers of the Woods," describes his experience as a summer worker on the Columbia River power project.

He is a native of Northern Ireland and graduated from Uvic in May this year with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

He majored in English and history.

Progressive Conservatives in Victoria are offering free car rides to the court of revision at the Eagles Hall on View Street this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Times are 10-11 in the morning and 7-10 in the evening. The number to call is campaign headquarters, 386-1381.

He will address Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday night; speak at Mill Bay Community Hall Friday at 8 p.m., with former NDP MP Colin Cameron; and next Tuesday at 8 p.m., in Sooke Community Hall.

When Sanich MLA John Tisdale gets the campaign bone in his teeth, the doggerel starts to fly.

Like Monday night at Lake Hill, when he tried the humorous approach to criticizing the federalists:

"Little Lester Pearson sat in a corner eating his Liberal pie."

"He stuck in his thumb and pulled out a bum."

"And said, Here is Rivard and I."
